Glorious Public Schools.
LaGuardia Flies North.
The Lady Flew East.
Searchlights Not Enough.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 23.

MISS MARIE YOUNG, aged 13, intelligent and charming editor of "The Clipper," organ of Miami's "Citrus Grove Junior High School," wrote:

"Please come and talk about newspapers."

IF YOU feel gloomy, and take our depression too seriously, spend an hour or two in a well-managed American public school, among the teachers and children and your gloom will vanish.

The "Citrus Grove Junior High School" was thus named because it was built in a grove of orange and grapefruit trees far out on the edge of Miami. Since then Miami has grown out far beyond the school.

A thousand children are educated in that school, under the direction of Miss Claribel Cason, principal, and thirty assistant teachers whose devotion and ability fill you with respect and admiration.

The children range in age from three years in the kindergarten to sixteen years in the junior high school.

They meet at half past ten in the morning, in a great auditorium, sing their school songs, listen to each other deliver short addresses on school affairs, everything apparently run by the scholars to develop "initiative and responsibility," while Miss Cason and her teachers unobtrusively direct.

ALL THE schoolrooms are bathed in sunlight, windows wide open, from one end of the room to the other, a continually changing supply of fresh air blowing in and out.

After a period of exercise, it is a delight to see in the rooms for younger children, seven years of age, each child as it comes in resting its head on its arms, folded on the desk, the eyes closed.

On the wall is a sign reading:

A talking machine, not loud, plays "Ave Maria" while the children rest. For different days, different, good music. There are many fine things in this country, great rivers, mountains, waterfalls, wheat fields, mines and magnificent factories.

But nothing is as beautiful or as encouraging as the faces of a thousand happy public school children.

THE BIG boys, many overgrown, and proud of it, would be very hard to handle. They were hard to handle in the little "red school house," but in "Citrus Grove Junior High" each boy who does not set a good example to smaller boys, or neglects his studies, is not allowed to represent the school in sports.

He may not play on the football team or share in other athletic enterprises. If you are not in athletics, you're nothing, and big boys that under other conditions might defy teachers and ignore lessons make desperate efforts to be, as many are, on the "honor roll."

The faces of the little public school girls are especially and entirely beautiful, filled with intelligence and goodness, their manner in every way admirable.

In that high school, and thousands of other magnificent public schools throughout the land, the problems of this country are being solved.

MAJ. LAGUARDIA, recently elected Mayor of New York by an overwhelming majority, flew into Miami with his wife and Frank A. Tichenor, having left Panama the preceding day.

After attending a meeting at Miami Beach and spending the night here, he flew on to Washington. This shows that flying is real, from Panama to Washington in 36 hours flying time.

Maj. LaGuardia is used to flying, having run an American bombing plane in Europe, during the war.

Col. Frank B. Shutts took Maj. LaGuardia to the Miami Beach meeting and when someone remarked that Maj. LaGuardia is not much more than five feet high, replied:

"Maj. LaGuardia is about the same height as Napoleon Bonaparte, another gentleman of Italian descent."

The new mayor of the biggest American city, who was born in New York and brought up in Arizona, possesses good health and considerable will power.

It is safe to predict that after he takes office on January 1 New York will know that something happened in the recent election.

THE MOST dramatic death, self-inflicted, in history, is said to be that of an ancient philosopher who jumped into the mouth of a volcano when life became tiresome. He wanted his death to be mysteriously impressive.

A young widow of Jacksonville, Fla., Mrs. Louise Stanton, only 30 years old, and a "Junior League leader," the reporters tell you, selected a road to death even more dramatic.

This young woman borrowed an airplane, took four hours' supply of fuel, and flew out over the Atlantic, leaving a note saying that she would "head east, come down when the gas gave out, and let that be the end."

She did not want the word "suicide" used, she just wanted "to go out into space and find out what it is all about. And if there isn't anything—that's o. k., too."

AFTER SHE had been gone two hours the airport authori-

GRILL MATE IN SURGERY SLAYING

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—Earle Wynekoop came home today to face a firing squad of inquisitors seeking to learn who killed his pretty red-haired young wife, Rheta, whose nearly nude body was found on the operating table in the office of his mother, Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynecoop, prominent woman physician.

Tall, spare, brunet and handsome, and regarded by police as the key witness in one of the most unusual murders in Chicago's crime annals, Earle surrendered shortly after Detective Chief William Schoemaker had declared "some member of the household" was the killer. Young Wynekoop denied any knowledge of the slaying.

DETECTIVE'S THEORY

In summing up the case thus far as he has reconstructed it, and before Earle arrived to tell his story, Chief Schoemaker said:

"Our investigation shows that the murder was committed after dinner, which time has been seet at 6 o'clock. It may have happened immediately after or an hour or so later.

"No rigor mortis had sent in the body when Ahern (the undertaker), who called police, first saw the body. This is contrary to Dr. Wynekoop's statement that the neck was stiffened when she says she found the body about 8:30 o'clock.

"It takes a minimum of two hours fo rrigor mortis to set in. If that was the case, and the body was still limp as we have determined when the

FOX BLAMES BANKERS' PLOT

Names Hoover, Burke In Fighting Trust Law Charge

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—In a story as gripping as some he has placed on the screen, William Fox told Senate investigators today he was forced out of the movie busines by a conspiracy of bankers and then related negotiations with noted Republicans, including President Hoover, and the late James Francis Burke, of Pittsburgh, to prevent prosecution under the anti-trust laws.

The retired movie magnate told a story of paying $2,000,000 to Louis B. Mayer, California Republican leader, in settlement of a previous claim and then getting a promise from Mayer to aid him at the Justice Department.

The middle aged, bald headed man, who rose from poverty to great wealth, said Mayer was suggested to him by Claudius Huston, then chairman of the Republican national committee, and Mr. Burke, the committee's general counsel.

Senate banking committee members listened intently and the room rapidly crowded with spectators as Fox charged bankers had forced him to sell control of his 1,000 theaters "under duress."

He made his conspiracy charges against Halsey-Stuart & Co., Albert H. Wiggin, former chairman of the Chase National Bank; John Otterson, official of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, and others.

Committee investigators, meanwhile, said they had evidence that the interests which bought Fox out not only paid him $15,000,000 but paid $1,000,000 to Samuel Untermyer and $520,000 to the law firm of Charles Evans Hughes for legal services during his conflict with the bankers.

Sprague's Resignation

By JULIUS G. BERENS,
Financial Editor, New York American.

PROFESSOR SPRAGUE'S letter of resignation as one of the President's Treasury advisors was a revealing document.

Its author displayed, in his harsh criticisms of the Rooseveltian monetary policies, a temperament that was far from academic.

More than that, however, he has succeeded in making the informed public acutely aware of the nature and origin of the insistent opposition to the President's endeavors to correct our oppressive money evils and to restore a humane balance in American economic life.

For Professor Sprague's opinions, and his dire predictions of failure of the administration's fiscal procedure, are exactly the kind of opinions and predictions that should have been expected from a man of his previous associations.

PROFESSOR SPRAGUE has been in the hire of the banking community year after year. He has been a confidante and collaborator of Federal Reserve authorities and as such became naturally impregnated with the banking type of thinking.

It was after varying special tasks on behalf of the American Bankers Association, for the Federal Reserve Board, in one of which he participated with the late Governor Strong of the New York Reserve Bank, that Professor Sprague reached the climax of his career.

He was selected to become special economic advisor to the Bank of England.

No American, logically, could have been selected for this task without express approval of the British fiscal agents in the United States: J. P. Morgan and Company.

The American special economic advisor to the Bank of England must see eye to eye with England's bankers here. His mind must have been attuned to the Morgan view; otherwise he never would have gotten the job.

SO WE find Professor Sprague in 1930 in the innermost councils of the Bank of England. We find him conniving with his new colleague, superficially the secretive Professor Skinner of run-ship-and-disappear fame, but in reality head of the Bank of England, Montagu Norman.

These two, the master mind of international financial intrigue and the trusting and approved

LEADERS SET TO CRUSH OPPOSITION

Next Wednesday Made Deadline for Final Passage of Plan

The state moved toward perfection of its liquor control and taxation machinery today with these developments:

1—Approval of the Senate was all that was lacking to put the Pinchot plan of state liquor stores into effect January 1. The House adopted the measure. Gov. Pinchot and Republican legislative leaders determined to force final passage of all liquor bills by next Wednesday.

2—A tax of $2 a gallon on all liquor already manufactured and stored in the state became effective last night. State police were on duty at distilleries to prevent evasion.

3—Gov. Pinchot named his selections for a liquor control board. Thomas W. Phillips, of Butler, reiterated his refusal to accept the post tendered by Pinchot.

4—While revenue from the $2 liquor tax was designed for relief of the schools, a bill to impose an income tax for school aid purposes was introduced in the House.

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Nov. 23.—Gov. Pinchot and Republican legislative leaders this afternoon determined to force final passage of all liquor legislation by Wednesday of next week. Parliamentary short cuts will be utilized if there is any disposition on the part of the opposition to delay matters.

The Senate this morning passed on second reading the state stores bill, which has passed the House, and the measure creating a liquor control board, then sent both back to committee. Under the rules, neither can be passed finally until Monday night. However, the rules will be suspended to clear the path for the control board measure, and it will at once be sent to the House.

STRIKE ON WANE IN MEAT PLANTS

The meat workers' strike appeared to have been definitely broken today, with all except two North Side packing houses reported operating with normal forces.

Pickets were still on duty near the Oswald and Hess and the William Zoller plants, both in Spring Garden avenue, and both under the receivership of State Senator Frank J. Harris. Engineers and firemen of the Zoller Company who walked out in sympathy yesterday, had returned today.

The Hess Company was making deliveries under police escort. The Zoller Company was butchering and packing. All other packers and distributors were sending out trucks without police protection, although a guard was maintained outside many plants as a precaution against roving pickets from the North Side.

Judge George V. Moore yesterday continued an order restraining the Packing Houses Workers' Industrial Union from interfering with operations of the Hess and Zoller companies.

The United Mine Workers were victors in yesterday's elections.

The voting was conducted without violence, although close contests were apparent at the three Colonial mines of the H. C. Frick Coke Company, between Brotherhood Workmen and the United Mine Workers.

TRACY 'FIRED' BY STUDIO

Universal Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 23.—Because of the antics which resulted in Lee Tracy's hurried and requested departure from Mexico, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio has discharged the screen star.

In a telegram made public from Louis B. Mayer, studio executive, to President Abelardo Rodriguez, of Mexico, it was stated Tracy's conduct had been canceled "as a result of the actor's deplorable behavior."

It also declared that not only has the player been removed from the cast of the picture being made in Mexico, "but he has been dismissed entirely from our employ."

Tracy, it was understood, was under a five-year contract, which had three years more to run.

'OTHER WOMAN' SUED FOR BALM

The "other woman" received both an engagement ring and a wedding ring from her husband, Howard B. Kerr, and "has exacted a promise of marriage," Mrs. Edith A. Kerr, of 150 Washington avenue, Bellevue, charged in her alienation suit for $50,000 damages against Helen Brunell, of 1713 Greenleaf street, Duquesne Heights.

Declaring that Miss Brunell also received other "costly personal gifts from her husband, although he "pretends to be without funds to support his family" Mrs. Kerr said she had succeeded in her "nefarious purpose of winning the affection" of Kerr.

The Kerrs were married August 30, 1918, while he was a soldier at Camp Meade, Md. They have a son, Howard B. Kerr, Jr., 8.

Judge Samuel H. Gardner issued a capias against Miss Brunell and set bail at $1,000.

State Whisky Plants Closed in Tax Protest

Troopers Guarding Distilleries to Prevent Evasion

Whisky-making in Southwestern Pennsylvania had all but halted today in protest against the new state tax of $2 per gallon.

While state police stood guard to prevent removal of whisky without payment of the tax, two huge distilleries of A. Overholt and Company, one at Large, Allegheny County, and the other at Broad Ford, Fayette County, were ordered closed by R. C. Berry, resident manager. Five hundred and seventy men were made idle.

At the Schenley distillery of the Joseph Finch Company, Schenley, Armstrong County, 600 men were laid off yesterday and today. By tomorrow it was indicated 600 more would be furloughed leaving only 100 at work.

Three state police were on duty at the Large and Schenley distilleries on order of Gov. Pinchot. Maj. Lynn G. Adams, head of the state police, promised:

"We'll stop anything that moves that doesn't have a state tax paid on it."

Leon D. Metzger, State Secretary of Revenue, had telegraphed all distilleries he would have agents on hand today.

Stored in the Schenley plant, awaiting formal repeal of prohibition, December 5, are, according to estimates, 3,500,000 gallons of good whisky.

Officials today were wondering where they would get the money to pay the tax. Under the license law, the tax must be paid in 90 days even though the liquor is not moved.

The tax law placed a snag in the entire whisky-making program at Schenley, L. P. Weiner, superintendent, disclosed.

Shipments of grain and supplies were ordered held up. Grain valued at $1,000 in transit will be fed to cattle at Schenley. New equipment was ordered diverted to another distillery of the company at Lawrenceburg, Ind. The Pennsylvania Railroad curtailed its freight car service.

Tunney Reported Alcohol Stockholder

PEORIA, Ill., Nov. 23.—(INS.)—A report that Gene Tunney, former heavyweight champion, is a heavy stockholder in the American Commercial Alcohol Company here gained credence yesterday when he made a personal tour of inspection of the company's plant.

Tunney himself said it was simply a "pleasure trip" for him, but others indicated he is a stockholder.

Missing Man Found Dead in Pa. Forest

M'CLURE CASE GOES TO JURY

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—The case of State Senator John J. McClure and 70 others charged with conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law, was given to the jury this afternoon.

Making their final plea, defense counsel in the Delaware County "protection" ring case charged that the real "higher ups" were government witnesses put on the stand to overthrow McClure.

James Gay Gordon, making the third defense address, asserted that "the breath that breathes life into this prosecution is the vice of it," in denouncing the indictment of 96 persons on charges of conspiracy to violate the Volstead act.

McClure's Sheriff Candidate Loses

At the end of yesterday's official tabulation, Nathan Pechin, Democratic candidate, was leading Maj. Gen. William G. Price, supported by the Republican organization headed by State Senator John J. McClure, by 283 votes.

Ring Only Raiment At Nudist Wedding

International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 23.—What is believed to be the first wedding in an American nudist colony was performed yesterday in a sylvan valley seven and a half miles southwest of Lake Elsinore, the Evening Herald and Express said today.

The young bride and bridegroom, Miss Susie Wise and Jim Goodman, today were enroute to San Francisco on a honeymoon trip.

The bridal couple, the minister the Rev. Clarke Irvine, and all the wedding guests were nude at the time of the ceremony, the Herald and Express said. The auburn haired bride held a diamond ring.

The bridesmaid, Constance Allen, a beautiful blonde, whose flaxen hair played about her in the wind, took her place to the right of the bride. The bridegroom's attendant, James Mack, stood at the left of Jim Goodman. The Rev. Mr. Irvine intoned as he opened his Bible:

"We are gathered here in the sight of God. We are in God's temple here among these beautiful hills. It is not necessary for us to be encompassed by stone walls, leaden windows—and clothes."

Reading from the eleventh chapter of St. Luke, he continued:

"The light of the body is the light of the eye. Therefore, when thine eye is single, thine whole body is also full of light. But when thine eye is evil, thy body is also full of darkness."

5,000 JOBLESS REGISTER WITH BUREAU

70 Municipalities in County to Propose Public Works

Five thousand unemployed men registered for Civil Works Administration jobs here today as the task of putting 33,600 Allegheny County jobless back to work for at least two months struck its stride.

Twelve hundred unemployed registered yesterday at the Federal-State Employment Office, 108 Smithfield street, and hundreds more formed a two-block-long queue at the office this afternoon.

Seventy municipalities, including Pittsburgh and the county, already have taken out applications for Civil Works projects and seven have presented their applications to County Civil Works Administrator James L. Stuart. Although details of these projects were not given out, it was reported that, if approved, they would provide jobs for nearly 15,000.

RELIEF OLLS STUDIED

All CWA positions will be filled from relief and unemployed records on file at the Federal-State Employment Office, in charge of Maj. H. F. Bucher. Until December 1 they will be made from the relief rolls in his office, totaling 55,000. After that, they will be divided between relief cases and registered unemployed.

Persons who have registered at his office since the beginning of 1932 need not renew their applications, as selections will be made covering that period, Maj. Bucher announced today.

First consideration for jobs will be given to individuals living in the neighborhood of the contemplated projects, but skill and competence also will influence appointments, according to Bucher. It is his intention to give men work as close to home as possible, with the object of eliminating car fare.

VETS NOT FAVORED

He explained:

"No special consideration will be given to war veterans under the provision of the CWA. No legion post has been authorized to register their unemployed members for CWA work, but I understand that several are doing this service as regards Public Works Administration projects."

Headquarters for the CWA were opened today at 544 Oliver Building, where applications for public construction and improvement programs will be received.

Administrator Stuart and C. M. Haggart, named field representative by State Administrator Eric Biddle, will pass upon all applications. E. C. Dunbar will provide application blanks to all boroughs and townships, and Charles Gurlitz will be controller.

Tentative approval was given yesterday by Stuart to two county projects for regrading two and a half miles of Pierce Mill road and Catfish Run road.

NRA QUESTIONS FISHER STATUS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—Whether former Gov. John S. Fisher is chairman of the Pittsburgh NRA committee is being questioned at National Recovery Administration headquarters as a result of his speech Tuesday night.

Fisher was qouted att he time as satting the NRA "was unsound" and of questionable legality.

Prior to the address it was said today, Fisher's attitude had been investigated and Frank C. Harper, secretary of the NRA in Pittsburgh, was considere the chairman.

Mr. Harper said today that Mr. Fisher is chairman, and that he is executive secretary of the local board.

Success for the NRA before it is one year old was predicted today by Thomas A. Dunn, former president of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce and a member of the NRA Compliance Board.

His prediction was made in a statement taking exceptions to the opinion expressed by former Gov. Fisher.

CLEANERS WAIT PRICE RULING

Allegheny County prices on dry cleaning were not affected today under the minimum scale ordered by Hugh S. Johnson under the cleaning and dyeing code authority while awaiting instruction from Washington.

The code became effective today in 45 states. Prices varied according to districts, but all cities were not subject to the ruling.

W. J. Mooney, chairman of the Cleaners and Dyers' Association of Allegheny County, said no order had been received from Washington. The local group submitted a price code to the authority 10 days ago, but no decision has been announced, Mooney said. While the authority's code calls for the minimum price of 95 cents for men's suits and plain dresses in Pennsylvania, the local group submitted the scale of 85 cents for suits and $1 for dresses.

CHARGES AIRED AT WEIRTON

WEIRTON, W. Va., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Weirton union steel workers at a mass meeting last night heard reports from their leaders charging the Weirton Steel Company with violating terms of the government-negotiated truce which halted the recent steel strike.

No action was taken at the meeting, called merely for the discussion of the protests submitted Monday to the Regional Labor Board at Pittsburgh by a delegation of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers.

The delegation protested activities of the company in preparation for the forthcoming election of collective bargaining representatives, scheduled for December 11 under supervision of the National Labor Board.

Counsel to NRA Leader Begins Work

Attorney J. Alfred Wilner today began his duties as legal adviser to W. K. Ray, NRA compliance director in the Pittsburgh district. He was sworn in yesterday.

Printed forms on which alleged violations may be reported have been distributed to postmasters in the district, he announced. Thousands of letters charging NRA violations have been received at the office, he said, but many of them have been incomplete as to the nature of the alleged violations.

SPY REPUDIATES CONFESSION

LONDON, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—The British army scandal of "the officer in the tower" was revived in flaring headlines today with the revelation of a letter allegedly sent from prison by Lieut. Norman Baillie-Stewart to his father.

Lieut. Stewart is serving a five-year sentence in the Tower of London charged with violation of the official secrets act.

The letter was alleged to have said Baillie-Stewart signed a confession because he was told that authorities would consider his release if he did so. The letter said:

"I was not a German spy. I did not lead an immoral life with any woman, and I did not receive money for that purpose. I was a plain, utter fool and nothing else."

The young officer of the aristocratic Seaforth Highlanders was charged in court-martial proceedings with having sold military secrets to a foreign nation for "£50 or more." His defense contended he received the money from a German girl he met while on leave in Germany.

3 YEARS IN PEN FOR BANKER

Edwin J. Weber, 46-year-old former vice president and cashier of the First National Bank of Bridgeville, was sentenced to three years in prison following his plea of guilty to embezzlement of $18,185 of the bank's funds. Sentence was imposed by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker, who was told that the embezzlement was due to manipulation of the funds to cover loans Weber had in the bank.

The indictment contained six counts covering the period from February 11, 1931, to March 23, 1933.

Weber had been in the banking business for 29 years.

MRS. PINCHOT PLEDGES AID TO UNION

Ridicules Vandergrift Burgess for Defeat At Polls

By MARGARET RUSSELL

"If any man shall lose his job for union activities, I, personally, will take his case to Senator Wagner or even to the President himself. We shall see which is the stronger: the Steel Corporation or the United States government."

This is the pledge and the challenge, ringing today in the ears of 10,000 Vandergrift townsfolk, which Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of Gov. Pinchot, flung from the window of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers' headquarters in the Citizens Bank Building, Vandergrift, last night.

Undaunted by Burgess William Dick's refusal to grant her a permit to speak in any public building in the borough, Mrs. Pinchot cried to her listeners, jammed in the streets below:

"I was determined that I should come and speak to you, even if I had to go to jail for it. No man or any set of men could keep me away when I knew you wanted me to come. By the way, I am told that at last election you decided to give Mr. Dick a vacation to go back to school and study the American Constitution and find out for himself what it says about free speech and the rights of free assembly. It's going to be a surprise to him."

REFERS TO DEFEAT

Mrs. Pinchot referred to Dick's recent defeat for re-election as Burgess. She continued:

"The refusal of the School Board to permit you citizens and taxpayers to hear me speak in the school house is significant, because it shows you to what lengths the steel trust will go in its autocratic and un-American determination to keep the workers down.

Workers must organize and elect representatives who will support measures of interest to them, Mrs. Pinchot continued. She said:

"In Allegheny County you elected a Senator who used his power to defeat the old age pension bill and other social agencies. This must not continue.

"Workers need union protection for wages, hours and working conditions. Today unions are doubly necessary to facilitate the operation of the NRA. Company unions are worse than useless."

JUDGE SMITH SPEAKS

Judge Ralph H. Smith, of Common Pleas Court, said:

"Men are more important than dollars. They should have a living chance for life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness as an equitable exchange for their sweat, their backaches, their heartaches in industry."

Today Mrs. Pinchot continues to speak before labor groups in the steel industry. At 2 p. m. she is to address workers in the Polish Falcons' Hall in Braddock, and at 8 p. m. she is to speak in the Eagles' Hall, New Kensington. Tomorrow she has four meetings scheduled: 3:30 p. m., in Duquesne; 6 p. m., in the Moose Temple, McKeesport; 7 p. m., in Venetian Hall, Clairton, and 8:30 p. m., in the high school auditorium in Monessen. Saturday at 2 p. m. she will speak at Martins Ferry, O.

The Clairton meeting will be sponsored jointly by the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers and the International Longshoremen's Association; her McKeesport meeting by the Amalgamated and the International Brotherhood of Foundry Employes.

NAVY HOLDS UP MELLON BIDS ON CONTRACT

Aluminum Company's Clash With NRA Blamed

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—Former Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon today found himself classed with Henry Ford as an opponent of the National Industrial Recovery Act.

The Navy Department moved to hold up bidding on about $1,000,000 worth of aluminum, pending the acceptance of a reasonable code for the aluminum industry by the Mellon-controlled Aluminum Company of America, which has a monopoly on the production and milling of aluminum in this country.

Bids on the contract were to have been opened next Wednesday, but the Navy, at the request of independent fabricators of the metal, agreed to postpone opening of the bids until December 27.

NEEDED FOR SHIPS

The metal called for in the contract, about 2,000,000 pounds, is to be used in the construction of 10 destroyers and two light cruisers, under an allotment of funds by the Public Works Authority.

Postponement of the awarding of the contract will bring to a showdown the refusal of the Aluminum Company of America to permit the NRA to put in the aluminum code a provision making it an unfair trade practice for the company to furnish ingot aluminum to its own fabricating subsidiaries at less cost than to independent fabricators.

Aluminum Official Claims NRA Co-Operation

Officials of the Aluminum Company of America have not been informed as yet regarding the Navy Department's postponing opening of bids until December 27 because of alleged violation of the aluminum code by the company, it was said today at the company's offices in the Gulf Building.

One of the senior vice-presidents, who preferred not to be named, reiterated that the company was cooperating with NRA officials, admitted bids were being submitted on Navy work, but denied knowledge of the proposed action of the Navy Department. He said:

"The Aluminum Company of America has received inquiries from the Navy Department for a quantity of aluminum to be used in the Navy program involving construction of two light cruisers and 10 destroyers.

"The company is preparing and will file bids on this material which will be produced in accordance with the code regulations under which the Aluminum company is, and for some time has been, operating with the full approval of the NRA.

"Inasmuch as there are a number of manufacturers making all or a considerable part of this material, the Aluminum company will probably be only one of a number of bidders endeavoring to secure this business. It will be fortunate for the Pittsburgh district if the Aluminum Company of America should be the successful bidder in respect to some or all of this material, inasmuch as it would bring more employment to this district in which the company operates one of its largest plants."

Theater in Erie Damaged by Bomb

ERIE, Pa., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—A bomb explosion early today damaged the Park Theater, broke windows in nearby buildings and brought details of police to the scene.

Police said Harry Schwartz, manager, told them the theater is being picketed by union sympathizers because he does not employ union labor.

Wins $500,000

MRS. IRENE HERBERT

NURSE AWARDED HALF MILLION

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—After deliberating 11 hours, a Superior Court jury last night returned a verdict awarding Mrs. Irene Herbert $500,000 in her suit against the estate of the late Col. J. B. Lankershim, multimillionaire real estate operator.

Mrs. Herbert, Long Beach nurse and companion of Lankershim for several years, sued the estate to collect a $500,000 promissory note which she claimed Lankershim gave her for her services as "nurse, companion and loving care."

The verdict not only awarded her the half-million dollars, but stipulated that interest should be paid on that amount "at the rate of 7 per cent per annum from November 16, 1931."

NEW HARD COAL STRIKE LOOMS

Thomas Maloney, district president of the new United Anthracite Miners of Pennsylvania, said the men will walk out within 24 hours unless the operators rehire former employes who went out in the strike several weeks ago.

Operators appeared before the National Labor Board's fact-finding committee in Scranton, informed the committee that the places vacated by striking miners have been filled with others and that they cannot oust the new men to take back former employes. The mine owners denied there has been discrimination.

Acheson Silent On Sprague Action

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Dean Acheson, who recently retired as Under Secretary of the Treasury, was paying a visit today to his parents, Bishop and Mrs. E. Campion Acheson.

He declined to comment either on his resignation, which made way for Henry Morgenthau, Jr., to become Acting Secretary of the Treasury, or on that of O. M. W. Sprague, who was a special advisor to the Treasury Department.

MINERS CLASH AT FRICK POLLS

Union Men Challenge Right of Workers To Vote

tional Labor Board affairs. They were sent to assist where voting was exceptionally heavy and challenges from opposing factions more numerous.

Balloting was delayed nearly an hour at Colonial No. 1 mine because of a dispute over the eligibility of voters and finally because the miners objected to the size of ballot box. It wasn't big enough to hold all of the votes, United Mine Workers of America leaders declared, and volunteers built another larger and stronger box. The supervisor good naturedly allowed the substitution.

From Edenboro came reports to National Labor Board headquarters in Uniontown that the brotherhood at that mine was attempting to vote deputies, firebosses and janitresses. Dr. Leiserson instructed the supervisor to place all contested ballots in a separate box, the complaints to be reviewed later in Washington.

Another dispute arose over the balloting of employes of the Frick-owned Ralph and Palmer mines at Gates. United Mine Workers leaders objected on the grounds that the brotherhood was trying to muster its strength by combining the votes and the federal supervisor decided to keep the ballots separate.

All roads to a schoolhouse at Colonial 3, Rowes Run, were barricaded except one, fresh boards blocking the entrances to the Frick company patches. The open road skirted the patch.

Miners went to the polls with the detonation of scare bombs in their ears following a night of terror during which fiery crosses were burned and excitement rose to fever pitch in the vicinity of the Colonial mines.

DISTRICT 5 VOTE

All but one of the mines voting today are located in District 4, United Mine Workers. The exception is the Shannopin Coal Company mine at Bobtown, a subsidiary of the Jones & Laughlin interests, located in District 5.

The other mines voting today include:

Colonial No. 1, Colonial No. 3, Colonial No. 4 (including Star Junction); Filbert, Footedale, Maxwell, Gates (including Palmer and Ralph); Edenborn, Ronco, Leckrone No. 1, Leckrone No. 5, Leckrone Hilltop Mine (including strip plant); Kyle and Trotter. All are Frick mines.

Yesterday's victory of the United Mine Workers' slate at every one of the 14 captive mines where elections were held was sweeping.

The United Mine Workers' slate for District 4 includes:

DISTRICT 5 SLATE

The slate for District 5, which carried the election yesterday, was the same except for the three district officers, President P. T. Fagan, Vice President William Patton and Secretary Treasurer William Hargest.

M'CREADY'S SECOND WIFE TELLS OF 3-DAY COURTSHIP

ELOPED AFTER 'PLAYBOY'S' PLEA

'Didn't Stagger' as He Made First Call, She Testifies

Margaret Heasley McCready, young and pretty divorced wife of Harrison R. (Playboy) McCready, took the stand in Common Pleas Court today and told how, after an intense three-day courtship, she happened to marry the Fox Chapel youth.

She told that she knew McCready 10 or more years ago; that after he divorced Margaret Long, he called her, told her he was lonesome, and asked her to go out with him. She added:

"I told him I would if he wasn't drinking. He came up, and although he had a few drinks, he looked nice, and didn't stagger."

She said that was November 30.

PROPOSED MARRIAGE

He proposed marriage the next night, she testified, after they had been to a dance, telling her he was the "most unhappy boy on earth," that people were taking advantage of him, that he was drinking himself to death, and that he needed her. She added:

"He asked me if I loved him, and I told him that I cared for him, but that it wasn't love.

"He asked if I could learn to love him. I said I could."

By that time, she explained, the taxi had reached her home. McCready ordered it to continue on to his Fox Chapel house, she stated, and went on:

"Then he said, 'Peggy, you said you'd do anything in the world for me. Will you marry me?' I replied 'Yes, I said it and I'll stick to it.'"

She explained first that she would have to consult her people. She had him call them four times. They got her brother, Aaron, and left about 4 o'clock the morning of December 2 for Cumberland.

Charles J. Margiotti, McCready's counsel, asked why they went to Cumberland, and she answered:

"That's where Harry married his first wife."

When they got to the Courthouse, she said, she asked him if he wanted to back out and he answered "no."

And Judge Frank P. Patterson interjected:

"Don't you think this is a good time for us to recess for lunch?"

First taking the stand after counsel had inspected her settlement agreement with McCready, by which he turned $50,000 in property over to her, Mrs. McCready No. 2 held a paper, that might have been her diary.

Her testimony was given in McCready's suit to upset the $150,000 trust fund set up by McCready for his first wife, Mrs. Margaret Long McCready Welfer.

Counsel for both McCready and his first wife questioned Kennedy as to the transfer of property to Wife No. 2, Margaret Heasley McCready.

DIVORCE DISCUSSED

Kennedy explained it was promulgated over the course of a week, and that in the office of the wife's attorney, McCready examined it, page by page, and said he was satisfied. Asked by Attorney O. K. Eaton if divorce was discussed, Kennedy said he thought it was.

Eaton demanded a copy of the settlement and wife No. 2 presented it to the court.

He said he was hired to watch McCready's Fox Chapel mansion while McCready was on the West Coast, often his second wife "backed up a moving van and took out a lot of furniture." Dozens of times McCready called him on the phone during his 17-day trip, he explained, to ask if he was out of bed and still "holding the fort."

Then he stated he was hired for 10 days at $5 per to sleuth on the affairs of the second wife, because McCready thought she was "running around." His job was to stand near her home at the corner of Hays street and Stanton avenue.

LIKED TO ORATE

One of his hardest jobs was to keep McCready from making speeches in public places, he said, adding:

"He had a speech on how prohibition was ruining the country that he always wanted to give. He'd climb up on a platform in the lobby of a hotel and deliver the speech at the top of his voice."

THE OPERATING ROOM IN WHICH RHETA WYNEKOOP, NEARLY NUDE, WAS FOUND DEAD

The little operating room—its only entrances a single door from the physician's office and a high, barred window—in which Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop found the bullet-pierced body of her pretty, young daughter-in-law. These are International News Photograph Service pictures.

RHETA GARDNER WYNEKOOP . . . STRANGELY SHOT TO DEATH

NOTE RELATES SPIRIT 'TALK'

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—An eerie "conversation" held with her husband four years after his death, a "conversation" in the dead of night in the cluttered office next to the operating room in her office-home, where her daughter-in-law was murdered, was recorded in an unfinished latter found today in the desk of Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop.

The letter, dated March 11, was addressed to Dr. George Knapp, of Washington, a close friend of the woman physician's late husband, Dr. Frank Wynekoop.

Relating that she had been listening over the radio to funeral services for Mayor Cermak, of Chicago, the mother-in-law wrote she had "seen" Dr. Knapp and her husband in conversation in the office. Her letter continued:

"So vivid was the scene that after a while I put on my dressing gown and came down to the office and sat and 'talked' with my dead husband for half an hour. That it was nearing 3 o'clock in the morning and I returned to my bed."

CRIPPLE GIVEN 3-YEAR TERM

Peter Hanulik, 32, crippled Slavish club steward of Tarentum, was sentenced to serve from three to six years in the Western Penitentiary by Visiting Judge Norman T. Boose in Criminal Court today.

Hanulik was found guilty of voluntary manslaughter in connection with the shooting to death of his wife, Mary, in the club barroom August 3. He then shot himself causing partial paralysis.

In imposing sentence, Judge Boose said:

"We sicken with disgust at the man who kills the mother of his children.

Weather Conditions.

The low pressure that threatened rain for this section last night is now centered off the Middle Atlantic coast, and another low appears over the plains states, in the form of a trough extending from Hudson Bay southwestward to New Mexico. A center seems to be developing over Central Nebraska. Pressure is high over Eastern Ontario and southwestward over the lake region and the Ohio Valley states to Texas, and high pressure continues over the plateau section. The weather is cloudy over most of the northern portion of the country and light rain or snow occurred during the last 24 hours throughout that section. Temperature changes were not important. They were towards colder over the eastern half of the country and toward warmer over the Rocky Mountain states.

DUGGAN PLEADS FOR NURSE

SANTA CRUZ, Cal., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—The course which the bullet that killed Francis J. M. Grace took through his body was pointed to by the defense today as supporting the story of Frieda Wilhelmina Weltz that the slaying of her former employer was accidental.

John Duggan, Jr., defense attorney from Pittsburgh, Pa., said that if the pistol had been aimed pointblank, the bullet would have taken a direct course through Grace's body, but instead it went upward.

Testifying in her own defense at her trial on a charge of murder, the 43-year-old nurse said the gun discharged as she took it from her purse with the intention of shooting herself because Grace rejected her plea for aid.

District Attorney J. Frank Murphy, who termed as "flimsy" Miss Weltz' statement Grace had wrecked her health by attacking her, said the case will go to the jury before night. He demanded the death penalty.

WIFE ACCUSES C.-I. POLICEMAN

Testifying that her husband frequently beat her, a Wilkinsburg woman today asked Judge Samuel H. Gardner for a divorce from Walter V. Bottom, a coal and iron policeman.

Mrs. Margaret C. Bottom, of 855 Rebecca street, Wilkinsburg, said on one occasion, her husband broke her thumb. She called her Negro maid to testify that Bottom, when told of the injury, shouted:

"Only her thumb? I wish I had broken her neck!"

'StrangeInterlude'Topic Above Slain Girl's Body

By GEORGE C. GALLATI

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—While pretty Rheta Gardiner Wynekoop's murdered body lay undiscovered on an operating table below, the two living occupants of the darkened 16-room Wynekoop mansion were discussing Eugene O'Neill's moody drama, "Strange Interlude."

This was elicited from Dr. Alice Wynekoop, prominent woman physician and civic leader, as police questioned her and a school teacher companion, Miss Enid Hennessey.

Dr. Wynekoop told Police Capt. John Stege that she had sent her daughter-in-law out to a neighborhood food shop and left on a shopping trip herself, returning about 5 p. m.

The young wife was missing when Dr. Wynekoop returned and she began a search of the house, but did not then enter her ground floor office where the body was later discovered, stripped of its clothes and swathed in a blanket.

Dr. Wynekoop then prepared dinner for herself and Miss Hennessey, a roomer at her home.

The subject of their conversation swung to the O'Neill drama of conflicting emotions and personalities, the physician told Capt. Stege. She said:

"I asked her if that was the sort of thing she was showing her students in high school.

"She said, 'No, I bought the book for my own reading.'"

However, Miss Hennessey, under questioning, told a different story of their discussion of the O'Neill drama. Stating that Dr. Wynekoop pressed their analysis of the elements of "Strange Interlude," Miss Hennessey said:

"She insisted on discussing it and its underlying motives. She said it was what people thought and not what they said that counted.

"I told her I was not particularly interested in discussing it."

Cast of Characters In Operating Table Murder Mystery

The victim—Mrs. Rheta Gardner Wynekoop, 23, victim of the mystery slaying which today had police groping for a solution, was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Gardner, widely known and highly reputed family of Indianapolis.

Gardner is a well-to-do flour and salt broker in the Indiana city. His daughter was attractive, auburn-haired, vivacious. Acquaintances said she habitually wore a pleasant smile. She was a talented violinist.

Her husband—Earle J. Wynekoop, 27, husband of the victim is a member of the pioneer Wynekoop family, long prominent in Chicago medical circles. His father was the late Dr. Frank E. Wynekoop, brother of Dr. Charles Wynekoop and Dr. Gilbert H. Wynekoop.

Earle has been employed in various capacities since his marriage, the last known job being at the World's Fair sky ride.

Mother-in-Law—Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, mother-in-law of the victim, has gained an outstanding place in the civic and community life of Chicago.

She was graduated from the Women's Medical School of Northwestern University in 1895. She began immediately the general practice of medicine. She has been a member of the Chicago Political Equality League, the Illinois Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Association, and the Illinois Equal Suffrage League. She was a pioneer in the movement for child hygiene here.

SURGICAL ROOM VICTIM'S MATE SURRENDERS

Slain Girl's Husband Grilled, His Mother Guarded in Home

police arrived at 10 o'clock it is wholly possible that Rheta could have been alive at 7:30 or 8 o'clock that night.

CHEMIST'S EVIDENCE

"The reports from my detectives show that Dr. Thomas Dwyer's analysis (Dr. Dwyer is the Coroner's chemist) of the contents of the stomach show undigested cabbage which formed part of the evening meal which Dr. Alice Wynekoop admits she and Miss Enid Hennessey, the school teacher, partook of at 6 o'clock Tuesday night (the night of the murder.)

"It is my belief that Rheta partook of this same meal probably at the same table with Dr. Wynekoop and Miss Hennessy.

"Dr. Dwyer's findings further show that all of the food in the stomach was virtually undigested and this shows conclusively that she had partaken of it only a short time before she was murdered."

Schoemaker then charged:

"The solution of Rheta's murder lies in the household."

He also charged Miss Hennessey had hampered the police investigation into the case.

It was revealed that a second insurance policy on Rheta's life had been taken out with the Commercial Life Insurance Company for $1,000 with double indemnity, in additiona to the $5,000 policy issued November 11.

At the Coroner's inquest yesterday Dr. Wynekoop denied she knew anything of any life insurance on the life of Rheta.

It was declared today by police that Dr. Wynekoop had made the first premium payment of $5 on the $1,000 policy.

After Earle stepped off a train from Kansas City today he first phone Attorney Stanley Swanstrand and then his mother, who was at her home where the body of his youthful wife was found shot to death.

PHONE CONVERSATION

An officer listening in on the conversation reported the following exchange between mother and son:

"Hello, Ma, this is Earle. I just got off the train; it was an hour late and I've had some trouble getting you."

"How are you Earle? Come home right away. A policeman is waiting for you. He wants to take you to the station and I want to talk to you. We must arrange for the funeral tomorrow. Mr. Gardner (Rheta's father) wants to take the body back to Indianapolis. But I don't think that can be done."

"Neither do I, Ma. I'll be home in 15 minutes."

Earle then boarded a street car and after arriving at his home, he was taken to the Fillmore Street Police Station. There he was immediately closeted with officers who began an exhaustive questioning of the young widower.

DOCTOR GUARDED

Dr. Wynekoop and members of her household, meanwhile, were virtual prisoners in the strange house, scene of the bizarre slaying. Police were on guard and members of the family were forbidden to go into the basement medical quarters, where the victim's body was discovered.

Uncovering new clues, among them three blood stained blankets and a chloroform mask, authorities today grimly questioned members of the musty household of Dr. Wynekoop for a solution of the "operating table" murder.

Discovery of the blood stained blankets and the chloroform mask indicated, Capt. Stege said, that the girl wife had been murdered by someone in whom she had placed complete confidence.

Mrs. Wynekoop had presumably disrobed on the operating table, as though for a medical examination, had the anesthetic applied to her face and then was shot through the heart while under the effects of the drug, Stege asserted.

Investigation disclosed that four other deaths have occurred in the strange Wynekoop household in the last four years.

Dr. Frank Wynekoop, the woman physician's husband, died suddenly in January, 1929.

Next to die was an adopted daughter, Mary Louise, who succumbed last March to an ailment.

Miss Catherine Porter, a spinster-patient whom Dr. Alice Wynekoop had been treating, died later. She and the woman physician had shared a $2,000 bank account.

Then came the death of the 85-year-old father of Miss Enid Hennessey, a school teacher. Both were residents of the house.

PRISON RIOTERS WRECK CELLS, DEFY GUARDS

Pinchot Pledges Probe Of Eastern Pen Disorders

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3.—Exhausted after a night of bedlam during which they wrecked a cell block where they had been segregated, the 92 prisoners held as ringleaders of Tuesday afternoon's riot at the Eastern Penitentiary became quiet early today.

A thorough inquiry into the rioting that has been prevalent at the penitentiary since last September was begun by Gov. Gifford Pinchot.

Pinchot set up a board of inquiry of three members to investigate thoroughly the causes and remedies for the unrest. In a telegram to Louis N. Robinson, whom the Chief Executive recently named president of the prison board after ousting Henry N. Woolman, Pinchot asked him to act with Edwin C. May and Maj. Lynn G. Adams in making the inquiry.

May is president of the board of Western Penitentiary and Adams is superintendent of the State Police.

Although reports persisted that several convicts had been seriously injured or wounded in Tuesday's outbreak, Warden Herbert J. (Hard-Boiled) Smith denied them.

The convicts in Cell Block 14 last night smashed their wash basins, ripped out heating and plumbing pipes and wrecked the furniture. For hours they beat a mad tattoo on the bars of their cells with broken sections of pipe, raising a clamor that was heard over the walls.

Vacant until now because of the lack of guards, the cell block was patrolled by 12 state policemen and as many state highway patrolmen.

Before the water could be turned off, streams from the broken pipes threatened to flood the cells. Some of the prisoners narrowly escaped being scalded as they ripped out steam pipes.

MYSTERY NOTE CLOUDS DEATH

Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—The authorities were at a loss today to interpret the real meaning of an unsigned and unsent letter written by Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop to her son, Earle, husband of pretty 23-year-old Rheta Gardner Wynekopp, found mysteriously murdered in her mother-in-law's operating room.

Not until mother and son, between whom there appears to be a powerful attachment, come face to face before the investigators of the crime, will full meaning of the mystery letter be known to the authorities.

It was found in the physician's room in the house of mystery, where the young girl and four other persons had died during the last four years. Written two nights before the murder, the unsent note said:

"Precious, I'm choked. You are gone—you have called me up—and after 10 minutes or so I called and called. No answer. Maybe you are sleeping. You need to be, but I want to hear your voice again. Tonight — I would give anything I have to spend an hour in real talk with you tonight—and I cannot—Good night."

When Dr. Wynekoop was questioned about the letter she said it was merely an "overly affectionate" note, explaining:

"He was a little discouraged and I thought I might cheer him up. But I decided, on second thought, not to send it."

THIEF KILLS DOG, LOOTS STORE

For four years "Bobby," a German police dog, kept all intruders away from the Bloomfield Market at 2138 Wylie avenue. Last night "Bobby's" vigil was unsuccessful. He was found this morning, dead, with his skull fractured in front of the store.

No one knows just what happened or how the thief, who stole $50 worth of cigarets and tobacco, killed "Bobby." Outside of his owner, Benjamin Bloomfield, and a few members of the family, he refused to make friends with anyone.

Airmen to Scatter Roses Over Suicide's Sea Grave

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—The boys at the municipal airport today planned an airman's tribute to Louise Turck Stanton, who took off Tuesday and headed out over the Atlantic with only four hours' gas.

They were to scatter roses over the ocean tomorrow.

It was at Municipal Field two years ago that Louise Turck, then 28, met Gordon Stanton. The two married and much of their time was spent at the airport. Mrs. Stanton, 100 hours solo to her credit, gained one of the extremely few "special dispensation" Department of Commerce pilots' licenses.

Two weeks ago her husband was killed in an automobile accident.

After her flight to the east yesterday, suicide notes were discovered, but too late for pursuit. She had written:

"I'm just going out into space to find out what's it all about, and if there isn't anything—well that's O. K., too."

Lindys to Fly Atlantic By Way of Africa

HORTA, Azores, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who with Mrs. Lindbergh left here today in their big monoplane, said shortly before the takeoff that he planned to return to America by way of Cape Verde, Africa. Col. Lindbergh said:

"We contemplate reaching the American continent by way of St. Michael Island, Madeira, Lisbon and Cape Verde."

The route to America by way of Cape Verde already is being flown by the German foreign air line company Lufthansa. That company uses a base steamer, the Westfalen, which is kept in position midway between Africa and South America to serve as a base for trans-Atlantic airmail flights.

Cape Verde is the westernmost projectory of Africa on the Atlantic Ocean, slightly less than 2,000 miles from Natal, Brazil, the western terminus of the Lufthansa route.

ROOSEVELT'S MONEY POLICY STANDS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Paying little outward heed to the vehement controversy over monetary policy, the administration proceeded with its gold program today, holding the price of domestic price of the metal at the same level as yesterday.

The quotation was $33.76 per ounce. Meanwhile, the world price was $33.96 at the opening London foreign exchange quotation of $5.40½ to the pound. The dollar later improved, carrying the London gold quotation down to $33.80.

Acting Secretary Morgenthau made ready to travel to Warm Springs, Ga., where he will review the steps thus far taken with the President and make plans for future operations.

BANKERS' OPPOSITION

Neither he nor members of the Federal Reserve Board would comment upon the action of the Federal Advisory Council in ordering a statement of attitute on the gold program prepared for private distribution among member banks.

The council, which in the past has not hesitated to speak its own mind, has no official governmental status. It consists of members chosen from the various Federal Reserve districts, who meet in Washington from time to time to exchange the views of the various sections of the nation on business and monetary conditions.

Meanwhile, Attorney General Cummings said today he has not been asked to rule on whether Morgenthau, officially Undersecretary of the Treasury, but actually Acting Secretary, is ex officio chairman of the Federal Reserve Board. He expects a request for such a ruling shortly. Just wh is raising the question was not made clear.

An assertoin that the federal credit is "solid as the Rock of Gibraltar" was Acting Secretary Morgenthau's reply to assertions that it is threatened with collapse by the administration monetary program.

He made this assertion in replying to contentions that the weakness in government bond prices was attributable to depreciation of the dollar abroad through the gold buying plan.

This opinion had been expressed by Dr. O. M. W. Sprague in resigning Tuesday as special financial adviser to the Treasury.

FIGHTING 'POWERFUL'

Some consideration was given here to President Roosevelt's speech last night in which he talked of fighting the "powerful," the "intolerant" and the "obstinate" for "the things which we believe to be right."

There were intimations at Warm Springs that steps would be taken soon to aid silver.

Morgenthau disclosed that money deposited with the Treasury from postal savings, farm credit administration, federal deposit insurance and debt sinking fund sources was being used to buy governments, supporting their price.

The law specifies that this money be invested in government securities. That will be done through the Federal Reserve Bank in New York.

Roosevelt Goes Ahead With Dollar Program

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt went ahead today in fighting words with his recovery campaign and more particularly his dollar revaluation program.

He stood upon the words given over the air last night to the Maryland tercentenary, in which he said:

"May we, in our own fights for things which we know to be right, fight as ably and as successfully as he (Lord Baltimore) did 300 years ago.

"For we have our own fights to wage, not against the same foe which he beat down, but against other foes just as obstinate and just as powerful and just as intolerant of things we fight for today."

Going straight ahead with his monetary program, the President will talk things over with Acting Secretary Morgenthau, of the Treasury, over the week-end.

Sprague's Resignation—By JULIUS G. BERENS

American economic advisor to the Bank of England, are in strange agreement on "what England must and will do."

Both, mind, are of that orthodox school which believes in the super-efficiency of the inflexible gold standard.

Yet we find that during Professor Sprague's tenure of office as economic advisor to the Bank of England, that country decides, or is forced, to abandon the gold standard.

That step was taken FOR THE GOOD OF ENGLAND.

This was September, 1931. Professor Sprague didn't then desert the Bank of England because of the gold abandonment. He stayed on his job all through 1932.

HE OBSERVED THAT THE BANK OF ENGLAND PROCEEDED WITH A GOLD MANIPULATION WHICH IS DUPLICATED IN THE POLICY PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT NOW IS CONDUCTING FOR THE UNITED STATES.

The Bank of England manipulated the price of gold so that the pound, the money of England, was forced down to a substantial discount from gold. This was DELIBERATE POLICY on the part of the Bank of England.

Professor Sprague issued nary a squeak of protest against the Bank of England program to lift the price of gold.

THE British SUCCEEDED in stemming the downward swing of THEIR prices. Their commodity prices stopped dropping as soon as England abandoned gold—or, rather, as soon as England manipulated the price of gold upward, as soon as the pound's gold value began to shrink.

Meanwhile, American prices continued their slump.

IT WAS NOT UNTIL WE ABANDONED THE FIXED GOLD STANDARD AFTER PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S ELECTION THAT OUR PRICES STARTED TO RISE.

But is Professor Sprague satisfied with the American program?

He is not.

He would have put a HALT to the whole procedure in the early summer during the international economic conference at London.

He would have stabilized the dollar to the English pound in a ratio then prevailing, about 3½ to 1. This was a distinctly pro-English act by an American who had been appointed special economic advisor to the AMERICAN Treasury.

President Roosevelt wisely escaped the noose which would have tightened around the United States if he had accepted the recommendations of the Professor who had been impregnated with ENGLAND'S NEEDS.

From that time on President Roosevelt ignored Professor Sprague.

Now the Professor is peeved, insulted, disappointed, etc., over our program, which in his vision means ruin, destruction, oblivion for the American economy.

Yet we are doing only what England, France, Italy, Australia, Japan, Sweden and a long list of other countries have done or are all doing for the same purpose; first stemming the decline in commodity prices, then advancing them according to the needs of their specific peoples.

PROFESSOR SPRAGUE, trained in the excessively orthodox school of banking, molded by his contacts with the type of international bankers represented by the British fiscal agents in the United States, hired frequently by them to make surveys, is unalterably opposed to the President's policy.

In his bitterly denunciatory letter of resignation, Professor Sprague is giving vent to the thoughts and hopes of that element of the banking fraternity which has fought every progressive step of the President.

He is the spearhead at the moment of the whole drive of the banking community to destroy the President's program.

The real driving forces of this attack dare not show themselves. They have been hopelessly discredited by events over the past few years and by the thorough dishonesty of their methods as exposed by the Senate.

Still they persist in claiming intelligence sufficient to bring us out of the depression.

THEY WOULD have us rely on the same old methods that brought the nation into the economic calamity.

This will not do—and President Roosevelt seems well aware of it.

The President has wisely determined to follow out his own monetary program, that of manipulating the price of gold until commodity prices are in agreement with the vast burden of debt and the employment requirements of the country.

The Hearst papers are in thorough accord with this policy.

But they urge the President to rush his program so that the business community may know as soon as possible how far the dollar devaluation will go.

The Hearst papers reiterate their belief that a 50 per cent devaluation will bring the desired results.

Sprague Forecasts Issue of Greenbacks

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—The Evening Post today quotes Dr. O. M. W. Skrague, who resigned Tuesday as special assistant to the Secretary of the Treasury, as declaring the present monetary policy of the United States" can end only in the issue of greenbacks, unless it is altered at once." He was quoted as saying:

"The mistaken emphasis on monetary measures to improve conditions will fail to work. When that failure comes the President, a man of no monetary principles, will seek to correct his mistakes by further monetary measures and there is only one left—the printing of greenbacks."

Wife Can't Be Boss Granted Divorce

RHINELANDER, Wis., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Believing a divorce might be averted, Mrs. Minnie Wright, Tomahawk, several months ago obtained a formal court order declaring she was boss in the home.

The experiment ended this week. Mrs. Wright told the Judge her husband, Loveless Wright, "sulked" almost continuously. She was granted a divorce.

U. S. BOND DROP UNDER PROBE

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—The New York Federal Reserve Bank has begun a close examination of operations in United States government securities to determine how much, if any, of the recent selling has come from speculators seeking profits on the short side, it was learned today.

A questionnaire has been sent by the Reserve bank to all member banks of the district requesting a detailed account of the holdings of "governments" on each day since the decline began late last month. Data as to transactions that would lead to disclosure of liquidation or short selling from any source are required by the questionnaire.

The Reserve bank's decision was due, it was said in banking circles, to the large increase in the volume of dealings during the past three weeks and to suggestions in some quarters that the weakness of the bonds might have been due in some measure to "bear" selling.

It was understood the Reserve authorities did not believe that the results of the questionnaire would turn up evidence of any widespread short selling of the government's securities. On the contrary, informed banking sources were of the opinion that the recent decline in prices would be shown to have resulted from "long" selling or liquidation operations with speculative short dealings a negligible factor.

'BLIND' POLICY LAID TO U. S.

Universal Service.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—Sir Arthur Michael Samuel, British economist and Conservative party member of the House of Commons, in a special article for the Daily Telegraph today, states:

"The economists directing United States policy are the blind leading the blind. They do not know where they are going, do not know what they have done, and do not know what future reactions will be to what they have done."

Sir Arthur sees contradictory methods at work in the Roosevelt administration's policy and declares that the NRA policies of Gen. Johnson are based on economic principles employed in Soviet Russia.

TREASURY 'GAG' MODIFIED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Acting Secretary Morgenthau last night modified his order forbidding Treasury officials to give information to the press to allow them to divulge factual data but specified that under no circumstances were they to answer questions even remotely dealing with matters of policy.

Originally, Morgenthau's "Treasury Department order No. 1" forbade department officials giving to correspondents any information of any nature. The modification is intended to permit them to give out statistics and facts, but no interpretations.

The chief of each division will be held personally responsible for whatever is told to newspapers regarding the activities of his division.

Morganthau agreed that it might in some cases prove difficult to separate fact from policy and said that in cases of doubt the official should ask his assistant, Herbert Gaston.

MISSION AGAIN TO GLADDEN CHILDREN

Old Santa whisks down the chimney and stuffs stockings full of gifts in many homes, but this year, as always, there are a lot of homes where the family is still living in the shadow of hard times. The Welfare Fund provides food and clothing, but there isn't much left to go in the Christmas stockings..

Here is where Pittsburghers get their chance to play Santa Claus! This year again, the Pittsburgh Toy Mission is making ready to supply toys for more than 20,000 children—as many as last year.

With the help of schools, churches, the Boy Scouts, and other organizations in collecting toys, the mission's headquarters will open soon at 100 Wood street, according to George L. Bond, who founded the enterprise 40 years ago.

Ever since last Christmas, Bond and an enthusiastic band of volunteer helpers, like Santa's own gnomes, have been working to repair old toys and to make a supply of new ones. At their headquarters they hope to receive gifts of thousands more toys. If damaged, they will be repaired.

They already have 1,000 wooden carts, 125 dozen dolls and a large number of little wooden dressers complete with real mirrors to give to little girls this season.

BELLEVUE GAS STAND BALKED

Judge James H. Gray, who heard reargument on the application of William B. Rodgers to construct a gasoline station at the entrance to Bellevue has again sustained borough authorities in refusing a permit.

Judge Gray pointed out Rodgers was granted a permit for a filling station, but upheld the attitude of the building inspector and the Zoning Board of Adjustment, in denying the second application, because of the traffic hazard at the point. The judge said:

"If we were to offer advice, we would be disposed to suggest that the borough council determine whether or not a commercial district should be established at the entrance of the borough."

LEAGUE SHUNS PARADE PART

Robert Lieberman, chairman of the Unemployed Citizens' League of Allegheny County, today denied the organization has any connection with a parade of jobless through downtown streets next Tuesday.

Denouncing use of the league's name as co-sponsor of the demonstration, termed a "pre-Thanksgiving march against hunger," Lieberman said:

"Those responsible for using the name of the league are either impostors or individual members who have never been authorized to act in behalf of the league.

"It is nothing more than an attempt to confuse members into believing that this is an official act of the league itself."

The denial followed distribution of posters announcing the parade and listing sponsoring organizations as a joint action committee of the Unemployed Councils, members of the league and 30 labor groups.

BIRTH REPORT ASSAILED

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—A recent report on maternity mortality was criticized by Oscar R. Gottfried, executive secretary of the Association of Private Hospitals, Inc., today as unfair to physicians and hospitals, especially private or proprietary hospitals.

The report, issued under the auspices of the Academy of Medicine, covered the results of a survey financed by the commonwealth fund.

Gottfried expressed particular objection to an assertion in the report that accurate data could not be obtained from the proprietary hospitals. Gottfried said no effort was made to obtain the data.

The figures show, he said, that the 14 private hospitals belonging to the association have had 10,377 births in the last two years and 36 deaths, or a rate of 3.45 deaths per 1,000. The mortality rate for public hospitals as given in the report, he said, was 4.5 per 1,000, while the rate for maternity cases handled in the home was 1.9.

Gun Battle Ends Holdups by Pair

HAMILTON, O., Nov. 23.—(INS.)—A running gun battle with police following the robbery of two chain stores here today brought an abrupt end to the "easy money" ambitions of two Indiana youths.

The youths, who gave their names as Howard Brown, 20, of Elwood, Ind., and Lloyd Leever, 27, of Anderson, Ind., were captured shortly after they had abandoned their automobile when police succeeded in shooting a tire of the machine following a long chase.

SMITH URGES STATE CRIME COMMISSION

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—Suggestions that a state committee of experts — instead of judges — handle major crimes involving juveniles and that the state conduct advertising campaigns against crime were put forward by former Gov. Alfred E. Smith who appeared today at a hearing of the United States Senate Committee on Crime Control.

Leaders in education, sociology and religion, representing more than 200 national organizations, attended the hearing. Senator Royal S. Copeland is chairman of the committee.

REPLACE JUDGES

Former Gov. Smith said he recommended putting the youthful criminal into the hands of a state commission made up of highly paid experts. He declared:

"It may be the boy criminal shouldn't go to prison at all. It might be he should go to a home for mentally defectives. In his particular case prison might not do him any good. Quite likely he is a mental case.

"In fact, the system I suggest could apply to all criminals. Of course this would mean the taking away of the power of sentencing from the judges."

URGES 'AD' DRIVE

Smith declared that the state does not seek revenge against the criminal and contended that the present system is not a deterrent to crime. He also suggested simplification of the machinery of justice.

Advocating advertising campaigns against crime he pointed out that the law says that all persons connected with a murder which is committed in the process of the commission of a felony are adjudged equally guilty.

He asked:

"How many people know this?"

The answer is "advertise," he said, so that the public would be fully acquainted with the law applying to various crimes.

RALLY TO HONOR JOHN HANSON

A memorial mass meeting, honoring John Hanson, first President of the United States in Congress Assembled, will be held at the Bethel Lutheran Church, Fourth and Mills streets, Braddock, tonight under the auspices of the Swedish Central Committee of Allegheny County. Attorney C. Hale Sipe, of Butler, will speak.

Hanson, first President under our first constitution, "Articles of Confederation," was born in Mulberry Grove, Md., in 1720, and died 150 years ago. He was the grandson of a John Hanson, who left Sweden for the New Sweden Colony in 1642 with John Printz, first governor of the colony. The colony later was divided into four states, Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

Pitt Seismograph Records 4 Quakes

Four separate earthquakes within 15 minutes were recorded on the seismograph at the University of Pittsburgh last night, it was announced.

They were believed to be an aftermath of shocks recorded the night before in the vicinity of Baffin Bay, about 2,300 miles north of Pittsburgh. It was estimated that those recorded last night were more than 7,000 miles distant.

Today

ties found her note, and started to hunt for her, uselessly. She wrote to the airport manager that she had taken enough gas to get out of reach of searching parties.

"There is not a plane on the field that can reach me and return. I will be at sea, that's all, and you can count on me that the job will be thorough, I don't want any wreckage found."

A young woman with that inquiring mind and flying ability should have remained alive, to do useful work.

THE GOVERNMENT has ordered 104 powerful anti-aircraft searchlights, expected to send their sweeping beams 100 miles in every direction. These searchlights, costing more than two million dollars, producing 800,000,000 candle power, will be useful in locating enemy planes, flying over.

But you cannot destroy a plane with light beams. The country also needs fast pursuit planes to send after enemy planes, and plenty of them.

We are behind other great nations now in the air, and if we wait until somebody from Asia or Europe actually sends planes against us, it will be too late.

We don't do things very well, in a hurry, as witness our hundreds of ships that never went to sea, and hundreds of millions' worth of suddenly-built war-time flying machines that could not fly.

GERMAN BLDG. IN RADIO CITY DEBATED

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Above a hole in the ground in Rockefeller Center there hovered today a large question mark.

Steam shovels powered by the millions of the Rockefeller family, have been busily excavating at Fifth avenue and Fifty-first street for the foundations of a majestic building—a building which will house nobody knows what.

Once—months ago—it was announced as the proposed German Building, a structure devoted to various German interests in this country. Today representatives of Rockefeller Center—gigantic amusement and business enterprise—disclosed that they do not know yet who will occupy it.

ROCKEFELLER ADVISED

Talk was heard that developments in Germany had prompted a New Yorker, who formerly held a high diplomatic post to advise John D. Rockefeller, Jr. against having a German building in the Center and that Rockefeller had heeded the advice, but this met with no confirmation from the Rockefeller interests or from the former diplomat.

Reports that the anti-semitism of the Nazi regime, with its attendant repercussions among New York's huge Jewish population, had a bearing on the present undecided state of the negotiations concerning the building brought only disclaimers of any knowledge.

CONSUL SILENT

Hans Borchers, German Consul General, declined comment. In German circles it was said merely that whether or not German interests will occupy the building was an "open question."

Merle Crowell, a representative of Rockefeller Center, said:

"The situation in regard to the building has for a long time been indeterminate. There was considerable discussion with German interests regarding it, and it was referred to once or twice as the proposed German building. At present, however, we do not know who is going to occupy it."

He explained that "a lot of business interests representing various countries want to locate in Rockefeller Center. There have been discussions and negotiations with 37 groups from various countries."

RUSSIA AGREES TO PAYMENT

By KINGSBURY SMITH
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—Soviet Russia has tentatively agreed to make a cash payment to the United States in connection with both the American debt and damage claims.

This was learned today as Maxim Litvinoff, the Soviet foreign commissar, prepared to depart for Moscow.

The amount of money which the Soviets have agreed to pay and the method in which it will be paid was withheld pending a final understanding through diplomatic channels.

The payment probably will be made in dollars and American quarters feel it will be satisfactory to this government.

The amount which will be offered in connection with the $187,000,000 Kerensky debt will be submitted to Congress for its approval. The remainder will be an understanding between President Roosevelt and the Soviet government.

Mussolini Invites Litvinoff to Parley

LONDON, Nov. 23.—(INS.)—Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy, [illegible]ted the Soviet foreign [illegible] Maxim Litvinoff, to go [illegible] for a conference at which [illegible] will attempt to act as mediator between Russia and Germany, according to reports in well informed circles today.

It was said Litvinoff was expected in Italy the first week in December, and that Mussolini would again attempt to settle the outstanding differences between the Soviet and Hitler governments.

U. S. Envoy Calls At Soviet Embassy

BERLIN, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—United States Ambassador William E. Dodd today became the first American Ambassador since the World War to enter the portals of the Czarist Embassy, now housing the Soviet diplomat.

The call later was returned by the Russian Ambassador to Berlin, Leo Chinchuk, in customary diplomatic fashion.

ITALY HOPEFUL OF ARMS PACT

ROME, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—The Italian government's confidence that collaboration among the big powers can produce a world disarmament agreement was stated in an official communique today.

The communique was issued to express the government's approval of the disarmament conference's adjournment at Geneva yesterday in order to leave further negotiations to direct diplomatic channels.

The communique said:

"Italian responsible circles reconfirm their confidence in collaboration of the big powers for an agreement to be submitted afterwards to the disarmament conference.

"Italy, pursuing the line she has consistently followed, is ready now as before to devote all her efforts to reach an accord which will be an expression of a policy of effective collaboration among all these states."

Indian Fighter Dies; Carried Key to Grave

BLAIR, Neb., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Philip R. (Parson Bob) Landon, Indian fighter and plainsman, said he carried the key to his burial plot in his pocket, but hoped the lock would grow rusty before there would be need to use the key.

The 87-year-old plainsman-preacher, who was raised by an Indian tribe, was found dead in his guest room at Dana College here yesterday. The key was in his pocket.

Landon, member of the National Boy Scout Council, will be buried at the foot of a memorial near Edgard, Neb. Around it is an iron fence with one gate. It was the key to that gate that he carried with him.

FALL OF FRENCH CABINET NEAR

PARIS, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Premier Albert Sarraut began a fight for the life of his cabinet in the Chamber of Deputies today with the odds against him on his program to save the franc.

As resumption of debate neared, the prediction was voiced in the lobbies that the government would fall before night.

Mrs. Sinclair Lewis Sees Hitler Triumph

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Mrs. Sinclair Lewis, wife of the Nobel prize winner, thinks Hitler will survive but "because he inherited a progressive nation and not because of what he is doing with it."

Addressing the Republican Women of Pennsylvania, [illegible]mer Dorothy Thompson said Hitler's rise to power was "dependent on an insidious propaganda program."

OUTLAW, WIFE ESCAPE TRAP

GRAND PRAIRIE, Tex., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Clyde Champion Barrow, notorious Dallas desperado, and his wife, Bonnie Parker, shot their way out of an officers' trap near Grand Prairie last night and escaped after wounding two Fort Worth men whose car they commandeered.

Sheriff R. A. Schmid, of Dallas, who identified the outlaws, believes both may have been wounded.

The Sheriff and three deputies lying in wait in a ditch on a new highway, recognized the Barrows upon the approach of their car. The officers opened fire with machine guns. Barrow returned the fire, Sheriff Schmid said, and fled.

Meanwhile, Paul Reich and T. R. James, attorney, driving to Fort Worth from Dallas, were wounded by a shotgun charge as Barrow speeded alongside. The Barrows took the Fort Worth men's car and went on.

The abandoned Barrow car was found to have been hit by 13 bullets on the driver's side. Its glass was shattered. Large splotches of blood were on the floor.

The Rev. S. M. Mlinarovich, of East Chicago, Ind., was re-elected president of the National Catholic Slovak Federation of America at the final session of their twenty-second annual convention in the Fort Pitt Hotel yesterday.

Father Clement Hrtanek, of Homestead, was named supreme chaplain of the federation, in addition to being its honorary president. Honorary chaplains include the Right Rev. Gregor Vaniscak, of Cleveland; Msgr. Victor Blahunka, of Chicago; Msgr. Steffan Krasula, N. Y., and Msgr. John Sobota, of Wilkes-Barre.

The main discussion, following the election yesterday, centered on the proposed law on dissolving political parties which, if accepted, will go into effect in Czechoslovakia January 1.

BANDIT'S WIDOW AND GANG HELD

KENOSHA, Wis., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—A 17-year-old widow and five other persons, one a girl of the same age, seized when officers shot and killed the former's husband of an hour, were charged by Kenosha County authorities today with a series of robberies and holdups.

All were captured last night after officers surprised them at a filling station and Walter Bergman, 21, of West Allis, Wis., the bridegroom, was slain after he shot and wounded Paul Cheney, 21, the filling station attendant.

Later Sheriff Clarence Ericksen said some of those in custody had confessed to an unsuccessful attempt to rob a bank at Manchester, Ia., and to at least seven thefts, robberies and burglaries in Wisconsin.

Those held are Alice Pluta, 17, who was married to Bergman at Waukegan, Ill., an hour before the shootings; Jerry Schnomier, 21, and his wife, Hazel, 17, Chicago; Joseph Miezejewski, 20, Milwaukee; Don Donovan, 21, La Garge, Wis., and Sterling Hart, 20, Chicago.

GIRL CRIPPLE GETS AID

Universal Service.

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 23.—On the third anniversary of the day a cruel fate struck her down in the first flush of childhood, Kathryn Murphy, of Worcester, Mass., arrived yesterday to take infantile paralysis treatments she first learned of from President Roosevelt.

Accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Frederick J. Murphy, 7-year-old Kathryn, chubby and red-cheeked, alighted from a train to become one of the jovial family at the foundation which owes its being to the President.

In shy and childish phrases she told the story of her first meeting with the President. It was during the presidential campaign. He was driving through Worcester and Kathryn was standing, supported by her mother, in the crowd at Kelley Square to see him pass. Mrs. Murphy said:

"He stopped right there to talk to Kathryn and we spoke of this settlement for crippled children he founded. I told him I would like to take Kathryn there."

The dream of the Murphys has come true at last.

SETTLE'S MARK 61,237 FEET

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—A calibration of the barograph carried by Lieut. Com. Settle in his stratosphere flight showed the balloonists had ascended 61,237 feet.

The National Aeronautic Association, in announcing the figure, said it would be forwarded to the Federation Aeronautique Internationale as a new world height record.

Ray Cooper, of the NAA, said that although the Soviet stratosphere balloonists had claimed a height of more than 62,000 feet, the U. S. S. R. was not a member of the Federation Aeronautique Internationale and that no official proof of their height was held by that international organization.

Officially, Cooper said, the 53,153 feet ascended by Auguste Piccard, the Belgian scientist, had stood as the world record.

The ceiling reached by Settle and Maj. Chester L. Fordney was a distinct surprise to officials here. Both Settle and Fordney told newsmen the visible gauge on their barograph had indicated a height of around 59,000 feet.

GROUP TO HEAR TALK ON HITLER

Prof. Arnold J. Toynbee, of the University of London, will speak on "The Hitler Government from the Viewpoint of Other Nations" at a dinner of the Foreign Policy Association in the William Penn Hotel Monday night. Last summer Prof. Toynbee visited Germany to observe the workings of the revolution in that country, leaving in August to attend the British Commonwealth of Nations Conference in Toronto.

Prof. Toynbee

Dr. Frederick Konrad Kruger, of Wittenberg College, also will speak, and Dr. Thomas S. Baker, of Carnegie Institute of Technology, will preside.

WOMAN SHOOTS AT MEMORIAL

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Mrs. Honore Cecelia Bowlby-Gledhill, daughter of an English admiral and kin of British nobility, was under a 30-day suspended sentence today for having fired a pistol at the new Coit Memorial Tower

Artistic controversy has raged for months about the tower on historic Telegraph Hill. It was built from a bequest left the city by the late Mrs. Lillie Hitchcock Coit, who was a firemen's mascot as a little girl and wanted to leave a monument to them.

The hill's Bohemian Colony has voiced biting criticism of the tall shaft overlooking the bay.

Mrs. Gledhill, proprietor of the "Dead Fish Cafe" and wife of Keith Gledhill, the tennis star, expressed her disapproval with a pistol the other night, and was arrested. A patrol driver, Robert Sullivan, testified she had been drinking but "not to excess."

STOMACH UPSET

Get at the real cause. That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets help arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, people rarely suffer from indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Try Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound. Know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain. All druggists, 15c, 30c and 60c.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like.

Youth Lays Stab Wound to Robed Figure

OAKLAND, Cal., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—To the story of Norman McArthur, 17, that he was stabbed by a figure in a flowing white gown and black veil while he was on a hill watching the moon and Venus, police gave strict attention here.

A gash in McArthur's neck, which physicians had closed with four stitches, supported his contention he had been stabbed. But the mysterious veiled figure, which Miss Inez Olson, 16, who was with McArthur, said she also saw, puzzled the police no end.

'GHOSTS' HAUNT WAXEY'S TRIAL

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—The ghosts of men who "died suddenly" haunted the income tax trial of Waxey Gordon, millionaire beer baron, today.

Thomas E. Dewey, 31, United States attorney, merely mentioned that five men had "died suddenly" during the inquiry. Murders have no part in this trial. The government's demand against Waxey, beer baron, is for tax payments of more than $1,000,000.

But Helen Dembeck, who ran a lunch counter near the Eureka Brewery in Paterson, was not acquainted with the amenities of the trial.

Dewey asked her when "Bug" Donovan, who ran a brewery before Waxey, had stopped coming into her lunchroom. He was seeking to establish a date in the brewery's change of ownership. The girl answered:

"When he was killed."

Defense counsel objected and the answer was stricken out.

Waxey sat impassive through all of the testimony but joined in a laugh occasionally.

MYSTERY SHOT KILLS BRIDE

International News Service.

HALIFAX, N. S., Nov. 23.—Mrs. William Wilkinson, 37-year-old English-born bride of a Canadian captain, was mysteriously slain at Glace Bay, N. S., today. She was shot through the head with a bullet from a hunting rifle.

At 5 a. m. Mrs. Wilkinson, barefooted and clad only in her night clothing, fled to the home of a neighbor.

The blinds were drawn, but as she passed a lighted window a bullet crashed through the glass. It struck her below the eye, went through her head and she fell dead.

Best Remedy for Cough Is Easily Mixed at Home

No Cooking! No Work! Real Saving!

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in more homes than any other cough remedy, because it gives more prompt, positive relief. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Syrup is easily made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. This gives you four times as much cough medicine for your money, and it's a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes fine.

Instantly you feel its penetrating effect. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm, clears the air passages, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief in severe coughs.

PINCHOT LIQUOR CONTROL BILLS SPEEDED

sent will be required to read the bill immediately the first time. If obstructionists refuse to yield, the rules in the House will be suspended to take up the bill. That will make possible final passage the day before Thanksgiving.

SPEED DEMANDED

Mr. Pinchot and the Republican leaders are insistent that the bills shall be passed before the holiday, otherwise it would be December 4—the day before repeal—before the control board could begin to function.

A. Marshall Thompson, of Pittsburgh; Robert S. Gawthrop, of Westchester, and Thomas W. Phillips, of Butler—the three men to be appointed to the board—will be the Governor's guests tomorrow at luncheon in the executive mansion. Mr. Pinchot is proceeding on the assumption that Mr. Phillips will accept appointment, despite his initial refusal.

Attorney General William A. Schnader and other state officials will meet with the prospective appointees and informally discuss organization of the board. The Department of Revenue already has license forms ready, and it is understood some applications already have been received.

FLOOR TAX PASSED

Meanwhile the Governor has in his favor the bill imposing a floor tax of $2 a gallon on liquor already manufactured, and which he hoped would yield $25,000,000 for his social legislation program. The bill was passed as amended by the Senate last night and immediately concurred in by the House with a perfunctory roll call.

The Governor signed it immediately, and dispatched state police to guard all roads over which liquor might be shipped out of the state to avoid the tax.

The Senate intends to amend the stores bill re-imposing restrictions on clubs which were in the measure when introduced by Representative James H. McClure. As changed in the House yesterday, clubs were relieved of the restrictions placed on hotels and restaurants.

The Witkin bill, imposing a dollar a gallon tax on liquor manufactured after repeal will be on final passage in the House next week. The expectation is that it will be approved immediately, shunted to the Senate, and approved there before Thanksgiving Day.

DEMOCRATS SPLIT

The Pinchot-Regular Republican organization steam roller is moving so smoothly on liquor that almost anything the Governor wants will be okayed.

Yesterday's states stores bill vote was significant chiefly because it indicated a complete split in the Democratic party, and an inability by Joseph F. Guffey and David L. Lawrence to put their plans across. Successful in having Mr. Thompson named to the liquor board, they hoped to swing the majority of the Democrats to the stores bill.

But 36 Democrats voted against the bill, and only 29 in the affirmative. The 36 Democrats joined to 25 Republicans to make up the 61 opponents. Only Representatives Steedle and Scorza voted against the measure from Allegheny County.

DEAN A. MARSHALL THOMPSON . . . . HE ACCEPTS THE JOB

PHILLIPS TURNS DOWN RUM JOB

Thomas W. Phillips, of Butler, reiterated today his emphatic announcement that he would not accept an appointment to Gov. Pinchot's Liquor Control Board.

Phillips made this statement after he had been told that Gov. Pinchot had insisted on his acceptance.

A. Marshall Thompson, dean of the Pitt Law School and defeated Democratic nominee for the bench in the last election, accepted the post. The quiet, reserved dean, long a pronounced dry, said:

"I in no way solicited the appointment . . . I do not know a great deal about it. I approve, however, of state-controlled stores and a divertisment of the profits into worthwhile channels."

At 61, Dean Thompson has taught at Pitt for 30 years.

State Private Bank Control Proposed

HARRISBURG, Nov. 23.—(INS.)—Another attempt to bring private banks under the control of the State Banking Department was made when Senator John C. Homsher, Lancaster, introduced two bills in the upper chamber today.

The bills would place private banks under the jurisdiction of the Banking Department and authorize the Secretary of Banking to make advance payments to depositors of closed banks before going into court for permission to pay a dividend.

RITCHIE MAPS LIQUOR PLANS

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie today asked the Maryland Legislature to vote a low, single tax on the sale of beer and natural wines, and a higher and double tax on hard liquor.

The Governor also recommended legislation which would allow the drink-by-drink sale of all liquors in public places to be designated as "taverns."

Ritchie made his recommendation in a message personally delivered at a joint meeting of both houses of the Legislature, shortly after the General Assembly had convened in special session.

The major taxation feature of the Governor's hard liquor control program was a $1.10 a gallon excise tax on hard liquor and fortified and sparkling wines—the money to go into the state treasury and to be used, for the most part, to the reduction of debt.

Church Club Fetes Rabbi Goldenson

Rabbi Samuel H. Goldenson, recently called as pastor of the largest Jewish congregation in the country, Temple Emanu-El, in New York, will be the guest of honor and a speaker at the season's first meeting of the Church Club of the Catholic Diocese of Pittsburgh at McCreery's Dining Room, tonight.

Lieut. A. H. Burton, United States Army, will be another speaker. His subject will be "Alaska and Its Modern Klondike Trail."

LIQUOR CONTROL TIGHTENED IN NEW CODE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Creation of a federal alcohol control administration to supervise the distilling industry until Congress enacts legislation looking to a permanent post repeal policy was proposed yesterday by President Roosevelt's special interdepartmental alcohol committee.

In a code submitted to the Farm Administration as a substitute for the distillers' draft on which hearings are to be held tomorrow, the committee also recommended control of production and prices to prevent either a surplus of liquor or high retail costs to consumers that would encourage bootlegging.

SUBSTITUTE CODE

High officials agreed that the substitute code indicated the government had abandoned, at least temporarily, a projected federal monopoly of liquor distribution to insure reasonable prices. In addition, they said the administration felt the distillers' code was inadequate, but that the substitute would result in control until legislation was enacted. The substitute emphasizes protection to dry states.

The inter-departmental committee also is preparing a bill to submit to Congress in January on liquor control. It is to follow the administration's recommendation on federal liquor taxes, now $1.10 a gallon.

Growth of sentiment within the administration for a government distribution monopoly brought from organized distillers today the announcement that a large quantity of liquor will be available at reasonable prices when President Roosevelt proclaims repeal on or after December 5.

$1.50 PER QUART

A representative of the distillers estimated that between 48,000,000 to 100,000,000 quarts of whisky could be sold at about $1.50 a quart retail, including state taxes. However, from other quarters it was reported that liquor prices were being quoted as high as $4 a quart for post repeal delivery in the 19 wet states.

The Federal Alcohol Control Administration, under the substitute code, would consist of five members to be appointed by President Roosevelt, who also would designate a chairman. This chairman also would be a director of the administration.

Pistol Shots Bring Firemen to Blaze

Aroused by his dog, Rugerio saw flames shooting from two houses nearby. He stuck a pistol out the window and fired two shots. Police called firemen.

Note With Socks, Weds Factory Girl

HICKORY, N. C., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Two years ago Harry Derboort, of New York, found the name of Miss Ethel Murphy, of Hickory, in a box of men's hose shipped from the mill where she worked. He wrote her. They're married now.

Plan School Aid By $24,682,000 Stored Rum Tax

HARRISBURG, Nov. 23.—Gov. Gifford Pinchot estimates the $2 tax on liquor already manufactured in Pennsylvania will yield $24,682,000 to the state.

The tax must be paid in 90 days. While the Governor has estimated there are 12,500,000 gallons stored, distillers say there is less than half that amount.

Gov. Pinchot proposes the revenue be used this way:

Relief of financially handicapped school districts, $5,000,000; elimination of the four-mill tax on interest-bearing bank deposits, $8,000,000; building program for welfare institutions, teachers colleges, armories, etc., $10,000,000; departmental appropriations for Health, Labor and Industry, Military Affairs, Property and Supplies, Public Instruction, Revenue, Auditor General, Treasury and State Police, $1,682,000.

Detailed inventories of all liquors on hand are to be started today at all distilleries, alcohol plants and bonded warehouses by revenue agents.

Leon D. Metzger, State Secretary of Revenue, said all distilled or fermented liquors usuable for beverage purposes, either alone or in combination, are taxable under the law, but beer, lager beer, ale and porter are not included.

He explained the tax increases with the strength of the liquor. If it is 100 proof or less the tax is $2 a gallon. The tax increases proportionately with the proof until spirits rated 150 proof are taxed $3 a gallon.

BILL PROPOSES INCOME TAX

HARRISBURG, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—The administration bill to levy a graduated income tax for school purposes was introduced in the House yesterday by Representative Philip Sterling, Philadelphia.

It provides a tax of one per cent on incomes up to $10,000 a year; two per cent. from $10,000 to $50,000 and three per cent, over $50,000.

The exemption for unmarried persons is set at $1,000 and for married persons, at $2,500.

Other bills introduced in the House:

Representative Fitzgerald, Erie, empowering the Labor and Industry Department to establish minimum wage and maximum hour regulations for women.

Representative Mason, Luzerne, prohibiting employment of children under 16 years of age during school hours and establishing maximums of eight hours a day and 44 hours a week for minors under 18 years.

Pinchot Approves Salaries Measure

HARRISBURG, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot today signed a bill introduced by Representative Joseph G. Steedle, Allegheny, to provide $366,000 for expenses of the special session of the Legislature, including lawmakers' salaries.

STATE SUPPORT OF INDIGENT FAVORED

Meeting in joint session in the Chamber of Commerce today, members of the Allegheny County Real Estate Owners and Taxpayers League and the Tax Justice League of Pennsylvania passed a resolution approving principles of House Bill No. 18, which would transfer the costs of poor farms and homes from counties to the state.

Explaining the measure was not an "old age pension" bill except in name, Leonard Aronson, chairman, said:

"What we are trying to do is to shift the burden of taxation for the care of the indigent poor and aged from the real estate owners to all the people in the state."

PINCHOT COMMENDED

A resolution commending Gov. Pinchot for including a recommendation for legislation transferring school taxes from real estate to the state in his call for the special session also won indorsement.

Other resolutions favoring the abatement of tax penalties on delinquent taxes and House Bill 16, which would authorize courts to stay writs of execution and tax sales, were referred to a committee for further study.

FIGHT HIGH TAXES

It was in continuation of their attacks against high city and county tax rates, that the mass meeting was called in the Chamber auditorium late this afternoon.

Speakers include Dr. C. E. Dickey, superintendent of Allegheny County schools, and D. E. Crosley, Gov. Pinchot's personal representative. Crosley will speak on "Education, the Sovereign Duty of the State."

Union Coal Miners Confer on Relief

HARRISBURG, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Gov. Gifford Pinchot conferred today with leaders of union miners in Fayette County on the administration of relief in the area recently troubled by strikes.

The delegation included Attorney Anthony Cavalcante, William Hynes, president of District No. 4, United Mine Workers of America, and John Kurtz, an organizer of the district.

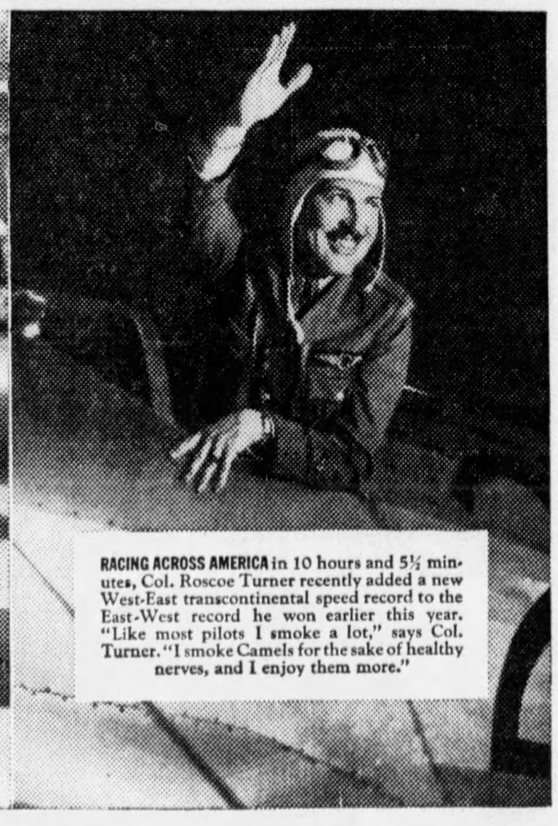
They taste better." Also a Camel fan, Miss Marsalis says, "I've never changed because I can't afford to take chances with my nervous system."



RACING ACROSS AMERICA in 10 hours and 5½ minutes, Col. Roscoe Turner recently added a new West-East transcontinental speed record to the East-West record he won earlier this year. "Like most pilots I smoke a lot," says Col. Turner. "I smoke Camels for the sake of healthy nerves, and I enjoy them more."

A MATCHLESS BLEND

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

Men and women who are famous for their brilliant flying agree about smoking and healthy nerves. "I never worry about healthy nerves," they say, "because I smoke Camels."

They cannot afford to make a mistake in choosing their cigarette. They have to know. And it is more fun to know, because of the greater smoking pleasure they find in Camels. Camels are milder . . . better in taste. They leave no "cigaretty" aftertaste.

WOMEN OPPOSE FURTHER CUTS AT SCHOOLS

Opposition by the executive board of the American Association of University Women, Pittsburgh branch, to further reduction in the curriculum of Pittsburgh public schools, was announced today by Mrs. George Ellis Jones, chairman of the educational committee.

She issued this statement:

"We are opposed to any curtailment of curriculum in the Pittsburgh public schools which would involve the arts, physical education, vocational education, the trade school, or the kindergarten.

"All too often we forget that although school attendance is a great privilege, it also is a compulsory matter. This being the case, we must suit the curriculum to the needs of the child.

"To omit any of these courses would be to deny to some children the kind of education needed by them. Morevoevr, any curtailment of curriculum for reason's of economy is based upon fallacious reasoning.

"The pupils now in any courses which would be abolished would have to be transferred to other courses. The pupil load per teacher is already so great that such a transfer of pupils should not mean a decrease in the number of teachers now employed.

"On the other hand, even though the dropping of some courses would mean the dropping of some teachers, it is very questionable whether this would make for true economy, for unemployment is a source of expense rather than economy to the taxpayer."

SCHOOL BUSES' SAFETY SOUGHT

Urging maximum care in the selection of drivers and operation of school buses on the part of rural school district superintendents, the Highway Safety Committee of the Pittsburgh Motor Club today recommended a proposed school bus safety code drawn up by National Safety Council officials.

The code provides that all buses be painted a distinctive yellow-orange color, that automobiles be obliged to stop 20 feet behind school buses unloading passengers, waiting to pass until all children have reached sidewalks or safety zones, and that the state superintendent of public instruction be given authority to establish general school bus equipment standards and operating practices.

Gossipy Chat

Attractive Gretchen Lappe, whose picture appears at the top of this page, has found a new way to wear a corsage of orchids. When she had her picture taken, as you can see, she wore her corsage pinned to one shoulder the usual way.

Re-arranging it, she happened to place it across the neckline of her dress. And everyone liked it so much that way, that she pinned the corsage there.

LIFTING WHITE HAIR TO NEW HIGHS

By PRUNELLA WOOD

WHEN the woman who has a potentially beautiful head of white hair goes to have it dressed, she wants to know just what is best for her locks. For it is the truth, and not imagination, that white hair needs special processes for its curling and shampooing, and that the wrong system will transform it into a yellowed changeling which is heartbreaking.

Properly played up, a white pate is one of the most attractive and feminine ones to be seen. Anyone who remembers the vogue for white transformations that raged about the country—by way of Paris—several years ago, knows that this is true. The attitude to take toward such hair is that it is an unique asset, and not a dated liability. All Whistlerian maternal effects must be taboo, and the most frivolous ones worked up in promoting the asset.

* * *

OF course a permanent wave is feasible for white hair. But the operator should know that borax solution will yellow it, as well over-baking, and that a very short heating of locks that have been packed with a peroxide solution will probably turn out the best job.

The lack of pigment in hair definitely weakens its stamina, experts tell us, and too much of anything—heat, lotion, or tonic, is not so good for it. Oil will yellow it and so will hot irons in the long run, therefore a careful permanent, followed by setting for which lotion and blue rinse mixed is used, and shampoos to wash away the natural oil of a week's accumulation is advocated. Some hairdressers like to run in a dry shampoo once a month, to give the scalp a rest from too much soaking.

The current styles in formal coiffures are especially good for white heads, as glittering gems and high-piled curls are all on the regal, dignified side.

Through the Spyglass Viewing the New

By merest chance we stumbled upon some newsinesses this time which are a little different from the average run of this-and-thats which we cart homeward for your edification. So here they are . . . ready to be worn, used, or eaten! Call Grant 6500 and ask for the Spyglass if you want the names of the shops . . . or send a stamped self-addressed envelope for reply.

* * *

Of course . . . being wide-awake little children, and all modernized down to your reddened fingertips . . . we know that YOU know all about Battle Creek's valuable use of psylla seeds (those little black ones which you swallow because they're good for your little insides!) But had you heard about the psylla cookies there are to be had now? Nice, brown, crumbly ones . . . only 18c the big box!

* * *

Someone is "sending a little gift of roses" for this week-end . . . or at least ALMOST a gift of them! Because who ever heard of corsages of roses tied up with ribbon . . . pink roses . . . for 15c! And as if this weren't enough . . . they're also chortling in their beards over the grand special in cut flowers offered at the same time! A mixed bouquet . . . this . . . for only 25c! And if you aren't all be-flowered after this, you're a callous person!

* * *

Now . . . to warm up to each other . . . a few words about some Northern Seal Muffs which we unearthed from their hiding place and brought out blinking into the light with their price tags of $6.95 hanging limply 'round their necks! For, know ye, little Spyers-Out-of-the-Shopping-Land, that such muffs do not dwell elsewhere for such a sum! Soft, cozy ones they are . . . with black satin linings . . . as warm as the well-known "toast," and MUCH softer!

Those of you with children or who are planning a big jamboree for Thanksgiving will want to decorate your table. And it joyfully we crow out the words about the candy doodads we've found!

We know of a proud, fat chocolate "toik" who will add interest to any Thanksgiving dinner table strutting 'round for a centerpiece. He is about 3 inches high . . . and costs 50 cents. And there are exact replicas of Papa Turkey for each place. Little turklets . . . these . . . three of them for 10 cents, as chocolaty as their dad and just as much fun for the guests as the children!

And lastly . . . lest they gobble-gobble too loudly (the turkeys, we mean) . . . part of their barnyard has been transplanted into little pumpkins of almond paste, 70 cents the pound.

* * *

Having nearly frozen our ears brittle hanging our head out the window during the past cold snap, trying to see just HOW cold it was . . . we were moved to go in search of a thermometer.

Naturally . . . we peered at them until our brain must have LOOKED like one . . . but at last discovered one usable for either outdoors or indoors . . . and costing, oh happy words, but 25c! (We always had an idea that thermometers for less than $1 were rare and precious birds!) Anyway . . . get one of these and KNOW whether or not to wear your hip boots!

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

(Owing to the illness of Walter Winchell, this column is being written by Paul Yawitz until Mr. Winchell returns next week.)

A Columnist, Who Always Thought a Sec'y Was a Piece of Parlor Furniture, Writes Himself a Few Notes!

Dear P. Y.: Jacqueline Logan phoned. She says you left your hat, coat and one of your shirt sleeves at her party yesty afternoon and wants to know where to send them . . . She explained that Lubitsch sat on the hat and it doesn't look exactly as you brought it, and that Gary Cooper mistook the coat for one of the rugs (you always hang your stuff on the floor) . . . But she assured me that the sleeve of your lavendar shirt is still in the same condition it was when you lost it . . . Just what happens to you after one bacardi? . . . Joe Lewis, the clown, wires from Detroit that he heard the Rubber Man at the Fair and his wife had a baby last week, but they don't know yet if it is a boy or a girl—it hasn't stopped bouncing . . . Immediately I wired Joe to watch the situation and I told him that if the baby bounced for more than a month, it was no baby at all, but one of your checks . . .And speaking of checks, I sold your desklamp and typewriter this a. m. to make good for the one you gave me for my salary last July . . . How long do you expect a fella to wait?

There's a note from Bob Garland: "From my sick-bed I arise to ask why, when he sings it over the radio, must Harry Richman dress 'The Last Round-Up' in a double-breasted dinner jacket, too?" . . . Johnny Stein phoned . . . He wanted to thank you for that piece on his idol, Texas Guinan, and to say that literally dozens of her friends have offered him jobs, among them Prexy Atterbury of the Penn R. R. . . . He also wants you to say that Texas' family still fears ghouls at her vault because of the publicity that she was buried in her jewels . . . This is not true, inasmuch as there is a State law which prohibits this practice . . . He also said that the gems in which her body was dressed at Campbell's were mere imitations . . . Johnny has refused all offers and will devote the next few months writing the "Life of Texas Guinan," concerning which no one knows more than he . . . Irving Brecher believes that vaudeville is coming back. He says: "Several actors I know are now doubling for the first time in years. They stand in front of the Palace and State." . . . You'll like the Rowland-Brice screemie, "Take a Chance," which opens at the Paramount tomorrow.

Constance Hope phoned frantically and wanted to know where she could send the hat and coat and a few unmentionables you left at Fannie Hurst's party at Billy the Oysterman's last night . . . I told her I didn't think they were yours, because you had lost them earlier in the day . . . She insisted that some of your notes were in the coat pockets and that the hat must be yours because it was too large for any of the other guests . . . She was concerned about your safe arrival home and wanted to apologize for letting you drink so much . . . Where in the world did you pick up that second hat and coat, you never had more than one to your name since I've known you? . . . She said there was also a collar fram a lavendar shirt under one of the tables and she was enclosing it in the bundle as it probably was yours, too . . . You certainly embarrass me! . . . The much-publicized "200,000 ransom in $20 bills" in the Chas. Urschel kidnaping in Oklahoma was put up by John Mabee, a Tulsa milynaire oil-driller, on 24 hours' notice . . . A close friend of Urschel, Mabee was repaid his 200 G's the day following the kidnaped man's release. For some reason, Mabee had to go to a Kansas City bank to get the 10,000 twenty-dollar notes . . . Arthur Murray annoyed me with "I know a girl whom the boys handle with kid gloves because her husband's a fingerprint expert."

Jimmy Mattern writes from Chicago that Clarence Brown, the MGM director, is enthusiastic about making a flying picture with him . . . The story will concern the real reason behind Mattern's flight around the globe and what actually happened during the three weeks he wandered without food on the Arctic tundra . . . It's all wrong about Arthur Swanstrom having a change of heart over Eunice Healey of the "Follies," and anyone saying so is silly. Their neck-romance will certainly go down in Broadway saga, and Arthur sends you this note: "I'll promise one thing; it's over a year since Eunice and I were together, but if there's ever the least change in my feeling I'll call you on the phone and break the news to you first. Don't, however, expect that call during this life." . . . And they call Broadway unemotional! . . . I hear that Nate Leipsig, the card manipulator, had the two most expensive stooges in the world at that "Gay Nineties Party" yesty—Roy Howard, the publisher, and Lawrence Langner, the producer . . . In an effort to get some business away from the I. R. T., I understand the Eighth Avenue Subway is going to allow smoking and spitting.

Ben Barzune came in a few minutes ago and left a package . . . He says it contains a tan left shoe, a necktie and the trousers of your blue suit which he found at his house after all the guests had cleared out last night . . . He said he thought you looked rather queer walking out of his party, but couldn't figure out what it was . . . He told me the shoe was in the bath-tub cabinet and that he discovered the trousers in the dumb-elevator . . . The first thing he asked was what hospital they had taken you to . . . Incidentally, he isn't so sure about the tie being yours because of the color—a deep red. I examined it and assured him it was . . . The Bob Hallows (Mary Field) are about to increase the population . . . Barney Gerard, the old-time burlesque producer who retired with a million years ago, has retained Attorney Sandler to seek an accounting of the receipts of "Of Thee I Sing" . . . He will allege that the Pulitzer prize winner is a plagiarism of a burlesque show, "Follies of the Day," which he staged in 1908.

Pierre de Rohan, the incurable optimist, Western Unions to say that he hopes the NRA policies will be applied to Russian recognition problems even if it means ploughing under every third Mdivani . . . Geo. F. Andrews reports the sad case of the old maid who knew all the answers, but nobody ever asked her the questions . . . I am at my rope's end—an usher at Dunhill's just called to say they were sending over some socks that you'd lost at their Radio City exhibit yesty . . . When I asked him how he knew they were yours, he replied, "Why, he was the only columnist here" . . . A strange man walked into the office this afternoon on a manslaughter charge, and introduced himself as the recent winner of a medal for being "the most perfect nudist in the world" . . . He said several members of his cult happened to see you on your way home last night, and as a result he no longer felt that it would be possible for him to carry his honors and still live among his friends . . . So he gave me his medal to turn over to you.

Your Severest Critic,

Paul Yawitz.

'Romeo' Sung Better Than It's Acted

Mr. Lissfelt

Gounod is not Shakespeare on the scene and his sweet music is never commensurate with the poetry nor the beautiful tragedy of the bard. It is "Faust" all over again, the same ensembles and solo airs, and a good friar to cement a love more conventionally than did "Mephisto."

The waltz song, it seems to me, is feebler in the opera than as sung upon the concert stage, the great tenor air, "Leve-toi soleil!" more effective in the scene. There are male choruses which rise to dramatic heights in the various dueling scenes and many a tender note in the balcony duet.

In watching the San Carlo singers I still wonder why the idea persists among them that popular opera means a disregard for thorough study of stage deportment.

Onofrei was so noticeably out of the part until the opera was half played as to shock one. He sings well enough though he has lost some of his earlier charm, but his eyes are so riveted to the director's baton that he gives no illusion whatever in gesture nor his song of what the text might mean.

Sabanieva's "Juliet" was more to the point. Her voice is light and exceedingly clear though she seems more anxious of her technique than her music. Marion Selee, as the nurse, looked slightly younger than her charge. Bernice Schalker sang a good serenade.

Rothier, good old standby of the Metropolitan, made an excellent Friar Lawrence charmingly simple in his play and lending his mighty voice to the ensemble with skill. Mario Valle's "Mercutio," Curci's "Tybalt," and Cervi's "Duke of Verona" are all sincerely worked out and show substantial voices.

Carlo Peroni held the score together with his firm beat and the staging was in the usual San Carlo style.

"Carmen," Bizet's colorful epic of the cigaret girl and the toreador, was sung with spirit at the evening performance.

Ina Bourskaya has the personality and voice to be an effective Carmen, while Chief Capaulican was very fine as Escamillo. The Don Jose of Sidney Raymer and the Micaela of Marie Zara were both romantic and sympathetic.

Orchestra and choruses did some of the best work of the week, and the audience also did its part. Tonight the operatic twins—"Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci"—furnish a double bill.

WHOOPCOUGH HAS STUDIO ALARMED

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 23.—Studio officials are in a state of jitters, and thousands of dollars hang at stake until it is known whether Baby Leroy has contracted that familiar complaint of childhood, whooping cough.

There is no doubt that Hollywood's highest paid baby actor was exposed to the disease. Spanky McFarland, a fellow player in "Miss Fane's Baby Is Stolen," broke right into whoops on the set.

But, by good fortune, Spanky was just finishing his part in the picture. Baby Leroy, on the other hand, works all the way through and has two more weeks before the camera. If he develops whooping cough, it will take the complaint six weeks to run its course. To suspend production for this time would cost Paramount thousands. And with Alice Brady borrowed from MGM, too.

Oddly enough, officials at Columbia have the same kind of headache, only, over there, the trouble is poison oak and the production of "The Paul Street Boys" actually has had to suspend. Bruce Lyon, Jimmie Butler (the clever kid in "Only Yesterday"), Jackie Searle and Frankie Darro all contracted oak poison on location. Both of young Bruce's eyes are completely closed. Only George Breakston, 11-year-old star of the picture, escaped.

One of Broadway's better knowns, who came out to Hollywood but did not do so well, recently was taking a few cracks at the movies.

"You have to have something big to succeed on the screen," he said. "There are Clark Gable's big ears, Joe E. Brown's big mouth, Greta Garbo's big feet."

"Yes," interrupted a friend, "and then there's Mae West."

* * *

"I've got the man," she said, "I've got the ring, I've got the license—but I can't get the time."

Young French Player Signed for Lead

The leading role in "Marie Gallante," by Jacques Deval, will be played by Ketti Gallian, young French actress, "discovered" by Winfield Sheehan, Fox producer, on his last trip abroad, and signed for the role. Production will begin as soon as Mlle. Gallian arrives in America. She is 20 years old, is famous abroad for her beauty and figure. She was appearing in London in "The Ace" when Mr. Sheehan saw her and ordered tests.

WIPER BLAMED FOR TRAGEDY

A windshield wiper that didn't work was given as the cause of a fatal accident before a coronor's jury yesterday.

Richard Hopfer, 22, of 335 Beltzhoover avenue, testified his misty windshield prevented him from seeing Mrs. Mary Kelly, 79, of 807 Eldora street, in Michigan avenue the night of October 19 until he was 10 feet from her.

She was struck and died from her injuries October 31, the testimony showed. Hopfer was held for the action of the coroner's jury.

Civic Playhouse Ready For Manuscripts

All in a Day

Odds and Ends

A HIGHLY amusing spectacle to me these days is the rush of applicants for liquor licenses in the City of New York. Doors are being rushed, state senators are crying loudly for justice toward their subjects, crowds are standing in line throughout long and cold nights—and so on and so forth.

And what is it all about? It's simply because a number of misguided souls are laboring under the delusion that repeal will prove a gold mine for any hotel, restaurant or shop that holds a license to sell liquor. I trust these people will not be angry with me when I assure them they have another think coming.

In the first place, liquor will be even more expensive after repeal than it has been for the past year or so. To turn a decent margin of profit, your better restaurant must still charge in the neighborhood of 50 cents a drink. So there won't be a great deal of difference in that direction.

Case goods will cost you slightly more than your local bootlegger has been in the habit of charging you. And your bootlegger can tell you himself that he hasn't been making any real money in some time. The big profits in that game disappeared with the stock market crash.

Where, then, will all the money come from at this time? Who's going to buy all the goods that the frenzied license-seekers so optimistically expect to sell? In spite of all the tumult, money was never tighter than it is today. And the return of booze is not going to put any extra money in the average man's pocket.

Around the New York speakeasies and night clubs, you can go daffy in short order by listening to the various ideas of the proprietors. None of them know quite what it's all about, which may be why they are night club proprietors.

Several of the spots are going in heavily for portable bars. One bird is building a novel bar in the form of a huge table. Plenty of spots are ripping out their bars while others are building new ones in the hope that the State will change its mind next April.

A number of places have an idea that they can beat the Mulrooney edict by actually becoming clubs, and admitting only bona-fide members to their bars. They, too, have another think coming. Mr. Mulrooney has made up his mind that there is going to be no drinking of hard liquor at bars, in New York state. And you can take it from me, brothers and sisters, that Mr. Mulrooney means what he says.

Paste this in your hat:

The very first day of repeal, there will be an arrest in New York on a liquor violation. It may be a big spot, and it may be a little one. But the owner of the place that is nailed is going to get eight months in jail in short order.

There will be a second arrest, and then a third. And the boys will suddenly realize that Mulrooney means business. We had no state liquor law before, and your local copper was helpless. It's all very different now.

And just how different it is, the boys have yet to learn. With tears in my eyes, I must inform them that—if they continue to sell hard liquor over a bar after December 1—they will be very sorry indeed . . .

"VERY often," writes Alvin Hamburg, "your yarns contain examples of how the woman pays. I heartily agree with you. It's the woman who pays and pays.

"But look whose money she uses!" . . .

A GRAND character is Tim Mara, famous sportsman and owner of the New York Football Giants. There never lived a more charitable guy, and stories of the good he has done would fill several volumes. His motto is: "It's easier to give than it is to get"—and he's as right as right can be.

The man is always giving away something or other, and among his gifts this year was a load of football outfits for the inmates of Dannemora Prison. Dannemora is one of America's toughest prisons, and it is to that spot that the state's most desperate convicts are sent.

Father Booth, the chaplain at Dannemora, was highly enthused over Mara's gift. He wrote Tim a lengthy letter of thanks—and among his remarks was the following:

"You have done a fine deed, and I want you to know that the men appreciate it a great deal. We have a great team up here, probably the best in the country. And if you don't believe it, just wait and see what happens when we play those sissies down at Sing Sing!" . . .

THE unusually frank Al Klein admits to having the world's dumbest girl friend. In a conversation with her the other night, he used the word "hussy." Then he stopped and looked at her.

"Am I making myself clear?" he asked. "You know what a hussy is, don't you?"

Junior Patrol

Lots of letters again today, fellows:

Here's the first one from Frank Vitelli, of 3122 Shadeland avenue, North Side. He sends a great many more safety rules and safety poems and here we are going to print just a few of them:

The city is full
Of good places to play.
I'm sure we should stay
Off the streets every day.
He who stops to look each way
Will live to look another day.
In a roadway I never play.
I have no leg to give away.
I have no arm that I can spare.
To keep them all I must take care.

And now here is a letter from Berk Waters, of 276 North Craig street, Oakland. He writes:

"I am already a member of your wonderful club, but one day when I went to put on my little button you sent to me I was sorry to find it gone. I am sending in the coupon to join again. I am so sorry to lose it, but hope you won't mind and will give me another chance to be a member."

Surely thing you know, Berk. We are sending you another pin and card right away. Is there a patrol in your neighborhood?

"I am sending you 37 members for the Junior Patrol and have been elected captain. Sister and I have been members of the Junior Patrol since it started. That makes 39 members in our club. We pledge to live up to all the rules and do good for others. We call our club the Blue Eagle Junior Patrol. We listen to the Junior Patrol programs and think they are fine.

"A friend of dad's brought me a bag of marbles from the Century of Progress and a picture of a house made of marble. Please ask Miss White if she would tell us about it, as the boys and girls would like to hear about it. Our first meeting was held in a field near home, and we roasted potatoes. Mother said we can have our meeting in the basement."

Sounds as if you were going to have one of the biggest and best Junior Patrols ever, Tommy. Let us know more about your club and what you do to help others.

THE GLOBE TROTTER

President Roosevelt's recognition of Russia is pictured in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News, with speeches by the President and Foreign Commissar Litvinoff. There are also pictures of William C. Bullitt, first United States Ambassador to the Soviet, and a talk by the Globe Trotter.

With all the pomp and ceremony that has been followed since Queen Elizabeth's time, London's new lord mayor, Sir Charles Collett, rides through the streets of the city in a gilded coach drawn by six horses.

Gettysburg hears Abraham Lincoln again when the famous address is repeated on the seventieth anniversary of the historic oration.

Lancer Story To Be Film

The film story that causes grief to a studio for months on end is no story to be scorned. It may emerge as an "epic."

That best-selling book of nearly three years ago, Francis Yeats-Brown's "Lives of a Bengan Lancer," has been a Paramount property for two and a half years, and now finally it will go into production—on a scale calculated to make it most spectacular.

It will not be, of course, a film version of the book, for the book has no plot, and a motion picture must have. There will be the colorful background of the British Indian army unit, and incidents from the book, worked into a movie plot.

New Picture Programs

Paul Muni, stage star, who has been something of a sensation in the new films in which he has appeared, heads the cast of "The World Changes," photoplay feature in the Stanley today.

* * *

"Beauty For Sale," comedy drama laid in a beauty shop, is on the Fulton screen with a cast that includes Madge Evans, Una Merkle, Alice Brady, Otto Kruger and Phillips Holmes.

* * *

The Warner screen feature today is "The Right to Romance," the cast of which includes Ann Harding, Nils Asther and Robert Young. Miss Harding plays a woman surgeon, wife of a playboy.

* * *

Mae West is the star of the new bill in the Davis, "I'm No Angel," in which Cary Grant is the leading male. It also will be the feature in the Enright Saturday.

* * *

Marie Dressler will be the star of the new Penn attraction, "Christopher Bean," opening tomorrow, with Lionel Barrymore in the male lead. It is from the stage hit of last season.

* * *

"Ace of Aces," photoplay that depicts the war career of a ruthless aviator, is now on the Sheridan Square screen, with Richard Dix and Elizabeth Allan heading the cast.

* * *

The new vaudeville and screen bill in the Pitt, to be shown first tomorrow, will include Princess Yvonne, mentalist, Kitty Doner and others on the stage, and Helen Twelvetrees, in "My Woman," on the screen.

* * *

The Enright screen feature today is "The Way To Love," booked for two days only. Maurice Chevalier and Ann Dvorak have the two principal roles.

Girl Gets Lead Role As First Part

Rosemary Ames, American-born actress who went to London to get a reputation on the stage and then returned to New York, where she was signed by Fox Film, was given a leading role in "Disillusion" in less than a week after her arrival in Hollyood. Other parts in the William Anthony McGuire tale will be filled by Victor Jory, John Boles and Mona Barrie.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The double bill listed for the Nixon tonight is considered the best drawing-card of the opera houses everywhere. It includes "Cavalleria Rusticanna" and "Pagliacci," one in two acts and the other in one. Bianca Saroya will have the part of Santuzza in Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana," while Marion Selee will be the Lola. Sydney Rayner, tenor of the Patis Opera-Comique, will have the role of Turridu, and Stefan Kozakevich, young Russian baritone, is to be Alfio. In Leoncavallo's "Pagliacci," Marie Zara, formerly of the Philadelphia Opera, will sing the role of Nedda; Aroldo Lindi, dramatic tenor, will be heard as Canio, while Chief Caupolitan, the South American Indian baritone, will be the Tonio. Stefan Kozakevich will have the role of Silvio. The famous Prologue will be sung by Caupolican.

* * *

Miriam Hopkins is preparing to return to the stage in the title role of Owen Davis' new play, "Jezebel," Tallulah Bankhead, who originally was engaged to play this character, having been forced by her protracted illness to abandon all idea of acting for some time. Miss Hopkins has just completed in Hollywood a new film, "Chrysalis." Late this month she will be seen in New York in the screen version of Noel Coward's "Design for Living," in which she plays Lynn Fontanne's original part. Her most recent stage engagements were in the Theater Guild's production of "A Camel Through the Needle's Eye" and "Everybody's Car."

* * *

Charles Waldron again will be seen in his original role of Elizabeth Barrett's father in Rudolf Besier's "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," with Katharine Cornell, on tour. He also will act Friar Laurence to her Juliet in the Shakespeare tragedy. Waldron was in the cast of "A Bill of Divorcement," in which Miss Cornell first met success.

TURKEYS and TAPIOCA

A CHILLY November wind ruffles feathers as it sweeps across the big turkey fattening pen. In the midst of the flock stand two men, a proud turkey raiser and a youngish poultry expert. With trained eye the latter inspects proud Toms and plump hens—checks their feeding and care. His standard of quality is unusually high. If a premium is necessary to get the best, he is anxious to pay it—for this man is a Kroger Turkey Buyer and he is choosing 4-Point Blue Ribbon Turkeys, for your Thanksgiving feast. Early morn 'til dusk finds him searching out the finest birds in America's best producing sections.

In your nearby Kroger Store you'll find tapioca. From a business standpoint it is a minor item among the hundreds offered for sale. But it's good tapioca. In fact, the best obtainable, for it has been selected with the same care and to meet the same high standard of quality that guides the Kroger turkey buyer.

But why send a Kroger turkey buyer into the best producing sections when turkeys can be bought by mail? Why not just any tapioca? Why the exacting Kroger Food Foundation with its five complete food-testing laboratories—its Homemakers Reference Committee composed of 750 housewives? Why all these precautions to assure highest quality?

Why? For the simple reason that it is good business. It pays you and it pays us. It pays you in higher quality and better values at Kroger Stores. It pays us because it builds lasting friendship and brings more and more of you to Kroger Stores for quality foods.

The Test of the Pudding . . .

As you have always heard—the test of the pudding is in the eating (an appropriate thought for a pre-Thanksgiving advertisement). And the test of a store is in the shopping. If you are not already shopping at Kroger's, why not learn for yourself what a difference it makes. Buy there this week and next week.

Network Will Carry Nevin Program Coast-to-Coast

By AIRCASTER

From the great composer's home, Sewickley, the melodies of Ethelbert Nevin will wing their way through the air, to either coast and around the world Saturday evening.

Through KDKA, a nation-wide NBC network will carry a special Nevin program, devoted to his music and memory, on his birthday.

The broadcast, on the network from 6:15 to 6:30, and continuing locally until 6:45, will not be a pretentious one, but rather a simple fireside recital such as Nevin often gave in his Sewickley home, "Vineacres," for his intimate friends.

* * *

Hearthside Scene

From his familiar Sewickley surroundings, Lois Miller, organist; a girls' vocal trio, Helen Bell Rush, soprano, and Arthur Davis, tenor, will play and sing a number of Nevin's favorite compositions, "Little Boy Blue," "The Rosary," "Narcissus," "Mighty Lak a Rose," and others.

An intimate word picture of the composer's life at "Vineacres" and the highlights of his musical career will be threaded through the program.

Mrs. Ethelbert Nevin, due in Sewickley for a visit on Monday, is hastening her journey, hoping to arrive in time to take part in the program.

* * *

Studio Crime

The lad who is on the "X" is a crooner. His manager, a suave fellow, is a crook and is plotting to knock the crooner off to collect heavy sugar in the form of insurance.

To complicate matters, the crooner is in love with a lady who sings contralto on the same program. But the contralto has a maid and the maid has an out on the crooner, and is plotting to do him dirt, also.

Somehow or other, the manager has got wind of the maid's hatred of the crooner and he figures to frame her for the kill.

He has it all set to happen in the studio next Tuesday night.

* * *

Paper Ears

I'm giving all this away because I'd hate to see blood spilled on the nice new carpet, and from what I am told, the hoodlums hired by the manager are planning to make quite a mess of the place.

The audience, if it is at all interested in the killing of a crooner, is therefore invited to listen in. It'll be during the Crime Club broadcast.

I hardly think the murder will be accomplished, because the script brings in Spencer Dean, the demon dick, who has until the next night to thwart the thugs.

But it's a good gag, the dramatization of Radio City's first attempted murder, and the title of it is "The Paper Ears."

'Retribution' Best Drama of Day

Today—WFBG, Altoona, 3 p. m., and WKBN, Youngstown, 8:15 p. m.

Friday — WSAZ, Huntington, W. Va., 1:30 p. m.; WHBC, Canton, 2; WALR, Zanesville, 5; WJAC, Johnstown, 5:15; WOBU, Charleston, W. Va., 5:15; WAIU, Columbus, 7:15; WADC, Akron, 7:45, and WLBW, Erie, 9 p. m.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Nothing like confession for the good of the soul, but when it bursts forth fired with indignation then it's good for everybody. Are there indignant young ladies in Pittsburgh? Well, you remember the story about the lady artist who said Dick Powell wasn't good looking or even kissable! A. L. Lane, Dorothy Parker and Jordan Victers say that that lady is all wrong so far as they are concerned—let me quote, "Dick, we think, is handsome. He is our romantic vision of just what a young man should be, etc. and etc."

A note from Constant Reader—My wife likes to hear you explain that love stuff. (Advice on Love usually at 2:15).

Rachel Appelbaum has L. B.'s remedy for frost-bitten heel. Soak the foot first in warm water. As the heel thaws keep adding hotter water until you can't take it. Oil of turpentine soothes the itching and burning.

My guest for today is J. D. Butkovich, national president of the Croatian Fraternal Union.

Mrs. Smith—The newly-created jobs you inquired about will be given to the men on the relief lists of the Allegheny County Emergency Association.

ALL PROVE NOXZEMA IS TODAY'S "MIRACLE CREAM"

Read how this Famous Medicated Cream has brought new beauty and skin comfort to millions of people. Dozens of wonderful benefits

NEW BEAUTY IN 15 DAYS by ending large pores, blackheads, oiliness, pimples, etc.

FOR CHAFING, BURNS, ITCHING, Noxzema brings instant relief.

NOXZEMA CREAM—there's never been anything like it! Doctors prescribe it for skin troubles. Beauty parlors feature it as a wonderful skin corrective. The finest barber shops, like the famous Terminal Barber Shops and the U. S. Senate Barber Shop use it for shaving. First Aid Hospitals depend on it exclusively for sunburn.

Not advertising claims, not promises... but the everyday use of Noxzema by all these authorities...should convince you that Noxzema is truly today's "Miracle Cream".

New beauty quickly

If you are a woman, you'll use Noxzema because it brings new beauty—by clearing up skin faults...large pores...blackheads... oiliness...pimples or scaliness...and by softening and refining the texture of your skin.

And like millions of other women you will find that rough, red, irritated hands become soft and smooth overnight...with this famous medicated cream. Use it for baby, too. Ends chafing, diaper rash and chapping quickly.

Amazing smooth shaves

Any man with tender, irritated skin—or who suffers from "razor rash"—will be amazed at the smooth, painless shave Noxzema gives him. Rub in as a base for lather. Or spread on as a brushless shave. Either way...you end "razor rash" or irritation. Remember, Noxzema is used by every barber in the gigantic Terminal Barber Shops!

Dozens of home uses

You'll find countless uses for Noxzema. It stops the pain and helps heal burns and scalds. Ends itching irritations. No wonder millions use it...and find they couldn't get along without it. Ten million jars are sold every year!

75¢ jar for 49¢

This week as special Anniversary Offer the 6 ounce 75¢ jar of Noxzema sells for only 49¢. Order a jar while this offer is still good.

Election Reform New Battle Ground

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Nov. 23.—Liquor has its legislative kick and causes the highly deliberative Senators and Representatives to reel mentally as they try to figure what will be acceptable to the well-known constituents, if not to the constitutions of the same.

Mr. Shields

But beside liquor, as a subject of controversy, election reform legislation sticks up like a mountain, and it will be before the Assembly next week in its most embarrassing forms.

The Pennsylvania elections law conference met here yesterday and determined to introduce some bills which are admissible under the call of Gov. Pinchot. Many of the bills are full of dynamite, and their consideration will not be a mere matter of voting whether the state shall or shall not operate an enterprise such as was concerned in the liquor bills.

For one thing, permanent registration in Pittsburgh and other cities will become an issue.

For another, there will be a demand that paid watchers shall be eliminated. The paid watchers have become an evil which even the most wealthy political party no longer cares to tolerate, and not in the future, if the law passes, will a man get a watcher's certificate because he has five or more grown children in his family and can deliver their votes at the polls in return for a $5 bill.

There will be another bill, providing for quick returns of election returns to a central point, which will get away from the old system of holding back what should be the results, and rejiggering them to suit the needs of a favored candidate.

* * *

Unity Lacking Among Election Reformers

But the election law reformers are not a unit in their own enterprise. Three figures stuck out yesterday in the deliberations, and there was by no means harmony in their endeavors.

The three central figures were Alexander P. Lindsay, of Pittsburgh, chairman of the conference; Senator Frank J. Harris, who thinks the Republican organization is composed of some rough fellows—though he said nothing about that in the recent primary and general election in our now pure community—and Mrs. Kathryn Flohr, head of the Council of Democratic Women, a political factor the Guffey-Lawrence combination did not dare throw to the wolves when it took over management of the party.

On the bills enumerated above, the conference is in agreement. But when it comes to other measures there is no harmony, even among those who favor election law improvements.

For instance, the law which prevents a candidate being the primary candidate of more than one party.

Mrs. Flohr, a lady who speaks her mind, whether Democrats or Republicans approve, yesterday berated Gov. Pinchot for vetoing the so-called party raiding bill which was passed in the last session and which was promoted by the Democrats. It will come in again, this time under the sponsorship of Representative John J. Kane.

Senator Harris, who had five nominations in the last primary, doesn't like that bill. He was the lone Senate member from Allegheny County who voted against it last winter. So there is one point on which the election reformers are split in the special session.

* * *

Wonder Where Harris Was During Campaign

Mr. Lindsay, defeated for judge of the Common Pleas Court in the recent primary and general election, had been an indefatigable fighter for clean election laws. He has attempted to fight the matter not only through the Legislature but through a personal political candidacy.

There are reports that Mr. Lindsay wonders where Senator Harris was during the two recent municipal contests.

In yesterday's session Senator Harris, who in the Senate is one of the most independent members one could desire, blamed the regular Republican leadership for killing election reform, including permanent registration, in the last session. He was absolutely right.

But this morning some organization Republicans, after observing the Senator's remarks, inquired what he was doing during the recent slight political bickering in Pittsburgh.

It was their observation that in the primary, as between Mayor John S. Herron, Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell and Councilman P. J. McArdle, he had not been discernible.

Then, when Mayor Herron and William N. McNair fought the battle of Republicans against Democrats, these regular leaders want to know where the Senator was holding forth.

It is reported that Mayor Herron made frequent efforts to get him to state his attitude, without success. He certainly did not champion Mr. McNair and the Democrats who fought the regular Republican leadership which Senator Harris yesterday decried.

The usual odds of eight to five are offered that there will be no pussy footing on the election law legislation, that Senator Harris will fight for all reforms vigorously, in Harrisburg and that there is a fair chance that he will have some success this time. That will be his answer to the organization—in Harrisburg.

MARY C. DANAHEY, 17 . . . COMMITTED TO MORGANZA

Sweetheart of McDade Placed in Morganza

Girl in Auto Death Triangle Balked In Elopement

Mary C. Danahey, 17-year-old sweetheart of Edward McDade, out on bond while awaiting trial in connection with the death of his wife, Grace, has been committed to Morganza on a charge of incorrigibility, Frank Ferris, lieutenant of homicide detectives, announced today.

Mary's father, Edward Danahey, and her brother, Earl, of 109 Hope Hollow road, near Carnegie, signed her commitment order, according to Ferris. The girl was arrested yesterday, he said, when the mother and father suspected that she was planning an elopement with McDade.

McDade, who lives at 2136 Charles street, said that his wife jumped from their speeding automobile during a quarrel, suffering fatal injuries. Detectives, insisting that he may have pushed her out, link her death to the love between McDade and Miss Danahey.

Held for court on a manslaughter charge, McDade announced that he would marry the girl. A court forbade the ceremony before his trial, because a wife cannot testify against her husband.

TRAFFIC DEATHS DECREASE HERE

Traffic accidents in Pittsburgh reached a new high for any single month during October, according to an announcement by Lewis W. McIntyre, traffic engineer, today. Fatalities, however, for the same period showed a marked decrease.

While 599 accidents were reported, only 11 persons were fatally injured, a decrease in fatalities of 26.6 per cent from October, 1932, when 15 persons died in traffic accidents. For the first 10 months of this year only 95 deaths have been reported, compared with a total of 105 for the same period in 1932.

McIntyre pointed out that the improvement in accident reporting may have caused an increase in the total number of accidents reported. He said that fatalities were the best comparison medium in judging the degree of safety on city streets.

Auto of Sleuth's Brother in Crash

An automobile, which police said had been stolen a few minutes previously from 1640 Colwell streeet, crashed into a machine owned by Ben Fromme, brother of City Detective Sol Fromme, at Colwell and Townsend streets.

The two occupants, both Negroes, who said they were Charles Patilla, 19, of 2448 Bedford avenue, and Harold Scott, 18, of 2502 Bedford avenue, were arrested.

PARADE TO OPEN YULE BUYING CAMPAIGN

Sun-Telegraph Comic Page Heroes to Act As Santa's Aides

Mythical and historical figures of the ages, and their appealing counterparts of story book, comic page and motion picture fame, will "make a day of it" in Pittsburgh Saturday, officially launching the city's 1933 Christmas shopping season.

In character from top to toe, the 14 mirth-makers of the Sun-Telegraph "funnies" will be stationed as follows all day Saturday:

Barney Google, Boggs and Buhl's; Tillie the Toiler, Frank and Seder's; Polly, of Polly and Her Pals, Friend's; Maggie and Jiggs, Gimbels'; Inspector Day, Hahn Furniture, 809 Federal street; Popeye, Horne's; Mickey Mouse, Kaufmann's; the Captain of the Katzenjammer Kids, McCreery's; Felix the Cat, May-Stern's; Toots and Casper, Rosenbaum's; Skippy, Spear's, and Boob McNutt, Sears-Roebuck's.

Heading the "Santa Claus" parade will be Mayor John S. Herron, Director of Public Safety Harmar D. Denny, Jr., and Santa himself surrounded by his busy, toy-making gnome assistants. The Yuletide pageant will begin to form at 7 a. m. at Ridge and Irwin avenues, start at 9 a. m. and move through the principal thoroughfares of the North Side and downtown triangle.

15,000 IN PARADE

Scheduled to continue for two hours, the parade will disband at the City-County Building, where the reviewing stand will be located. Sepcial details of city police will be on hand to handle the crowds and re-route traffic.

More than 15,000 marchers will participate. Included, in addition to Santa, his retinue and story

300 CHILDREN IN HEALTH TEST

More than 300 children between the ages of 2 and 6, whose parents are supported by the county relief organizations, were given medical examination in the German United Evangelical Church, South Side, yesterday by the Allegheny Child Health Emergency Association.

Doctors, headed by Dr. H. T. Price, chairman of the association, volunteered and rendered their services. Dr. Price said the main purpose of the examination is to eliminate any disease that might interfere with the normal health and weight of a child before it enters school.

The movement was started by the Pennsylvania Medical Society last February, when it called the attention of Gov. Pinchot to the physical condition of children in the state. The Governor then organized the Pennsylvania State Emergency Child Health Committee, out of which county organizations were formed.

Dr. Samuel Hammill is chairman of the state committee, being appointed by Gov. Pinchot and the State Medical Society.

Divorces Granted To Two Women

Divorces were granted to Emma T. Krimm from Gilbert S. Krimm, and to Sarah Barsky from Samuel H. Barsky, while Rebecca F. Robertson, of 5704 Elgin avenue, has filed a libel in divorce against Dandridge S. Robertson, of Newport, Ky., alleging desertion.

Dorothy E. Stevens filed divorce proceedings against Ralph Stevens.

Gag Is Clamped On Treasury's Political Gags

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

When Mr. Sprague marched out four abreast Mr. Morgenthau said poetically:

"I think the sun will rise and the birds will sing."

That's when President Roosevelt slapped the gag on all Treasury gags.

The sun may rise tomorrow in the Treasury building. But the only tan Mr. Morgenthau will get will be from reflected glory.

The birds will sing also. But it will be a community chorus from a gilded cage.

We're not rapping Morgenthau's poetry. It has earned him a promotion.

Man Found Hurt, Police Investigate

Found unconscious at Eighteenth street and Penn avenue, a man believed to be George Blakely, 40, of 1817 Cresent street, was taken to St. Francis Hospital suffering from a probable fracture of the skull. Police are endeavoring to determine how he came to his injuries.

2 KILLED, BOY HURT BY TRAINS

A man and a boy were killed and another boy was critically injured in train accidents last night.

Struck by a shifting engine of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad as he returned from school, Thomas Peden, 11, of Gratztown, was killed. His brother, Albert, 8, was taken to the McKeesport Hospital, where surgeons amputated both feet in an effort to save his life.

J. M. Crouse, 63, of Chatsworth street, Hazelwood, former chief clerk to the divisional superintendent of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad, was killed by a Baltimore and Ohio train in Hazelwood.

Railroad officials said the boys were walking on the tracks when a shifter, running backwards, struck them. The engine and a dozen cars passed over them before they were discovered by the train crew.

Downtown Blaze Brings Still Alarm

Firemen were summoned to the Iron City Electric Company at 575 Sixth avenue early today by a still alarm. The fire, which was confined to the basement, did no damage.

An armed man walked into George's restaurant at 12 West Stockton avenue early today, held up George Soldotos, the proprietor, and escaped with $7

SPEED CANVASS OF CITY; DRIVE NEARING END

Workers Hope for Success; $48,759 Received Today

With an encouraging report made at today's noon meeting, workers in the Welfare Fund drive for $2,837,000 began a determined canvass of the city in an effort to reach, if possible, the goal of the drive. Today, $48,759 additional was reported by the workers.

This amount brings to date a total of $1,569,324, something less than $1,200,000 short of the goal.

With the campaign scheduled to close next Tuesday, and only four more report meetings, chances of securing the full amount by the closing date are slim, officers announced.

Although the money is not coming in as it should, leaders said that the number of subscriptions received to date this year is 50 per cent in excess of the number in at the same date last year and are confident that the total number of pledges in the campaign will greatly exceed last year's number of 75,000.

This is taken as evidence that wage earners and small contributors throughout the county are giving their full support to the fund and failure to reach the goal cannot be attributed to any lack of response from this group.

Yesterday's report meeting at Kaufmann's was in charge of the unit division, and Roy G. Bostwick, chairman of that section of the campaign, presided. Horace F. Baker cited the 1931 campaign, in which the Welfare Fund secured nearly $5,500,000 in Allegheny County, stated that the money "is here" and that workers must fight to get the kind of subscriptions necessary to put the campaign over.

WIDOWED BRIDE TRIES SUICIDE

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Violet Haney, 15-year-old school girl who disappeared a week ago with an ex-convict, who later was killed by her father, was found in a rooming house here today with her wrists slashed.

Police said the girl had cut herself with a razor in a fit of despondency. She left home a week ago with R. V. Pitts, 35, who promised to take her to a store to buy her a dress.

When she failed to come home, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Haney, went in search of her. Returning home Friday evening they found Pitts in their home. Haney told officers that the man threatened him and his wife and that in an exchange of shots, Pitts was killed.

The girl told police that Pitts had taken her to the rooming house.

GOLF BALL HITS GIRL, CITY SUED

For the loss of the sight of her left eye, when a golf ball shattered the windshield of an automobile, Madeline Brandon, 7, through her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Brandon, Punxsutawney, has filed suit against the City of Pittsburgh for $50,000 damages.

It is claimed that while driving through Schenley Park, last June 20, a golf ball shattered the glass of the Brandon car. Madeline was taken to the Children's Hospital, where she was a patient until August 1.

It is alleged that the city did not afford proper protection to the roadway. Attorney Charles J. Margiotti represents the plaintiff.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Nov. 23. To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph: These breeds of scientists, they risk their lives, receive no money, all to find out something. But they are awful queer to us dumb ones. They fly over the poles when there is no pole, they go eleven miles straight up to see something, when there is nothing to see but air.

Will Rogers

Now air is a mighty fine thing (when not oozing from a public speaker). But to take your life in your hands to go eleven miles up just to see it, when there is nothing more interesting to look at than air! Yours, WILL.

Operator 13 by ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

Gail Escapes Woman Enemy Then Faces A New Peril

(Republished from Cosmopolitan Magazine and soon to appear on the screen as a Cosmopolitan production made for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and starring Marion Davies.)

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

"If I leave them in your barn," he insisted, "some Yankee lancer may gobble them before Stuart gets here tonight."

"We must take that chance. It's more important you get to Jackson with Stuart's message and my information."

"I reckon you are right, ma'am. I certainly do hate to leave those horses . . and that actress they call Operator 13. You'll see she's arrested?"

"I'll attend to her," said Lady Greensleeves. "Hark," she added in a whisper. They stood listening, heard no sound. "You'd better go."

A Martyr

"I'm sorry," she said. "Your brother died like a Southern soldier and is numbered with our martyrs in this dark hour."

"Yes, ma'am, he, he is. There was a priest with him—at the end. He is on his way to God, I reckon. He stood staring into the darkness. Well, m'am, I reckon I better go to Stonewall now."

"May God comfort you in your grief."

"I thank you kindly, ma'am."

He turned and descended the veranda steps unhitched Skylark and Lady Margrave, and led them away toward the stables. After a while he reappeared and climbed into his own saddle.

"May avenging angels ride with you," whispered Lady Greensleeves fiercely.

He bowed low in his stirrups, touched his horse and cantered away westward.

He had been gone an hour or more before Lady Greensleeves left the veranda, went into the house and upstairs and leaned over her sleeping child.

Mrs. Morris came into the corridor and spoke cautiously: "Have our people arrived, Rosalie?"

"Not yet."

"If they don't hurry all the Yankee cavalry in Maryland will be here," whispered Mrs. Morris. "Is that actress spy of theirs still asleep under the trees?"

"Yes."

"If Jeb Stuart doesn't catch her she'll ruin him yet," said Mrs. Morris.

"I'll see to it that she contrives no more murders," said Lady Greensleeves, descending the dark stairs.

"Where are you going, Rosalie?"

Lady Greensleeves went into the back parlor, opened the drawer of a lacquered table, took a loaded pistol from it, and came lightly back into the hallway.

"I'm going up the street to see whether this she-devil is still there," she said; "and if she is, I'm going to detain her there until our cavalry arrives."

She went out of the house, cat-foot, let herself out of the gate and moved stealthily up Main street toward the sycamores. As she reached the sleeping figure, there came a sound of scurrying hoofs, nearer, nearer, and two lancers galloped by.

As the racket of hoofs and whistling snap of lance-pennons died away to the westward, a slight stirring behind her attracted Lady Greensleeves' attention, and her delicate fingers tightened on the pistol she clutched, buried in the billowy folds of her poplin skirts. Then she turned and saw what seemed to be a ragged Negro lad standing at her elbow.

"Evenin,' missus," said Operator 13. "Is yuh see me sleepin' in de grass?"

Lady Greensleeves said calmly: "Who are you, little colored boy?"

"Mah names Moses, ma'am. I'se a contraband, an' I jes' a-honin' tuh run yuh errants, lady."

"Did you write a letter to me?"

"Yaas'm. Is yuh Miss Howe, ma'am?"

Read This First

Gail Loveless, experienced actress at 20, was sent into the Confederate lines as a Union Spy. Disguised as a quadroon laundress, she deceived everybody, including Capt. Jack Gailliard, gallant spy in the Confederate service, who was ashamed to find himself deeply stirred by her saffron loveliness. Vespasian Chancellor, chief of Confederate spies, presently exposed her and she fled for her life. She stole the clothing of a farm boy to make herself appear to be a Negro stable boy.

Outwitting the pursuing Chancellor and Gailliard, she captured them, one at a time, and led them toward the Federal lines. On the way they stumbled upon the dreadful spectacle of a Union Army hanging a Confederate spy, and Operator 13, sickened, freed her prisoners. Before he rode away, Gailliard kissed her. Then she rode into Emmitsburg, Maryland, at dusk.

Exhausted, she met a young man who spoke the pass phrase of the Northern secret service and, at his advice, lay down under a tree to sleep. The man, a Southern spy, betrayed Operator 13 to the beautiful Lady Greensleeves, Confederate spy, who was living in Emmitsburg. Lady Greensleeves promised to "take care of the young Yankee actress" until the Confederate cavalry should arrive to hang her.

Now Go On With the Story

Admiration

"Is yuh did yuh chores, ma'am?" inquired Operator 13. "Hit's mos' near mawnin', lady, an' I'se jes a-honin tuh wash de front walk an de gallery."

Lady Greensleeves searched the shadowy, smiling features of this seeming Negro lad. If this, truly, were that murderess actress bent on the destruction of Jeb Stuart and all his riders, the disguise and voice and acting were perfection.

"Where did you hear of me?" asked Lady Greensleeves.

"Who told you that?"

"Yaas'm, lady."

Both heard it. Through the veins of Gail Loveless crept the icy chill of fear. She looked into the lovely eyes of Lady Greensleeves.

"Don't move," said Lady Greensleeves, as the pistol glittered in her white hand.

There fell a terrible silence between them. In the frightened ears of Operator 13 the blood pounded like the tread of oncoming horses. Or was it really the trampling of hoofs she heard?

Lady Greensleeves said: "God shall deal with you tonight as you have dealt with our nearest and dearest. And one of these was hanged today. And you betrayed him to the gallows! And now you are planning to betray 2,000 American lads to the merciless Yankee sabers! You spawn of Judas!"

"I have—have betrayed nobody t-to the gallows," Operator 13 stammered. "Vespasian Chancellor and—and Jack Gailliard were my prisoners, but I let them go."

A Difference

"You came here to make a prisoner of me, did you not?"

"They would not have hanged you. But your people will hang me unless you let me go." The heavy beating of her heart was like loud blows on her young breast; in her deafened ears roared the ground shaking shock of horses.

Union Officer Fails To Heed Warning Given by Girl

JURY DEADLOCKS FAIL TO HALT FRAUD TRIAL DRIVE

U. S. TO PRESS VOTE CASES TO FINISH

Disagreement by a second Federal Court jury as to the guilt of defendants in election fraud cases has not lessened the determination of government prosecutors to try the 107 men and women indicted on charges of cheating in the general election of November, 1932.

Earl F. Reed, special government prosecutor, and First Assistant United States Attorney James I. Marsh, said:

"The two cases in which juries have failed to reach a verdict will again be scheduled for trials."

REVEAL DISAGREEMENT

The jurors in the case of the five members of the election board of the Nineteenth district, Fourth Ward, second of the cases tried, at 1:35 p. m. yesterday, after nearly 24 hours of deliberating, told Judge F. P. Schoonmaker, through their foreman, E. J. Ocker, of Turtle Creek, they were unable to agree.

Interrogated by the court as to the possibility of arriving at a decision through further deliberation, the foreman replied:

"I don't think so."

VOTE DECLARED CLOSE

The jury was discharged and directed to return to court today for further duty. The members were weary from 24 hours in a small room in the Federal Building, unequipped with rest facilities.

The jurors declined to reveal how the vote stood, but one said:

"It was pretty close."

The defendants were Joseph Tortorelli, judge; Malachi Tiernan and Irvin Braun, inspectors, and John F. McNally and Bernard Grossman, clerks, of the board in the Nineteenth District.

TRIAL POSTPONED

Earlier in the day the court, on motion of Attorney Reed, postponed the trial of members of the election board of the Eighth District, Fourth Ward, scheduled yesterday, until December 11.

The government attorney told the court that when 28 names were drawn for the selection of 12 jurors, it was found four of the number had served on the jury which on Saturday disagreed in the first election fraud trial.

Attorney E. G. Coll, defense counsel with Attorney A. M. Oliver, proposed unsuccessfully that the government exercise four of its challenges in removing the persons in question.

A new panel of 125 petit jurors will report Monday for two weeks' serivce. No interruption is anticipated in the trials of three other cases. That of members of the Election Board of the First District, Third Ward, will start Monday.

SUMMON JURY IN CLARK DEATH

WOODBURY, N. J., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Linwood Lord, acting prosecutor of Gloucester County, said today that the way the evidence "now shapes up" he does not see how he could ask a first degree murder verdict against Mrs. Audrey S. Clark, charged with the shooting of her husband, Sheldon A. Clark, 35, in his home at Paulsboro Monday night.

Prosecutor Lord said Mrs. Clark, a former show girl, will not be given a hearing before a justice of the peace in the hospital. He has ordered the grand jury to reconvene next Tuesday at which time he will present the evidence he has obtained.

Assured of co-operation from the family of Clark, attorneys for his widow say she will plead not guilty to the murder charge against her on the grounds of "self defense during a temporary period of emotional insanity."

Assurance of co-operation of the Clark family with the young widow was given by Harry A. S. Clark, of Barrington, Ill., brother of the dead man, after the funeral yesterday.

3 Election Board Officials Indicted

Three members of the election board of the Fifth District, Seventeenth Ward, were indicted today on charges of violating the election laws. They were accused of permitting illegal assistance of voters at the primaries, September 19.

Those named are Michael Zagorski, judge, and Leo Garvey and Andy Sydorm, inspectors. The prosecutor is Francis A. Gallagher, of 1305 Carson street.

Columbia Nurses Plan Benefit Tea

A benefit "silver" tea will be given from 2 to 6 p. m. tomorrow by the Columbia Hospital Nurses Alumnae in the nurses' home, West street, Wilkinsburg.

Grand Jury Ignores Bill Against Burgess

The grand jury today ignored a bill charging misdemeanor in office against Lee Weiser Burgess of Forest Hills. The prosecutor, W. J. Campbell, had charged that Weiser had unlawfully sold materials to the borough and was interested in contracts for sale of materials to the borough.

Suddenly a noisier clatter broke out from the eastward; and with a rattling rush two Yankee leaders—Corp. Anderson, of D Company, and Prvt. Dougherty—appeared, spurring through the street toward the Gettysburg road.

As they galloped past there came a startled shout from the darkness ahead of them; then a pistol shot and the scream of a lanced horse. But the two gallopers from Col. Rush tore through the Confederate column and sped on.

All around her boiled a turmoil of horses and men, as Lady Greensleeves, pistol in hand, searched fiercely for the ragged figure that had disappeared among the shadowy horsemen crowding Main street. For the Yankee actress had vanished amid the milling riders.

But now the long column was reforming, straightening out, moving on through Main street.

Shadows

The nuns from St. Joseph's and the priests from ancient St. Mary's, alarmed by the uproar, were huddling near their colleges under the trees, trying to understand what was happening to this old Revolutionary town. And among them cowered Operator 13 behind a mossy wall, terrified, but fascinated, thrilled with that strange pleasure born of peril.

It was already midnight. The phantom Rebel vanguard, guns, led horses, prisoners, had gone on through the old town street; but a ghostly regiment in column remained halted there—a band of mounted shadows among shadows.

Operator 13, scarce understanding what she was doing, yet already stirred and directed by that strange intuition which forestalls reason and purpose in such as she, stole out of St. Mary's dusk and crept toward the Chambersburg road. And saw, in the starlight, a troop of Federal cavalry moving at a walk toward the Rebel-choked town.

The horror of their situation so shocked her that she gave no thought to herself but sprang down the slope, calling out to them, until a lancer drew bridle, dismounted, caught her by a ragged sleeve and dragged her with him to the little column of men and horses.

"Halt! Halt!" she repeated in an agonized voice. "Can't you understand? I tell you the town is full of Jeb Stuart's cavalry passing through! Listen to me. I'm Operator 13 of the United States Secret Service and I know what I'm talking about."

"Halt!" said a quiet voice; and "Halt! halt!" was repeated along the line until the horses stood motionless.

An officer turned his mount, rode up beside her, leaned down close to her and struck a match. It burned blue, then brightly, illuminating her face and his. She recognized him instantly, naming him hysterically. "Captain Cadwalader, do you remember when you came to Major Allen's headquarters in Blanton's house I was upstairs with Pauline Cushman. I am Operator 13."

Incredulous

"You saw cavalry in Emmitsburg tonight?" he demanded.

"Yes."

"Did they wear blue uniforms?"

"Yes, sir, but they got those in Chambersburg."

"They are our own men," he said.

"They are Jeb Stuart's!" she insisted.

"Very well," he said. "I'll go and see."

"I'm trying to tell you that Emmitsburg is full of Stuart's cavalry," she wailed, "and you won't believe me!"

"That is impossible," he retorted. Stuart went on to Gettysburg. And if you're a rebel agent sent to mislead us, you're in a lot of trouble right now, my lad." He leaned over from his horse, took the seeming Negro boy by the collar, motioned to a corporal to discard his lance and follow, and said to his lieutenant: "Keep your men halted; I'm riding forward to take a look."

Operator 13 squirmed in his grasp, begging and pleading, scared almost out of her wits; but the obstinate Philadelphian, with all the arrogance of aristocratic bravery, rode on, dragging her along.

Down the dark road and straight into Main street they moved; and suddenly Capt. Charles Cadwalader found himself riding close to a halted column of cavalry in blue uniforms.

"What regiment is this?" he inquired.

"Stuart's cavalry," replied a shadowy figure.

The unexpected and shocking reply caught him like a blow in the face; but he managed to weather it like a Philadelphian and a soldier. "Oh, I know that," he said carelessly, "but I'm asking you what is your regiment!"

There was a silence of suspicion; a restless movement among the halted horsemen. The lives of these two Union cavalrymen quivered in the balance.

Then somebody said: "By God, he talks like a Yankee!"

A YOUNG WORKMAN'S CONGRATULATIONS FOR MRS. PINCHOT

WITNESS NAPS, MISSES TRIAL

Oliver E. Lewis, a Negro, of Wadsworth street, is out $7.50 in Federal Court witness fees, because he overslept and failed to appear as a government witness in a counterfeiting case Tuesday.

For four days he waited for the case to start. On the fifth day, when it did, he was missing.

Yesterday, taken into court by a deputy marshal, he told Judge Schoonmaker he had worked the night before and, taking a nap before court, overslept. He arrived in time to find the case over, the defendant convicted.

The court assessed $2 costs for service of a warrant charging contempt of court, but later remitted this.

BAR CHARGE HIT BY CONSTABLE

If aldermen and justices of the peace made a ruling to demand advanced costs upon entry of a suit before them, it would be a sad blow to a lot of lawyers, H. Cohen, constable, of 1017 Fifth avenue, wrote today in a reply to the Allegheny County Bar Association committee's charge of "scavengering" by some of the minor judiciary.

Cohen, explaining the use lawyers and others make of the minor judiciary's offices in which the alderman and constables get no fees, regardless of expenses, added:

"It would be surprising to know the great number of attorneys who owe costs to various aldermen and keep traveling from one to another with their cases."

GOLLMAR LEAD MOUNTS TO 769 VOTES

With more than two-thirds of the county canvassed by the Return Board, his lead was 769 over Democrat John Heinz, in a computation of official and unofficial figures.

Substantial error in the remaining boxes to be recounted, or in the unofficial tabulation, must be discovered to overcome this advantage.

DEMOCRATS CONFIDENT

Democrats, however, suffered no loss of confidence, Attorney B. B. McGinnis predicting a Heinz victory by 600 votes. McGinnis said Democratic unofficial figures, which show Heinz winner, had proved accurate in comparison with the official count.

F. G. Weir, attorney for the Democrats, said Heinz had gained 95 in the recount of 19 boxes, and would pick up 137 more when a decision was rendered on the "hijacked" Eighth District of the Seventeenth Ward.

The Return Board's tabulation for 643 districts is:

Gollmar	127,174
Heinz	126,073

BRADDOCK RETURNS

In the Braddock burgess fight, where two districts were recounted, Fred Seim, Democrat, won a net gain of six from James H. Rose, incumbent, according to Attorney Leo Kostman.

This reduces Rose's lead to 10 votes. Kostman, representing Seim, predicted a 20 vote gain for his candidate in a third district now under recount.

M'NAIR BOASTS 'HE'S GUY WHO BEAT MELLON'

By JOHN P. COWAN,
Sun-Telegraph Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—The press room in the Public Works Administration was all a flutter. Administrator Ickes yesterday had just announced gifts of 12 millions for country-wide projects with a prodigality that sounded like the jingle of gold.

Fifty newspaper correspondents, breathless in their haste to put the story of new millions on the wires, milled round in the narrow room which echoed the clicky-clack of a score of typewriters, the ripping of paper and excited shouting into buzzing telephones.

The door opened and a stranger in a derby hat looked in. Nobody noticed him.

The stranger paused a moment and then in a ringing voice inquired:

"Any Democrats around here?"

Still he failed to obtain an audience amid the confusion.

The stranger drew back into the corridor as he let the door slam to punctuate his ringing voice:

"I'm the guy who licked Andy Mellon."

"Who is that guy?"

And the porter answered:

And it was.

M'GOVERN HIT AS 'SQUAWKER'

Michael J. Dwyer, Democratic chairman of the Second Ward, McKees Rocks, today had branded County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern a "squawker" and accused him of wasting county money on the Stoops Ferry-Shousetown road.

Dwyer was acting as spokesman for a score of county laborers rebuked by the Commissioner Tuesday when they complained of favoritism toward certain workmen on the job. Dwyer said he took an active part in the campaign to elect McGovern in 1931 and added:

"Then he called the boys in McKees Rocks 'my loyal friends.' Yesterday he branded us as Communists."

Dwyer said the total expenditure on the mile and a quarter road is twice that any contractor would spend on a similar stretch of roadway.

CHANGE IN TAX OFFICE PLANNED

Looking forward to the virtual elimination of the county transcribing department of the tax office, county officials will prepare recommendations for submission to the County Commissioners for the installation of a modern type of transcribing and recording machinery. The first unit probably will be installed in the tax office and later units will be connected with it in the offices of the Treasurer and Controller.

George E. Meyers, chairman of the tax board; Samuel Price, of the Treasurer's office, and Controller Robert G. Woodside and Nevin Woodside, Controller's statistian, met with the Commissioners yesterday and discussed the system.

They are to meet again and draft recommendations with an estimate of cost of installation, for submission to the Commissioners by the time the 1934 budget is started December 11.

MEDICAL ADVICE

If you want to

. . . keep the bowel action regular and comfortable
. . . make constipated spells as rare as colds
. . . avoid danger of bowel strain
—use a liquid laxative

NRA

Can constipation be overcome? "Yes!" say medical men. "Yes!" declare thousands who have followed their advice and know.

You are not apt to cure your constipation with salts, pills and tablets, or any habit-forming cathartic. But you can overcome this condition just by gentle regulation with a suitable liquid laxative.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has the average person's bowels just as regular as clockwork in a ——— time.

Why Hospitals use a liquid laxative

The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can be controlled. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will it irritate the kidneys.

The right liquid laxative will bring a perfect movement, with no discomfort at the time, or afterward.

The wrong cathartic may keep you constipated as long as you keep on using it!

In buying any laxative, read the label. If it contains a doubtful drug, don't take it. If you don't know what is in it, don't chance it. The contents of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is stated plainly on the label; fresh herbs, pure pepsin, active senna.

Its very taste tells you syrup pepsin is wholesome. A delightful taste, and delightful action. Safe for expectant mothers, and children. Drugstores have it, ready for use, in big bottles.

THE TEST:

This test has proved to many men and women that their trouble was not "weak bowels," but strong cathartics!

First: select a properly prepared liquid laxative. Second: Take the dose you find suited to your system. Third: gradually reduce the dose until bowels are moving of their own accord.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has the highest standing among liquid laxatives, and is the one generally used.

—lagging appetite

There is a reasonable way to correct this condition. Pause and reason. You know that body weakness is frequently the result of a weak blood "picture"—lowering of the red-blood-cells and their hemoglobin—that are so very necessary to strength and vitality.

Then why not try S.S.S.—the proven tonic for decades? Its value has been proved by extensive scientific research and by millions of happy users.

Take S.S.S. and note the way your strength and appetite are restored. Two convenient sizes at all drug stores—the larger size is more economical. Don't permit any one to "switch" you in your determination to restore your red-blood-cells and their hemoglobin content for regaining strength. © The S.S.S. Co.

PITTSBURGHER ON HONEYMOON HURT IN CRASH

BRIDE ESCAPES COLLISION ON N. Y. BRIDGE

A Pittsburgh bridegroom was injured seriously, but his bride of four days escaped last night in an automobile accident on the Queensborough Bridge in New York last night, according to the Associated Press.

Norman J. Taylor, 26, of 1174 Chislett street, suffered a possible concussion of the brain and other injuries. His wife, Aurelia Mahony Taylor, daughter of D. J. Mahony, of 232 South Pacific avenue, was not hurt.

They had been married Monday morning in St. Lawrence Catholic Church by the Rev. Philip A. Callery, pastor, and started out for their honeymoon shortly after.

In the Taylor car were the mother, Mrs. Nellie Taylor, and a sister of the bridegroom. They live in Kew Gardens, N. Y.

PARADE TO OPEN YULE BUYING

book characters, will be 12 trumpeters in medieval costumes, heralds, toy soldiers, six bands, drum and bugle corps, more than a dozen floats depicting various phases of Christmas, a dragon 24 feet long and 16 feet high, and a fantastic collection of prehistoric beasts and grotesque figures designed by Tony Sarg.

The parade, to be divided into 10 sections headed by 12 marshals, will serve as the opening signal for Christmas shopping in line with the "Buy Early" drive urging shoppers to start their Yuletide buying before Thanksgiving this year.

'SHOP EARLY'

With "Shop Early and Make a Merry Christmas for Others" as its theme, the drive was launched recently to call attention to the fact that the period between Thanksgiving and Christmas this year is 30 per cent shorter than in any other year since 1922, providing only 20 shopping days before Christmas.

Since the staffs of most stores are not increased usually until after Thanksgiving, the period would shorten considerably the number of days' work afforded hundreds of unemployed by seasonal openings. Of the plan to extend the period to approximately a week before Thanksgiving, which falls a week from today, William P. Witherow, vice president of the Chamber of Commerce, said, urging public co-operation:

"Its success, bringing hundreds employment within the community, is directly in line with the standards of the NRA. It has my unstinted support."

Lincoln Place Man Hit by Auto, Dies

Elmer C. Jackson, 50, of Lincoln place, struck by an automobile as he was crossing Mifflin road, died a short time later in Homestead Hospital.

He was taken to the hospital by Walter Zera, of 68 Lown street, who, police said, was the driver of the automobile that hit Jackson.

FAT PEOPLE CAN REDUCE SAFELY WITHOUT DRUGS

Physician Explains New Safe Scientific Method of Weight Control

According to a well-known medical authority on the dangers of excess weight, it is no longer necessary for fat people to face the problems of reducing with revulsion and fear. Speaking over Station WCAE this prominent physician said that dieting, the bane of many a fat person's life and which often results in lowered vitality, can be dispensed with, as can strenuous exercises. Dangerous drugs, such as thyroid (unless taken under direction of a competent physician) should be avoided, as well as all other drastic reducing methods.

"Now it is absurd for anyone," he continued, "to take dangerous drugs or a daily dose of drastic salts that rushes food through the body half digested and leads to chronic constipation. Vannay, a convenient sugar-coated tablet, is the safe, natural regulator of the digestive ferments (Lipases) which control the production of fat in all human bodies."

"You don't have to starve yourself or go through painful exercises. You simply take the tablets each day and continue to eat three meals. The fat disappears at just the places where you want to lose it."

This remarkable product is on sale at all May Drug Stores. Any of our clerks will be glad to give you an interesting booklet, "How To Reduce With Absolute Safety."

Inventor's Startling Products Among Ripley Show's Wonders

Inanimate Objects Vie With Human Marvels

Human oddities are the most featured exhibitions in Ripley's "Believe It Or Not" Odditorium, but the hundereds of inanimate curiosities hold equal if not more profound interest in the Century of Progress Exposition attraction that will be transferred here next Monday.

This is the opinion of scores of Pittsburghers who saw the Odditorium at the World's Fair in Chicago.. The Sun-Telegraph brings it to Pittsburgh for one week in the former Campbell department store quarters at 333 Fifth avenue, which extends through to Oliver avenue.

Arranged in elaborate display cases, there will be hundreds of inanimate specimens. Many of them were prize winners in contests conducted by newspapers including the Sun-Telegraph, that publish the daily and Sunday cartoon feature, Ripley's "Believe It Or Not."

STRANGE EXHIBITS

Consider some of these interesting exhibits: A chair made from bottle caps; an electric motor inside a thimble; a violin made from a single piece of wood, another from 7,034 pieces of wood, and a third from 10,000 matches, a radio inside a finger ring.

Multiply these curiosities by scores. That's only an idea of what is found among Ripley's almost unbelievable curiosities. In addition, some 25 human oddities appear on 16 distinct stages with lecturers telling their interesting histories.

HUNDREDS CURIOUS

Greater Pittsburgh's interest is already aroused. Hundreds of pedestrians gaze at the enlarged Ripley cartoons already in the Fifth avenue showroom windows.

Reports come from Cleveland, where the Odditorium is showing this week, that fully 50,000 people will have seen the exhibits.

KAMONS DENIES ARSON DEATHS ON STAND

CLEVELAND, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Louis J. Kamons yesterday testified in his own defense at his trial on a charge of first degree murder growing out of the disastrous Ellington Apartments fire last year, denying in whole that he was an arsonist or that he knew anything about the allegations made against him by the state's star witness.

Abe Redlich, the state's witness, had testified earlier that Kamons had been implicated in the setting of 125 fires for prtofit. The state has contended that the defendant conspired to collect insurance on the apartment building where 30 persons lost their lives.

On cross-examination Assistant Prosecutor Charles J. McNamee questioned the Pittsburgh, Pa., resident closely on his purported acquaintance with William Spear, of Wilson, Pa. The witness replied he did not know Spear.

Girl Is Unhappy Because Of Unrequited Love

One-sided love affairs, with the girl doing all the heavy dating and anxious waiting, and the Boy Friend dropping around when and if he chooses—

Is there a girl who hasn't had at least one such affair?

No, there isn't. So be a good sport—put aside your painful blushes and tell little Sasha what to do about hers. Dear Elsie:

For over a year and a half I have been going out with a boy, and I have been in love with him since almost the first day we met, even though I know that the feeling is not mutual.

During this year and a half occasions have arisen when I have been terribly hurt by the way he acted toward me. There have been long silences on his part—weeks and weeks when he didn't call me or make any effort to see me.

Finally he would phone and we would go out. Everything would be forgiven and forgotten. I just simply had no pride where he was concerned.

This time five weeks have elapsed, and not a word from him. Now I realize that the best thing I could do would be to forget him. But I love him so, and I keep on hoping, waiting for him to call.

WANTS LETTERS BACK

I have written many letters to him in the course of our friendship, which I now regret very much. I would like very much to get them back. Would it be advisable for me to make a point of seeing him, and asking him for them? Or should I wait until I hear from him again?

I am beginning to feel that I have been a fool long enough. But I don't know what to do. Please help me. SASHA.

What'll you do? Well, you've made a great start, honey, by deciding that you've been a fool long enough." Now if you can stick to that—

Yes, I know how you'll want to waver. You're angry today but tomorrow you'll be saying:

"He doesn't really mean to neglect me. He's just that way—he doesn't remember to do things promptly like other men. But he'd feel terrible if I dropped him, for he really needs me.

"I understand him better than anyone else does. I know how to bring out the best in him. Oh, I just mustn't drop him. No matter how he hurts me, I must stick by him. Some day he'll wake up and realize how he's acting, and then, if I've been loyal, he'll be so grateful!"

CONCEITED MAN

That's what you'll be saying tomorrow, youngster. That's what every girl says about just such a man as yours, at least once in her life.

But is it true?

No, Sasha, it isn't. It's hooey!

Your young man isn't a Bewildered Soul who doesn't know what he's doing and needs you to understand him. He's just a callous, conceited young pup who thinks only of his own pleasure, and who doesn't care a hoot about you if there's anything more exciting on the program.

That's a bitter fact to face, but it's the truth. And you'll never be of any value to any man, or yourself, until you face it—and act on it.

So write for those letters—and give him the air, Sis. It will mean a wrench. But you'll be surprised to find how proud you will be of Sasha.

Fay King Tells Why the Fall Is Her Favorite Time of Year

By FAY KING

Fall has always been my favorite time of the year, because I like best the things that fall brings.

The gorgeous "mums" which I can neither spell or pronounce have long been my favorite flower.

The great golden pumpkins which appear like captive moons in restaurant windows garnished with gay fall leaves, delight me no end to see.

Chestnuts, grapes and hot chocolate appeal to my palate much more than the ice cream, fruits and melons of summer's bounty.

I also love the long cozy evenings, to be nibbling and reading. And I like the busy streets and buildings better when they are jeweled with lights in early dusk.

Every season is lovely in its way but for me fall is the loveliest.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Teething Is Not Always the Cause of Baby's Ills

Everyone is familiar with the common expression, "Baby is teething." Restlessness, fever, indigestion or constipation of the young infant is often attributed to "cutting the teeth." It is probable that in most instances certainly, this is an unconfirmed assumption. More careful investigation would lead to the discovery of a different source of the trouble.

Dr. Copeland

According to a recent investigation, teething in healthy children does not cause any of the symptoms so commonly attributed to difficult teething. In fact, it has been shown repeatedly that only about 10 per cent of children have any real effects from this difficulty.

When there is trouble the gum over the erupting tooth is hot and tender. As a rule, fever may be present but this disappears as the tooth cuts through. If the baby is restless and irritable do not take for granted that it is teething. If fever is present, and it persists, medical attention should be sought.

I am often asked, "When should the baby's teeth first appear?" The child has two sets of teeth, the temporary and the permanent teeth. The temporary set, often called the "milk teeth," consists of 20 teeth. These begin to appear at six months of age and are all present at about 30 months. Some children have teeth earlier than others.

Do not be alarmed if your baby has not cut his teeth by eight, or even nine months. If the baby has no teeth by the end of the first year, consult with your doctor. It may be due to a faulty diet, or to some other factor that hinders proper dental development. Bear in mind that bottle-fed babies are slower in cutting their teeth than breast-fed babies.

I cannot overemphasize the importance of proper dental care of the temporary teeth. These teeth require the same attention and dental care that should be given the permanent teeth. A healthy mouth means a healthy body. Dental cavities, or decayed teeth, are a source of danger and often lead to spread of infection elsewhere in the body.

As soon as the teeth appear, the mother should see that they are cleaned morning and evening. At first use a soft cloth and a mild alkaline solution, such as bicarbonate of soda or borax. As the child grows older, he should be instructed in the use of the tooth brush. If necessary, prizes should be offered for diligent care of the teeth.

Report to the dentist with your child for periodic examination. Care of dental defects of the temporary teeth will insure strong and sturdy permanent teeth. In this way many abnormalities of the mouth can be prevented.

Husband Explains to Madge About Business Partner

My husband came into my room slowly, and there was in his face and manner a curious indecision, as if he were not sure just what he wanted to say to me.

I tried to make my voice casual.

"Oh! Hello!" I said. "Just throw that blanket off the big chair. I thought perhaps I'd need another one tonight."

"When did you get that outfit?" he said, coming forward and taking a fold of the silk between his fingers. "I've never seen it before, and it's about the niftiest thing of its kind I've ever seen you wear."

"Harriet sent it to me as a Christmas present," I told him. "I showed it to you in its box that day."

"Pajamas in a box are one thing, and pajamas on you, beloved of my soul, are something else again," he said with a grin. Then he dropped the fold of cloth and taking my two braids of hair in his hands, tugged gently at me until he had swung me to my feet and around facing him.

"How do you do it?" he queried, with apparent lightness, eyes boring deep into mine. "You aren't so much younger than I am, and by the Lord Harry, they'll be taking me for your father if I don't get my face lifted, or something!"

MADGE AMUSED

"That will be lovely," I said demurely, when I had stopped laughing. "I always thought it would be sort of nice to be an 'old man's darlin'."

"Oh, you did, did you?" he said. "Who's the particular grand-daddy you have your eye on? You needn't 'fess up, though. I'll let you off."

"You needn't," I said audaciously, "I don't mind telling you a bit. I've noticed you getting decrepit, bald and gray the last year, and I've made up my mind to gratify my youthful ambition and do my duty by my husband at the same time. Don't Dicky! You hurt!"

I made the last expostulation laughingly, as he caught me to him with a little exasperated but mirthful ejaculation, and rubbed his cheek roughly up and down against mine.

"That's my old white whiskers rasping your peach bloom cheek," he said when he had released me. "Perhaps that'll larn you not to make game of your lawfully wedded husband. But, honestly, old dear, you are the prettiest thing in that rig! You almost made me forget what I came in here for."

SERIOUSNESS RETURNS

The abstracted, serious look had come back to his face, and with a little pang I realized that the tenderness of his mood had passed, and that I must steel myself for something far different than lover-like murmurs and caresses. But one thing the little interlude had done for me, I knew. It had put me in a tender, charitable mood for whatever Dicky might tell me.

He appeared in no hurry to begin, however. He turned away, seated himself in the big chair, and stretched lazily, then settled back against the cushions.

"I hear old Phil has run up the white flag," he said.

"Who told you?" I parried, trying, even as he, to put off the revelation of whatever he wished to tell me. "Lillian, I suppose?"

"Eminently correct. She also told me of your plans to keep the Arlen as innocuous as possible. I don't mind telling you that I'm a bit worried about that young dame, myself. I'm going to keep a special eye on her every minute she's here, except for the few minutes when I'm giving the bride away.

"You're to be congratulated, though. You seem to have all the links of the chain gathered into your capable fingers. I wonder if you could straighten out Ede for me. She says she won't come to the wedding; that she knows you wouldn't want her to be here."

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

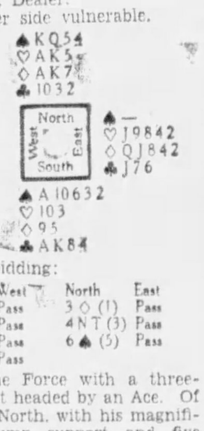
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

An Interesting Forced Lead

When a player finds an unusual and unfavorable banking of trumps against him there is too often an inclination to give up and at once concede that the contract cannot be made. There are, of course, no statistics available on the number of tricks lost by Bridge players through failure to make a real try in such cases, but it is certainly true that many apparently unfulfillable contracts can be made by making a proper plan for the play as soon as the Opening lead is made and the Dummy is spread upon the table. Such a plan should not be of cast-iron. It should be subject to such changes as are necessary as information is gained about the distribution of various suits in the hands of the players.

It was a recognition of this that permitted Mr. R. A. Bostian, of Buffalo, N. Y., to solve a difficult problem in play. The correct play required perfect timing and immediate grasping of the fact that he had to hope for a certain distribution if his plan was to be successful.

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	3 ◇ (1)	Pass
4 ♣ (2)	Pass	4 N T (3)	Pass
5 N T (4)	Pass	6 ♠ (5)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—The Force with a three-card suit headed by an Ace. Of course, North, with his magnificent trump support and five honor-tricks, immediately realizes that a Slam is probable.

2—While South's hand is a near minimum, its distribution suggests that it should play at a suit rather than notrump. Either North can support spades or clubs or has a strong suit of his own.

3—The conventional Slam try.

4—Showing the remaining Aces.

5—North does not bid more than six spades because he has no tricks outside of Aces and Kings except in his strong trump holding.

West's Opening lead was a small diamond, which was won by Dummy's King. The King of spades was then led from Dummy, and revealed the bad trump distribution. It now appeared to Mr. Bostian that he must lose a club and a trump. His one hope was that West held the Queen of clubs, as actually was the case. In order that West might not grasp the situation he was trying to develop, he then laid down two rounds of clubs, and West, not realizing the trap that was being laid for him, retained the Queen. Next the Ace and King of hearts were played, and the last heart in Dummy ruffed. South then cashed the Ace of diamonds and ruffed the last diamond in his own hand. West was now thrown in with the club Queen and was forced to lead away from his spade tenace, permitting Mr. Bostian to fulfill his contract.

TODAY'S QUESTION

My hand is:

♠ 9 6 5 4 3 ♡ A K 9 ◇ A Q 7 ♣ K 7

What Opening bid should I make?

Answer: While your hand does not actually contain a biddable suit, it is undesirable to bid a notrump having a 5-3-3-2 distribution. With such a hand it is therefore best to bid one spade, shading the suit requirements greatly because the hand contains so much outside honor strength.

All the while we were taking this picture, Mrs. John F. Ryan's youngest—one year old that very day!—really wanted to be at his daily job of mopping up the floor with his rompers! Sister too, who is seven, and the two-, four-, and five-year-old boys, had given up pressing engagements with dump trucks, go-cycles and attractive mud-holes to "stay clean this morning."

"I wash every day for the baby," Mrs. Ryan told us, "and do a big weekly wash of grimy blouses, trousers and underwear. I depend on CHIPSO for everything—the heavy washing as well as the light—blankets, curtains, cleaning, dishes. I use a package or more every week.

"Chipso certainly soaks dirt out! Even on my husband's work clothes I don't put in any extra rubbing. They come out as nice as can be. Yet Chipso leaves colors as bright as new. It is safe even for my silk stockings and the children's nicest woolens.

"Chipso doesn't bother my hands, either—that shows how safe it is," Mrs. Ryan said. "I've certainly given Chipso a thorough trial in the last seven years and I call it a work-saver as well as a real clothes-saver."

Chipso is not adulterated with the harsh substances contained in inferior soaps which gradually weaken fabrics and dull their color. Chipso loosens dirt harmlessly by RICHER SUDS. That is why Chipso-washed clothes stay new-looking for years.

One-fourth cup brown sugar.
One-fourth cup sausage drippings.
One-fourth cup water.

Boil sweet potatoes until soft, peel and cut into halves lengthwise. Line the bottom of a well-greased shallow dish with sweet potatoes. Fry sausage links until a golden brown, place the sausage over the potatoes and cover with sliced apples. Sprinkle with brown sugar and pour over the drippings, combined with the water. Cover dish and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) 40 minutes. Serve from dish in which baked.

STUFFED BAKED SPARERIBS

Two pieces spareribs.
Four cups bread crumbs.
One teaspoon salt.
One small onion, minced.
Two tablespoons melted butter.

Season meat slightly with salt and pepper. Mix together bread crumbs, melted butter, salt and onion. Place two pieces of spareribs together, sew around outer edge, leaving space to fill. Fill with bread crumbs, mixed as above, sew and place in hot oven for 20 minutes, then reduce temperature to moderate heat. Continue baking one hour. This is a delicious dish and is inexpensive. Thirty cents worth of meat will serve seven generous helpings.

CHOCOLATE ROLL

One cup confectionery sugar.
Three tablespoons cocoa.
One tablespoon flour.
Five eggs.
One teaspoon vanilla.

Mix dry ingredients together, then fold into stiffly beaten egg whites. Then fold in beaten egg yolks. Add vanilla. Spread into shallow, well-greased jellyroll tin. Bake in hot oven for 10 minutes. Turn out into a slightly dampened floured towel, let cool. Then spread with flavored sweetened whipping cream and then roll.

PUREE OF VEGETABLE SOUP
(Serving Two)

One medium-sized potato.
One onion.
One carrot.
Two stalks celery.

Dice vegetables rather fine, add one and one-half to two cups of water, salt to taste, and cook 15 minutes, or until vegetables are tender. Carefully drain the liquid into another pan and mash the vegetables through a wire sieve or ricer. Put back into water in which they were cooked, add a lump of butter. Measure a rounding teaspoon of flour into a cup, stir in enough milk to make a smooth paste, adding enough milk to make one-half cup. Add to the vegetables, cook about two minutes, stirring to prevent flour lumping, and serve.

SWEDISH TEA ROLLS

Two cups sifted flour.
Two teaspoons baking powder.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-half cup butter.
Two-thirds cup milk (about).
One-third cup sugar.
One teaspoon cinnamon.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again. Cut in shortening. Add milk gradually until soft dough is formed. Roll one-third inch thick on slightly floured board. Cut into three-inch squares. Fold each square in half and press into mixture of sugar and cinnamon. Sprinkle thickly with more sugar and cinnamon. Dot with butter. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees) 15 minutes.

Non-Support Jails Man With 2 Wives

MONTREAL, Quebec, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Louis Kulmonovitch today was sentenced to three months in jail for failure to support one of his two wives, to both of whom he is legally married.

Kulmonovitch married a Montreal girl some years ago and migrated to the United States. In that country he secured a divorce and remarried. But the divorce is not recognized in Canada. The Montreal girl charged failure to support and won her case.

I FEEL LIKE A NEW MAN

No more dull headaches—no more pepless, irritable days! Feels and looks like a new man.

"You can't imagine how much better I feel Bill. It's really a miracle. Only a couple of weeks ago I lay awake night after night—worrying lest something really serious was the matter. And yet that dull, achy feeling should have told me what was wrong. I'm so glad I followed your advice. I feel like a million dollars now."

What was wrong with him? And with millions like him—dragging along only half-alive? The answer is simple.

It's Asthenia

(Run-down condition, usually caused by Constipation)

That's the insidious thing about Asthenia ... it drags you down, slows your mind, robs you of your joys and pleasures, yet you hardly realize you're slipping.

Would you like for once to brush the cobwebs from your eyes—be ready and eager for any task—experience all the glories of this glorious old world? Then rid yourself of Asthenia—and stay rid of it.

You think that you're not the least bit clogged—you say that you're "regular" as can be—but physicians will tell you that it is only too easy to deceive yourself in this respect and stay doped with poisons. Thus millions of micro-organisms accumulate in the intestinal tract and produce that dull, achy, pepless feeling known as Asthenia.

Correct Manners

Divorcee's Cards

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Must I use my husband's first name on my visiting card? I am now divorced and I would prefer a form with my own first name. Please tell me how my card should read to conform to the best taste. B.

The best form of name for a divorced woman to use on her visiting card is the last name of her maiden name used before the last name of her married name.

For example: Suppose that Jane Allen marries and divorces Thomas York. The name that she should, according to the best form, use is: Mrs. Allen York.

She would not use the name which she has been using—Mrs. Thomas York—for that name would belong to the second wife, if the husband marries again. Nor should a married woman, a widow, or a divorced woman, use her first name in the formal name that she adopts—that is, she would not, according to the best form, use Mrs. Jane York.

Caught in Shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have been a visitor in Chicago since the opening of the Fair . . . my husband being employed there, and we expect to return home very soon.

I am expecting a baby, and friends at home have talked of having a shower for me. I have never attended a baby shower and I really do not know the first thing about how to go about thanking each person individually, as I understand the gifts are opened before all the guests. Will you please inform me as to the proper thing to do and say? A.

Your receiving of the gifts and your thanking for them won't be a bit complicated. As each guest gives you the gift, or as you take each gift from the box of gifts, open it, thank the giver, and say gracious things about the gift that will show your appreciation. Then next day or as soon as possible after the party, write a note of thanks to each giver.

170 FLEE FIRE PERILING TOWN

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—One hundred and seventy men, cut off by a roaring brush and forest fire in the foothills northwest of Los Angeles, were reported safe this morning by a motorcycle officer who ran a gantlet of flames and found them scurrying to safety.

The men, county welfare workers engaged on unemployment relief projects, were making their way over the hills and apparently were in no danger, the officers said.

The fire was completely out of control and was eating its way through the foothill town of Tujunga which was reported doomed by the fire.

ESTELLE DENIES BAER ROMANCE

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Pugilists, including the handsome, curly-haired Max Baer, are "out" so far as Estelle Taylor, the former Mrs. Jack Dempsey, is concerned.

The actress explained that Baer and she and another couple went "places" after her appearance at the theater a few nights ago but that she would "hate for Jack—for anybody" to think it meant anything.

Then, Baer called on her at the theater next day, "just dropped in to say hello," an dthat didn't mean a thing, either, Miss Taylor said. They did talk about Dempsey, the actress stated.

DOLL LADY
Is in Pittsburgh Again!
This Year She Brings Gorgeous
"HONEY-SUCKLE"

"Honeysuckle" is 18 inches tall, just the right size the average little girl would like to cuddle up to. The word beautiful doesn't really describe her. She's more than beautiful—she's GORGEOUS.

"Honeysuckle" has flexible rubber arms and hands and rubber legs that can be washed just the same as you would wash your baby brother's or sister's. And WHAT A SMILE! And behind that smile are the most lovable, most roguish eyes you ever looked into. They open and close and she rolls them from side to side like a real flirt. By pressing her legs or by moving her body forward or back, she says "Ma-ma" in the sweetest voice you ever heard. She's dressed like a little queen in dainty organdy and lace, with bonnet and shoes to match.

Oh, we forget to mention her cute dimples, and just as this was written "Honeysuckle" looked up and seemed to say, "Yes; you forgot to tell them about my rubber panties."

"Honeysuckle" is really the DOLL OF ALL DOLLS, and she is going to be so easy to get for Christmas. Shall I save a "Honeysuckle" for you?"

MAKE THAT COLD "TAKE THE AIR"!

Don't Let It Linger a Day!

A cold is nothing to fool around with. It may end seriously. Treat no cold lightly. Beware of preparations that merely suppress the symptoms and do not remove the cold. Remember, a cold is an internal infection and, as such, calls for internal treatment. Remember, too, a cold calls for a COLD remedy and not for a "cure-all."

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold calls for. It is expressly a cold remedy. It is internal and direct. It is complete in effect. It does the four things necessary.

First, it opens the bowels, gently but thoroughly. Second, it combats the cold germs in the system and reduces the fever. Third, it relieves the headache and grippy feeling. Fourth, it tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack. Anything less than that is inviting trouble.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is absolutely safe to take. For more than forty years it has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the world, the formula always keeping pace with Modern Medicine. Every druggist sells Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine, 30c and 50c. Druggists who have your interest at heart, won't try to sell you a substitute on any pretext.

Don't delay or fool around with makeshift methods when you have caught cold, but go right to your druggist for Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. Ask for it by the full name and look for the letters L B Q stamped on every tablet.

DUKES TO PLAY MIAMI IN FLORIDA NEW YEAR'S DAY

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Fewer Flings at Skladany. Work of Star Less Open. Boyle Opposition Political. Gridder's Hardest Subject. Growth of Hockey Values. Pocket Billiard Records.

CHANGED ROLE HIDES WINGMAN'S LIGHT

Though playing the best football of his career—a grade of football that has led the usually reserved Jock Sutherland to rate him as the best end he ever coached, and Jock's list includes some mighty good ones—Joe Skladany has not been in the fans' eyes so often this year as formerly, despite the fact that he has been a constant source of irritation to the opposition. One reason why Joe has not been getting the same old notice or applause is that this fall he has not been sent down the field to receive passes, as was the custom last season, when the long-passing Warren Heller was in the Pitt backfield. This year, with the accurate short-passing Howdy O'Dell at left halfback, most of the heaves to an end player have been directed at Harvey Rooker, who is a good ball carrier.

Joe Skladany

In all other departments, however, Skladany has more than done his share. Yard after yard has been lost by opponents in attempts to go around his end. He has intercepted laterals and knocked forward passes down the passer's throat. The blocking of the Larksville (Pa.) lad also has bee close to perfection, and when given a chance to receive a Panther short forward pass he usually has managed to hold onto the ball.

COMMISSIONER BOYLE HAS NOTABLE RECORD

Friends of Havey J. Boyle have the satisfaction of knowing that the factional opposition to his reappointment as a member of the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission has at no time been other than wholly political and does not signify any disapproval of the manner in which he has conducted the post.

For in his long service as boxing commissioner, Boyle has made a notable record. Not only is he the oldest Pennsylvania commissioner, having served ever since the first board was appointed, except for one brief interruption, but his service of almost 10 years makes him also the oldest in the entire country at present, his record having been beaten only by the late William Muldoon, who served 12 years in New York. Friends of Boyle see in his continued reappointments an attest of satisfactory service.

It must be said for him, too, that while decisions by some of his officials have been unpopular at times, the office of commissioner during his long regime and his conduct of affairs ever have been free from the breath of scandal. The only objection voiced to Boyle is that "he isn't a politician," and in the minds of sticklers for clean sports that's greatly to his credit. It's by keeping the affairs of the commissioner's office entirely out of politics that the best results and the best service to the game and the sports public can continue to be obtained.

RATES DELIBERATION HARDEST TO TEACH

A number of college coaches take the view that blocking is the hardest thing to teach a football player, but in the opinion of Benny Friedman the most difficult item in which to train a gridder is deliberation, with blocking next. Whether it is called deliberation, poise or timing, Friedman contends that while you can teach a man the mechanics of kicking or passing, he will not be successful in either department until he learns to time his throws or kicks.

Benny Friedman

Long observation has shown Benny that many passers never overcome the desire to get the ball away quickly. They are overanxious to throw. They throw before they are in position, or before the receivers have a chance to get in position. Also, they often let their weight come forward too soon, release the ball while off balance, and the throw, consequently, is short. As for kickers, many of them find it hard to concentrate on the ball. Instead, they concentrate on charging opponents, and the kick is defective. Sense of timing, that's the big thing, according to Friedman.

GREAT RISE IN VALUE OF HOCKEY TEAMS

Hockey values have risen to an amazing extent in 16 years. President Frank Calder says that when the National League was organized as a four-club circuit in 1917, the entire league could have been bought for $20,000. At present, he estimates, it would take $3,000,000 to cover everything. In the old days, he says, a single franchise could have been purchased for very little, but today a franchise, without players, is worth at least $50,000, and possibly more. Two of the clubs now operating in the major loop paid $50,000. A franchise with players would be a bargain at $250,000. Four years ago Bill Dywer refused $300,000 for the New York Americans.

Players' salaries also have taken great jumps. In that first year, the top figure was $1,000 per season, and only Frank Nighbor drew that much. The Cleghorn brothers received $800 each. Now the top salary is limited to $7,500. Possibly five players receive that amount.

Not only has hockey gained a strong hold in Europe since the Olympic Games of 1908, but Calder reveals that it has been played in China for more than 30 years. A group of Canadians organized two or three teams in the vicinity of Hongkong, and they've been going ever since.

KELLY'S RUN OF 125 BALLS NOT HIGH MARK

The consecutive run of 125 balls at pocket billiards, made by George Kelly, of Philadelphia, new national champion, in the recent title tournament at Minneapolis, is not a record, as has been asserted. Veteran Pittsburgh cue experts recall that they saw Ralph Greenleaf beat that total by one ball in defeating Frank Taberski on December 16, 1929, in the world championship tournament of that year in Detroit.

Ralph Greenleaf

That a man could make 126 balls in a 125-ball match sounds like one for Ripley, but Greenleaf actually did it. The explanation is that he scratched on his first shot, which left him owing one ball, and requiring him to make 126 to win, barring further scratches, instead of only 125. On his next turn, Greenleaf ran off 126 balls in succession without a miss to win the match and set a record that has not been equaled in competition. In the same tournament, on December 12, Erwin Rudolph established a mark for fastest game that still stands, making 125 points in 32 minutes. In a league game against Greenleaf in 1925, Rudolph ran 100 points in 20 minutes.

SCHOOL PLAYER PROTESTED

By JULIUS LEVIN

Reports emanating from Monongahela that Vincent Stapulis, star fullback of the California High School eleven, Monongahela Valley Big Five champion, is over the W. P. I. A. L. age limit and will be protested at the annual football meeting to be held Monday night in the Fort Pitt Hotel, have been branded as ridiculous by Carl Aschman, athletic director at California. Aschman said today:

"There is absolutely no doubt as to Stapulis' age. We have his baptismal certificate, signed by his pastor, which shows that he was born in Coal Center, Pa., on September 17, 1914. These rumors should be stopped as they might spoil his chances to play college football."

The football committee, headed by Elmer Carroll, of Wilkinsburg, will decide on the championship races in the W. P. I. A. L. at the meeting.

Ripley's Explanations

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE COSTLY CARD—In 1880, a single playing card, the five of diamonds, sold at a London auction for $13,750 in gold. The card was so valuable because it bore an original miniature found to have been the work of Hans Holbein, Jr. (1497-1543), one of the greatest painters of his time. THE KNOCKOUT IN ABSENCE—In a bout staged at Coney Island, on August 4, 1922, Jack Hausner claimed a foul in the first round against Packey O'Gatty, his opponent. The bout was at first stopped, but the judges, reconsidering, ordered Hausner to return to the ring for the second round. Upon the latter's refusal, the referee proceeded to count 10 over an imaginary figure. O'Gatty, the winner, stood alone in the ring to have his hand raised in victory over his absent foe. THE NAUGATUCK HIGH SCHOOL—The street on which the school so strangely "fronts" curves about the building in an uphill direction. Thus the three entrances, each of which is one story above the other, all are on the level of the same street.

TARTANS HEAD FOR NEW YORK TONIGHT

By JESS CARVER

The young men of Duquesne are going to spend New Year's Day, and several days before and after, in the dear old Southland, in the vicinity, if not the city proper, of Miami, Fla.

They are going to play the University of Miami, located in Coral Gables, in the second Festival of the Palms football game, at Miami. The Bluff institution isn't going to make a fortune on the game, for the guarantee will be sufficient only to cover the expenses of moving the Red and Blue footballers to Florida and bring 'em back, but it is a fine and appreciative gesture on the part of the officials, President Callahan, Coach Layden and Graduate Manager Holohan.

They wanted to repay the lads in some fitting manner for their fine play during the season, and what could be a more nifty gift than a trip to Florida.

LAYDEN MAY STAY

With the completion of the agreement with Carnegie Tech, calling for games in 1934 and 1935, was seen the liklihood that Coach Layden, who's contract on the Bluff expires in June, would sign a new long-term contract. The Dukes are working on their schedules for '34 and '35 and the work is being directed by Layden. It is hardly likely that Elmer would be eyeing forthcoming campaigns if he were not going to remain here. Is it now?

While all this arranging of games was going on, the footballers themselves were showing no letdown as they continued preparations for the game with Geneva at Forbes Field Saturday.

The team's aerial attack, which failed to function in the important game with Pitt, is being polished to a high degree and the Red and Blue hopes to conquer the Covenanters the well-known "easy way," by passing 'em to death.

TECH GOES EAST

Carnegie Tech's varsity squad departs this night (I love that) for New York, where on Saturday the boys will return to the wars against New York University's far from blushing Violets.

At the inception of the season, the Violets looked like they were due for an early wilting. But they hit the peak against Fordham, and while losing to the powerful Rams, had the Fordham folks standing on their ears until the final period. Last week, they took it easy and tied Rutgers, no setup of a ball club by any stretch of the imagination.

In yesterday's practice session in the Tartan Bowl, Coach William Algernon Sample's Plebe eleven was togged out in N. Y. U. plays and gave the varsity a brisk session.

A workout will be held in the Yankee Stadium, scene of Saturday's battle, tomorrow, and also at the breakfast, luncheon and dinner tables.

PITT SCRIMMAGES

Dr. John Bain Sutherland called his Pitt varsity back to work yesterday and spent the afternoon peering intently into the interior of his offense, seeking to discover just why it has been failing to tick when within smelling distance of the goal line.

The Panthers, strange to say, were sent through a scrimmage session, unusual at Pitt for this late in the season, and it was no hoity-toity scrimmage, either. Leon Shedlosky and Dick Matesic worked out at the injured Mike Sebastian's right halfback post, but the Rose of Sharon (also the toast) says he'll play against Tech Thanksgiving Day if he has to play on crutches.

VIOLETS SPEED DRILLS

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—New York University's Violets went through a three-hour dummy scrimmage yesterday concentrating on a passing attack in preparation for Saturday's engagement with Carnegie Tech in the Yankee Stadium.

Ed Smith's passes to Charley Siegel, the quarterback, worked well against the third team, which also tried Carnegie Tech plays. Siegel, best pass receiver on the Violet squad, was slightly hurt in the Rutgers game but is back in shape again.

PIRATES PLAN MORE DEALS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

At least three righthand pitchers of the Pirate staff will be available for the trading block when the major league winter sessions begin in Chicago next month. Manager Gibson is not satisfied with the performance of several of his pitchers in the last campaign and he will be open to offers at the Chicago powwow.

Gibson will have the full support of the Pirate home office at the annual sessions. Both President Bill Benswanger and Vice President Sam Watters will be on the scene to assist him in any negotiations looking toward Pirate betterment.

The local officials do not care to disclose the identities of the players who may be traded. They feel this would be a bad procedure in the event that trades concerning the players affected could not be made.

Benswanger will arrive in Pittsburgh tomorrow after having attended the minor league sessions in Galveston, Texas.

Watters today threw cold water on the report out of Chicago to the effect that the Cubs were dickering for Firstbaseman Gus Suhr. Watters said that no deals were on at present.

PHILLY AWAITS SERVICE GAME

SAILORS GRIM IN DRILLING FOR FRAY

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—From West Point and Annapolis, the service elevens come to Philadelphia tonight and then pitch camp on opposite sides of the Delaware River to await the start of their annual gridiron fray Saturday.

Arriving at almost the same time from North and South, Army's football warriors will bivouac at the Pine Valley Golf Club in Clementon, N. J., while the Navy men stay at the Manufacturers' Country Club in suburban Jenkintown.

Present plans call for a secret workout tomorrow for the Army at Franklin Field, scene of Saturday's battle, but the Annapolis aggregation stays at its temporary headquarters.

NAVY DETERMINED

Leading the Navy is Coach Edgar (Rip) Miller, grim and silent, confident in the knowledge that his boys will go down fighting. And Lieut. Gar Davison brings his Cadets to town, sure of the ability of the strong, undefeated Army eleven.

Saturday's contest is the fourth in the series since the renewal of gridiron relations between the two service institutions. Navy is trying for its first victory over its arch-rival in more than a decade, 1921 being the last time Annapolis supporters had occasion to tear up the goalposts.

Saturday morning, a few hours before the game, the regiments of both institutions arrive, march to Franklin Field to lend moral support to their teams.

The four largest hotels reported all rooms engaged for Saturday.

The scalpers are out in full array. The regular price for tickets is $4.40 plus a 25-cent fee for a complicated registration by which those in charge hoped to banish the scalpers. As a result, scalpers were asking $10 each for "two on the 50-yard line" with indications that the price will soar.

Downtown Philadelphia was gaily bedecked wth Army and Navy colors and pennants. Traffic police were said to be sitting up nights figuring out some method to accommodate the thousands of cars expected.

NAVY FULL OF PEP

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—NRA means "Navy Run Army" to the Midshipmen of the United States Naval Academy, as they look forward to the game Saturday with the Cadets in Philadelphia.

Inside the entrance of Bancroft Hall, the Midshipmen's dormitory, hangs a large banner showing the blue eagle, with an anchor in one talon and a football in the other, and underneath the slogan "We'll do our part."

A huge golden "N" and star and captions "This is our year" and "Beat Army" appear with the eagle.

In the corridors are samples of the Midshipmen's handiwork, all sounding a note of defiance to the Army. In the rooms are slogans on pieces of paper and blotters, conveying the same sentiment.

CRIMSON PLANS PASSES

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Harvard's offensive maneuvers received a thorough overhauling yesterday when Coach Eddie Casey, aided by Arnold Horween, his predecessor, tried to speed up and perfect the timing which has not really clicked once this season.

Most of the session was devoted to individual assignment work and the customary signal drill stressed forward passes. It appeared certain that the Crimson would take full advantage of Yale's reputed weakness by carrying on a sustained air attack.

There will be three passers in the starting backfield. The Crimson, however, has had this same strength all season but never made full use of it.

ELI LINEUP SHIFTED

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 23.—(AP)—Still juggling his lineup, almost on the eve of the objective Harvard game, Head Coach Reggie Root injected a new man into his first Yale team today in the person of Jerry Roscoe at quarterback.

Crafton Gridders Defeat Carnegie

Crafton High School's football team tallied in the final period to defeat Carnegie, 7 to 0, at Carnegie yesterday. The game originally was scheduled for last Friday but was postponed because of bad weather.

Callahan's Rally Wins Cue Battle

GERMANS GET U. S. OLYMPIC PEACE BID

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—The American Olympic Association, composed of every major amateur sports governing body of the country, yesterday held out the olive branch to Germany on the question of Jewish participation in sports and in the Olympic Games of 1936 at Berlin.

A resolution, temporizing the stand taken by the Amateur Athletic Union at its Pittsburgh convention, was unanimously adopted. It expressed the hope that full freedom of participation would be extended German athletes of Jewish faith and promised American participation if that were done.

As it convened in quadrennial session it appeared likely the association would follow the stand taken by the A. A. U., its major member, and declare for American withdrawal from the 1936 games unless the German government "in fact as well as in theory" abided by the Olympic principle of non-discrimination against any race, color or religion, but a more temperate course was taken by the convention.

JEWS HIT AGAIN

BERLIN, Nov. 23.—(INS.)—Despite the decision of the American Amateur Athletic Union to boycott the Olympic games in Berlin in 1936 unless discrimination against Jews was removed, the Nazi government today had issued a new order regulating the admission of Jews to German athletic organizations.

SPORT VIGNETTES

One of the visitors in Pittsburgh for the recent national convention of the A. A. U. was Buck Herzog, former major league third base star, now connected with a railroad company as a passenger agent . . . Buck got one of the most cruel kicks from the baseball fates of any man who comes to mind . . . He was victim of the Federal League scourge which claimed many victims and it wasn't because he jumped to the outlaws, either.

Buck was only 27 years old when he was made manager of the Cincinnati Reds to succeed Joe Tinker back in the winter of 1913 . . . Tinker, sore at being traded to the Brooklyn Dodgers, joined the Feds as manager of the Chicago team, owned by Charley Weeghman, the restaurant owner . . . He decided to get "hunk" with Garry Herrmann for trading him and grabbed as many Red players as he could in the general raids which decimated the major league ranks.

The result was that Herzog was left with a stripped roster and had to use pitchers in the outfield and in other ways fill in the gaps. . . . The club got nowhere that year and the following season as it experimented with an assortment of rookies from the bushes, and, as a result, Herzog, without a fair trial, was set down as a failure as a manager and went his way . . . Christy Mathewson came on and then Pat Moran, and Herzog was forgotten . . . He drifted out of baseball . . . Just another of baseball's Forgotten Men, but one who had the courage to face the situation and young enough to turn to other paths . . . But somehow the thought lingers that here was a man who might have filled a big place in baseball's scheme but for capricious Fate.

A movement is on to bring back the onside kick in football if for no other reason than to make the safety men catch punts and try to run them back and do away with the scene of having anywhere up to a half dozen husky young men prance about the bounding ball waiting for it to settle upon the ground and touch it dead . . . The onside kick, for the edification of those who weren't around when we had it, is one made from scrimmage with one or more men behind the kicker, putting him or them onside and eligible to recover the ball for their team without waiting for the defensive side to touch it or be touched by it, as sometimes happens . . . Everybody on the kicking side being behind the kicker, or the ball, on the kickoff, the kicking side is eligible to recover the kickoff, which is why it is always returned or covered . . . If the kicking side recovers the ball behind the goal line within the confines of the end zone on a kickoff it is a touchdown.

"AMERICAN"
Marches Ahead!
● and who's behind the line of march!

NRA

IT'S who is behind "AMERICAN" MARCHES AHEAD—and what it means to you—that counts!

Let's look at the facts!

The American Oil Company is an important member of the Pan American Petroleum & Transport Company group, a major factor in the oil industry. Principal companies of this group are:

American Oil Company
Mexican Petroleum Corporation (Me.)
Pan American Refining Company
Pan American Pipeline Company
Mexican Petroleum Corporation of Georgia
Lord Baltimore Filling Stations, Inc.

These companies represent one of the large and important oil units of the country. Very big resources, large available crude production and extensive pipe line systems, refineries, complete research laboratories, large tank car and motor truck fleets, numerous ocean terminals, many hundreds of bulk plants, and thousands of service station outlets.

Where and How They Serve

In addition to its refining and allied activities, Pan American Petroleum & Transport Company, through its various companies named above, does an extensive business along the entire Atlantic Seaboard, from Maine to Florida, and elsewhere. They market a big volume of various petroleum products—motor fuel, gasoline, lubricants, kerosene, range oil, heating oils, heavy fuel oils and asphalt. A complete petroleum service!

One of the companies, the Mexican Petroleum Corporation, is one of the largest sellers of heavy fuel oils in the United States. It numbers among its customers a host of nationally important concerns. Likewise, Mexican Petroleum Corporation is the second largest producer of asphalt on the Atlantic Coast. Because of its great scientific knowledge of heavy fuel oils and asphalt requirements, Mexican Petroleum Corporation will continue to handle this important phase of the group's activities.

The American Oil Company is an outstanding institution of public service in its old territory.* Its growth and development form an illuminating chapter in the history of American enterprise.

The American Oil Company direct and through subsidiaries, is taking over and will in the future operate all the marketing facilities of the consolidated companies in Northern New Jersey, New York and New England, Georgia and Florida. This includes the many bulk storage plants, service stations, pump and tank outlets in this vast region. These it will improve, remodel and modernize. For American service must be worthy of the name!

★ ★ ★

But above all, this expansion of American means that hereafter its famous products—among them AMOCO-GAS, the original special motor fuel; Orange American Gas, the best gasoline selling at regular gas price; and AMOCO Motor Oils—will be available along the entire Atlantic Seaboard, from Maine to Florida, and elsewhere. And that means new fuel economies to motorists in our new territory* and extended service to motorists of our old territory*.

Now you know who's behind—and what's behind—the pump!

TROJAN-IRISH TILT HELD TOSSUP

U. S. C. IS PAST PEAK, HUNK DECLARES

ANDERSON'S SELECTIONS

U. S. C. over Notre Dame.
Michigan over Northwestern.
Illinois over Ohio State.
Dartmouth over Chicago.
Minnesota over Wisconsin.
Purdue over Indiana.
Iowa over Nebraska.

By HEARTLY W. (HUNK) ANDERSON
Notre Dame Football Coach

Hunk Anderson

On form, Notre Dame should lose by four to six touchdowns, but I don't think this game will run true to form. We have little reason to expect a victory at Notre Dame, but I am quite sure, for various reasons, that there will be a great battle and a close score.

Southern California has been an in-and-out team this year. Coach Howard Jones has practically the same material he had last year in winning all his games and a national championship. But material, no matter how good, is hard to handle when the boys have two national championships behind them. There is not the incentive for the players who have tasted glory to give their absolute best, although they may honestly believe that they are giving all they have.

TROJANS SLIPPING

When Oregon State's little team caught Southern California on an off day in October, I predicted that the Trojans might possibly be on the downward trail. Notre Dame was tied by Northwestern early in 1931, after winning two national titles, and we finally cracked up in our last two games that year, losing by two points to Southern California, and by 12 to 0 to Army. The Trojans fulfilled my prediction by losing to Stanford, 13 to 7, and by being played even or better by California. History does repeat itself.

They have snapped into it again with a 26-to-0 victory over Oregon's powerful team, which shows unmistakably that they have all the power they used to have, if they want to apply it.

The fact that they were keyed up for Oregon is shown by the size of the score. It is quite likely that they will fall below form for the Notre Dame game, taking up the normal difference between the two teams to quite an extent. Even on an off day, however, they will be better than Notre Dame because they are experienced, confident and alert.

CLOSE FIGHT LIKELY

Notre Dame was unpolished, inexperienced, and ragged against a Kansas team which had hit its season's peak in our opening game, and Kansas's third game of the year. The normal difference between Notre Dame and Kansas was taken up by the mental attitude of the players, and Kansas held us to a scoreless tie, continuing to lose four games in a row before winning again.

Southern California has no reason to fear Notre Dame, having re-established a feeling of confidence by whipping Oregon so thoroughly. If Howard Jones can keep his men at the same peak, I am sure they will win by several touchdowns. But I don't think he can keep them that high. Notre Dame, having scored a touchdown, will have more confidence than ever, and this confidence may bring the Irish up almost on a par with Southern California's vastly superior team.

THREE COACHES QUIT POSTS

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Harry Gamage, football coach at the University of Kentucky, submitted his resignation yesterday to the athletic council and it was accepted.

Gamage will continue in control of the football team for the game Thanksgiving Day with Tennessee. Some alumni are urging that a post-season game with Centre College, which Kentucky has not played for almost 10 years, also be arraigned.

KASPER RESIGNS

R. H. Threlfall, his assistant, was appointed acting director.

OBERLANDER QUITS

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Nov. 23.—Jim (Swede) Oberland, coach at Wesleyan College, Little Three football champion, has resigned to enter the medical profession. He declined another contract.

Local Man Plays For Carolina Title

Blue advanced to the final bracket by scoring a surprise victory over Jack Ryerson, former Yale star, of Cooperstown, N. Y., 3 and 2, while Wilson conquered F. C. Robertson, of Manchester, Vt., 6 and 5.

Marsh, Sullivan On Seals' Bill Tonight

Gib Marsh, Outdoors Editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, and Paul G. Sullivan, prominent Duquesne University alumnus, will be the speakers on the weekly program of Harry Keck's Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Sun-Telegraph over WCAE tonight.

Marsh will tell about the big game hunting season in Pennsylvania, and Sullivan has a homecoming message for Duquesne folks, in connection with the Dukes' closing football game of the season against Geneva, at Forbes Field, Saturday afternoon.

The Seals will be on the air at 7 o'clock.

CONTEST BOARD IS NAMED

A committee of three has been named to supervise the All-America Blanket contest of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in which 10 entries will receive beautiful All-America football blankets for their All-America Team selections.

Contestants are asked to match their teams against that of the All-America Board of Football, which will be announced in mid-December. In the event of ties, this committee will select the winners on a basis of their reasons advanced for selecting the players. These reasons will be judged against the reasons given by the All-America Board.

Howard Harpster, head coach at Carnegie Tech and staff writer for the Sun-Telegraph.

Christy Walsh, of the Christy Walsh Syndicate, who weekly rates the all-America candidates in a list from which the all-America Team will be selected.

Many entries in the contest already have been received, although it has been pointed out that it is to the advantage of contestants not to submit their choices until the last of the weekly ratings are published, two weeks from next Saturday. Many new names may appear in the last three lists.

PILNEY, LUKATS SHOW FORM

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—A hard scrimmage that featured long runs by Andy Pilney and Nick Lukats constituted the workout of Notre Dame yesterday in preparation for the Southern California invasion.

Jim Leonard, at guard, also was a standout. Coach Hunk Anderson drilled the team outside for one and one-half hours and then took the players into the field house for a short defense drill.

Advance ticket sales indicated a crowd of 45,000 for the game, J. Arthur Haley, graduate manager of athletics, said.

TROJANS GET DRILL

TUCSON, Ariz., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—En route to South Bend and their annual encounter with Notre Dame, the Southern California Trojans stopped here yesterday for nearly two hours during which they went through a loosening-up drill of the University of Arizona gridiron.

Coach Howard Jones directed the squad through a brisk workout, consisting of kicking, passing and short-play formations.

An interesting game on Saturday's football card is the one between Detroit University and Michigan State, with two former Notre Dame stars coaching the rival teams . . . Duquesne University's acceptance of the post-season football game at Coral Gables, Fla., on New Year's Day is a fine gesture on the part of the local institution . . . It is not a money-making enterprise, but rather a reward for the players who have fought so nobly and well during the season drawing to a close, during which they lost only to the University of Pittsburgh, 7-0 . . . Nine of the regular players will be lost by graduation and a number of the first-string reserves also will be through after this post-season game, and Coach-Athletic Director Elmer Layden was particularly keen about showing his appreciation of their efforts in some befitting manner . . . This jaunt to Florida serves that purpose.—HARRY KECK.

Chicagoan Rates Panthers Second In Nation

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Michigan still leads in the race for the mythical national college football championship on the basis of latest computations of William F. Boand, originator of his own system of rating.

The system gives Michigan 151 points to date with Pittsburgh second at 138. Other leaders and their points under the system are: Princeton, 132; Louisiana State, 133; Army, 132; Southern California, 132; Nebraska, 131; Ohio State, 130; Oregon, 127, and Duquesne, 127. Georgia, Minnesota, Duke and Purdue are rated at 125.

JONES REGARDS RAMBLERS AS 'DANGEROUS'

JONES' SELECTIONS

U. S. C. and Notre Dame, a tossup.
Stanford over California.
Washington over Washington State.
St. Mary's over U. C. L. A.

By HOWARD JONES
Member All-America Board of Football.
(Reg. U. S. Patent Office.)

The Southern California eleven is to meet Notre Dame Saturday. This game always attracts national interest because it invariably proves to be a great game.

Howard Jones

It is true that this year does not bring the two teams together undefeated, as it has in times gone by, but there still stands a traditional rivalry, and I'll miss my guess if it does not turn out to be a great game just the same.

Notre Dame broke its losing streak last week by defeating Northwestern and in so doing will gain the confidence necessary to make the Ramblers plenty tough for the Trojans.

While Notre Dame has played its games far from the Pacific Coast, reports have come to me that the Ramblers still have a team that can play splendid football, and be a dangerous contender to any opponent. It is true that Southern California's record to date is better than that of Notre Dame, but that does not seem to be a factor in this year's football games.

WARBURTON PRAISED

The Trojans, after losing to Stanford two weeks ago, came back to decisively defeat the University of Oregon last week and dim the chances of the Northwest school to represent the Coast in the annual New Year's Rose Bowl classic. In this game Warburton thrilled the spectators time and again by his brilliant performance.

On the coast the annual big game between Stanford and California will attract the most interest, and it should be a marvelous game. The two teams are evenly matched. Early in the season it looked as if Stanford would not have a chance on account of a powerful line developed at California. However, Standford has come along, and with its last year's all-America guard, Corbus, and new men, Moscrip at end and Reynolds at tackle, together with a fast backfield, it would appear to have an edge over its rivals across the bay.

HOME STATE FEUD

In the Northwest, Washington and Washington State will fight it out in one of those home state feuds. I say this because last year between halves the two student bodies decided to come down on the field and have a little game themselves. Washington has played some good and bad football, but I believe it has the strongest team, and should win.

In Los Angeles, U. C. L. A. meets a powerful team in St. Mary's, conqueror of Fordham. I believe St. Mary's has the better team, but U. C. L. A. has been developing rapidly under Coach Bill Spaulding, and might surprise. However, I will pick St. Mary's to win.

PLAYERS' GRID VIEWS DIFFER

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Although there are equally as sharp differences among the players as exist among the coaches, a substantial majority of college football stars polled by The Associated Press is convinced the present gridiron rules give the defense too much advantage.

The tabulation of country-wide opinion today reveals that 37 players out of a total of 65 think the defense has a more or less decided "edge." Of the others, 18 believe the game is now evenly divided as to opportunities for both sides while the remaining 10 consider the advantage rests with the offense.

The majority opinion is somewhat striking inasmuch as the only important change in the rules for 1933, designed to eliminate the out-of-bounds play along the sidelines, favors the offense. However it apparently reflects the general re-action to this year's unusually low scoring among the major teams as well as a conviction among the players that the offense is severely handicapped by the rule which automatically stops the ball-carrier if any part of his body except his hands or feet touches the ground.

As to sundry suggestions offered, Joe Skladany, Pittsburgh end, thinks the offense could put more burden on the defense by using more lateral passes, which are encouraged under the present rules.

W. & J.-Wooster to Settle 44-Year Grid Dispute

WOOSTER, O., Nov. 23.—Wooster University and Washington and Jefferson University football teams were playing against each other at Washington, Pa. The game was nearly over. W. & J. was leading, 4 to 0, but advances by Tyndall and McGaw, Wooster backs, had carried the ball to the five-yard line.

The umpire, noting that fans were waving their watches, called time. The referee declared time remained and called on W. & J. to line up.

But the line was gone. Enthusiastic W. & J. fans had put fully half the players on their shoulders and were carrying them off the field.

The ball was put in play. Without difficulty, Wooster crossed the goal line and made the extra points, coming back to this city with the declaration they had won, 6 to 4.

The date of this adventure was December 6, 1890. It was the first time Wooster and W. & J. had met in football, and it was the last time. Announcement has just been made, however, that a game has been booked between these two teams to be played at Washington on October 6, 1934, athletic relations to be resumed after 44 years.

The dispute over the 1890 score never was settled, W. & J. still claiming the game, 4 to 0, and Wooster, 6 to 4.

P. G. A. TO FACE HARD JOB

By TOM BIRKS

The action of the executive body of the Professional Golfers' Association in their annual convention in Chicago of adopting a resolution aimed at the standardization of methods of teaching the game will interest professionals and amateurs alike.

The big questions left for the P. G. A. to decide are:

And there is where the resolution probably will end.

For many years there has been a bitter discussion among followers of golf stars regarding the proper method of holding and swinging a club.

HOW ABOUT GRIPS?

There is the overlapping grip and the interlock, the two grips used by practically every golfer in the world. What a time the P. G. A. is going to have telling that one of these grips is wrong.

Of course, the association, in its set of rules, may put the matter up to the student and permit the pros to teach the grip which is the easier for the beginner to learn.

Teachers of golf have different fundamentals, and practically every golf professional has different ideas. When the Bobby Jones movie shorts were exhibited, many professionals watching the slow-motion pictures of Bobby were not backward in saying that Jones pivoted wrong. But Bobby won four major championships that year, and that is the best answer when one is talking of form.

For many years, as professionals gathered together for the big tournament, the locker-room gossip usually ran to the standard teaching channel, but none of the pros would admit that any system was superior to the one they used.

And try to make a star like Sarazen change his grip to the interlock, or make the great Hagen use the overlap!

BUFFALO GETS TOURNEY

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—The 1934 championship tournament of the Professional Golfers' Association will be held next July in Buffalo, it was decided in the closing minutes of the annual convention of the P. G. A. here last night. The exact date will be set later.

The association also announced the voluntary resignation of Albert R. Gates, of Chicago, and the abolishment of his office of business administrator. He will continue as counsel for the organization.

The association re-elected all officers, headed by George R. Jacobus, of Ridgewood, N. J., as president.

The staff in the Chicago office will be reduced, but headquarters will be maintained here.

Klein Buys Bats, Looks Forward To Contract

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Chuck Klein, sold by the Phillies to the Chicago Cubs, came to Louisville yesterday to lay in a supply of new bats with which he hopes to justify the faith of his new owners next season. He remarked:

"I can't say just how pleased I am going to be with the transfer until I get a squint at the Chicago contract. The contract will not be sent me until around the first of the year.

"I'll play the very best ball I can for the Cubs, though, and hope that they will not have cause to regret the deal."

IMPELLITTIERE WINS, LOSES BIG TEST

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—With the aid of one of the most surprising actions ever taken in a New York ring, last night Tommy Loughran, the veteran boxer from Philadelphia, demonstrated that the young giant, Ray Impellittiere, isn't ready to become a heavyweight title contender yet. It was Impellittiere's first real test.

The big moment of the 10-round battle, which otherwise was mostly a demonstration of Loughran's well-known boxing skill, came in the sixth round. A right uppercut caught his month and cut it badly. Referee Pete Hartley wasted no time about halting the proceedings. After one look at the stream of blood pouring down Loughran's chest, he raised Impellittiere's hand in token of victory.

No one at the ringside could recall a similar situation in which a commissioner had overruled a referee. Tommy was patched up between rounds and promptly lit into his oversize opponent and never stopped punching until the fight ended.

NEWARK SEEKS BAM AS PILOT

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—The News says today that Babe Ruth has been offered the job of managing the Newark Bears, of the International League, and that there is a "fifty-fifty chance he will accept."

The News said it had received its information from a "source very close to the internal affairs of the American League."

The paper adds that back of the move to have the great slugger of the New York Yankees take the post made vacant by the release of Al Mamaux "is a desire in the Yankee organization to have Ruth as manager of the New York American League club, after he has demonstrated his managerial ability elsewhere."

RUTH IS SILENT

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Nov. 23. J(AP.)—Babe Ruth, hunting pheasants on the Goelet estate near here, today declined to comment on the Newark report that he had been offered the management of the Newark International League team next year. Ruth has refused to talk baseball during his two-day hunting trip.

WEISS DENIES REPORT

FRENCH LICK, Ind., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—George Weiss, director of the New York Yankees' baseball farm system, today denied reports from Newark, N. J., that Babe Ruth will become manager of that club of the International League next season. Weiss declared:

"Such a report is terribly far fetched, and there is nothing to it."

U. S. C. L. A. Decides To Drop Rowing

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—After a one-year trial, crew racing has been eliminated from the sports schedule of the University of California at Los Angeles.

William C. Ackerman, graduate manager, said the decision was made to avoid curtailment of non-income sports.

Into the discard, as a result of the action, also will go the national sprint regatta which was inaugurated last summer. It attracted approximately 20,000 persons.

Stockholders Getting More In Dividends

By B. C. FORBES

GOOD NEWS: The summer spurt in business has enabled various companies to distribute more money to stockholders.

On one day, the Van Sweringen's Chesapeake (railway) Corporation and a railroad announced an increase in dividends; Lord and Taylor, prominent New York department store, decided to pay a $5 extra dividend; several less well-known companies improved their payments; and A. P. Giannini let it be known that his far-flung Transamerica (banking) Corporation contemplates early resumption of payments to stockholders.

Mr. Forbes

Although Washington has voiced no interest in business being able to earn profit, it is far from unimportant that investors, after several very lean years, should get at least modest wages for their savings.

Most third-quarter results revealed gains over the first half of the year. Some companies are doing better, some not quite so well, during the current quarter.

WILL BUREAUCRATS resist the temptation to become autocrats?

Gen. Johnson, irritated by the Federal Reserve Board's long-maintained report on financial and business conditions, promptly had that august body gagged.

Now the youthful new acting Secretary of the Treasury, Henry Morgenthau, Jr., has muzzled every official in the department—bringing an immediate and emphatic protest from the newspapers.

Such incidents confirm the wisdom of newspaper publishers in protesting vehemently against entrusting to bureaucrats the power to license or to refuse to license publications which might offend Washington.

So long as a free, untrammeled press functions, aspiring dictators will not be able to Russianize America. But accord them power to destroy any newspaper or periodical which did not applaud their every act, and we would invite bureaucratic actions similar to what the world has witnessed in Russia, in Italy and, more recently, in Hitlerized Germany.

Happily, President Roosevelt himself, instead of railing against sincere criticism, has earnestly invited it. But some officials are not sufficiently broad-gauged to grasp the statemanship underlying such an attitude.

AS ALREADY told in this column, responsible men of affairs are organizing to express freely and fearlessly their views on national plans and policies and practices. Heretofore, they haven't dared—they have feared they might be "cracked down on."

The frankness and fearlessness exhibited by O. M. W. Sprague, the eminent American currency authority who gave up a lucrative Bank of England post to become advisor to his own government (and was ignored when he opposed inflation), are hailed as signifying that the era of silent submission has ended.

Bluntly, business, industry, banking have decided to remove their self-imposed muzzle. Yes, even our acutely-despised banking fraternity mean to come into the open. Yesterday one of America's historic banks published a large advertisement pleading for "sound money."

PRESIDENT AUBREY MILAM, of Green and Milam, wholesale fruit merchants, of Atlanta, sends the following "true story":

"'Well, I sold eighteen bales of cotton today that brought me nearly as much as thirty bales did last year. My smokehouse has enough meat in it to last me and the hands for a year.

"'I have all the chickens and eggs we can eat, and some to sell. A flock of turkeys should bring some cash. I have two cows and all the fresh milk and butter my kids can use, and some over.

"'There is enough feed in that barn to do six mules for the season. Three children in school and the place is paid for. No fancy clothes and not much money, but things ain't so bad.'"

DEPOSITORS in mutual savings bank Christmas clubs in Greater New York will have more to spend this year than last — $9,438,428, belonging to 233,039 savers.

STOCK MARKET MOVEMENT NARROW

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Stocks, caught between the forces battling on the monetary question, backed and filled in narrow areas today, apparently undecided whether to advance or retreat.

There was no stimulus from the domestic gold price, which was again unchanged at $33.76 an ounce. The dollar also rallied about 10 cents against sterling and .12¼ of a cent in relation to the French franc.

Grains generally pointed downward and other commodities were somewhat uneasy. The bright spot on the picture was a rally in the United States government bonds. Trading in equities was almost at a standstill, with fractional declines predominating.

Opponents and proponents of immediate monetary stabilization appeared to be about equally divided in Wall street and heated arguments both for and against resounded throughout the boardrooms.

Aside from reactions to the Sprague resignation with its accompanying denunciation of the administration's fiscal program, the financial district expressed much interest in the resolution of the Federal Reserve Advisory Council, composed of leading bankers from each reserve district, which warned that uncertainty regarding the monetary situation "has affected and will continue to affect adversely the entire economic structure."

All bankers here, however, were not agreed that a return to the gold base, at a reduced dollar value, is desirable at this time, although it was generally believed that stabilization should be the ultimate consideration.

In some quarters the thought was advanced that the gold buying policy in itself was a form of stabilization inasmuch as Washington is now fixing the value of the dollar arbitrarily by adjustments of domestic gold prices. With this lever, it is argued, the dollar can be kept around the 60-cent level or depressed to not more than 50 cents. The stabilization area, therefore, is seen as around 10 cents.

Early support for government securities was encouraging to banking circles which have been a bit disturbed by the recent declines of these obligations. There was little information available as to just how much "short" selling there has been in this division. The inquiry of the New York Federal Reserve Bank into reported "bear" operations in federal bonds was being watched closely. Dealers say that neither banks nor insurance companies have been doing any unusual selling in the government list.

GRAINS TAKE NEW DIP

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Material new downturns of grain values took place early today. Monetary developments overnight were construed as bearish, and so, too, were reports of wheat moving from Western and Northwestern markets to Chicago. Opening ¼-1⅜ cent lower, wheat afterward sagged further. Corn started at ¼-⅞ decline and later underwent additional setbacks.

More than two cents a bushel break in wheat prices was soon witnessed. Letups in selling pressure led at times to intermittent rallies, but buying was not aggressive, and market downturns recurred. Liquidation of December holdings of wheat was a disturbing factor.

Apparent certainty that 5,000,000 acres would be added to United States bread wheat production attracted considerable notice. Corn and oats prices followed the wheat market downgrade.

NEW GOLD PLAN UPSETS OLD PRINCIPLE

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—The resignation of Dr. O. M. W. Sprague as economic adviser to the United States should occasion no surprise. The only incongruous fact was that he remained in office while his advice was ignored and while a diametrically opposite economic theory—that of Prof. George F. Warren—was being followed at Washington.

Mr. Rukeyser

The incident only underlines the obvious fact that the President's experimental gold policy does not accord with orthodox economic standards.

By the way, Dr. Sprague will find strong sympathy with his viewpoint among his former economic colleagues at Harvard and the other great universities of the East, including Columbia. The universities may be expected soon to lend their prestige to the "sound money" campaign already inaugurated by chambers of commerce.

TEMPORARY RELIEF

The anti-inflationists lay much stress on the fact that debt relief under inflation is only temporary. A profound student of the German adventure contends that within seven years after stabilization, Teuton farmers were as heavily in debt as before.

The creditors, who had been stung by the extinction of the mark, avenged themselves after the new mark was established by insisting on usually high interest rates.

Critics of the administration policy emphasize that even if the gold maneuver should raise prices, the adventure will invite new trade restrictions and retaliations by foreign countries, leading to competition in currency depreciation.

STRESS DOMESTIC VIEW

On the other hand, President Roosevelt and Prof. Warren, taking a nationalistic view, lay chief emphasis on the domestic situation. In the famous message of July 5 to the London economic conference, the President said:

"Revaluation of the dollar in terms of American commodities is an end from which the government and people of the United States cannot be diverted.

"We wish to make this perfectly clear. We are interested in American commodity prices. What is to be the value of the dollar in terms of foreign currencies is not and cannot be our immediate concern.

"The exchange value of the dollar will ultimately depend upon the success of other nations in raising the prices of their own commodities in terms of their national money, and cannot be determined in advance of our knowledge of such fact."

WARREN THEORY

The Warren philosophy (set forth in his book entitled "Prices") starts with the assumption that a country can establish its internal business conditions independent of the rest of the world. He recognizes that most of the energy which a country puts into production is for consumption by the home population. The Warren view is that it is feasible to affect price levels nationally instead of internationally.

Another major point of conflict is that the Warren theory holds that prices depend on the ratio between gold supplies and aggregate physical volume of production. He feels that it is the monetary stocks of gold, and not the volume of velocity of bank credit, that finally determines commodity prices. At this point he differs sharply with Prof. Sprague and with most orthodox economists.

DIFFER OVER DOLLAR

Another point at issue consists of the ultimate nature of the dollar. Prof. Sprague and the orthodox economists want to return to a gold dollar, in which the weight, as before, will be definitely fixed.

Prof. Warren's commodity dollar, however, would vary in gold content in order to keep the ratio between the gold and the commodity price level constant. Thus the commodity dollar would perpetually fluctuate in respect to gold content, but would, according to its proponents, be staple in terms of general commodity prices.

There are also numerous quarrels over technique. The critics assert that not the wholesale price index, but the general price level, including allowance for wages, real estate and security quotations, should be the criterion of the purchasing power of money.

By testing out the Warren theory on the present gigantic scale, President Roosevelt has made first-rate news of the bickerings of academic economists.

Whatever the controversialists may think, those on the sidelines recognize human adventure on a tremendous scale in the present money situation.

The Girl Who Won

By MAY CHRISTIE

CHAPTER XXXIX.

"What extraordinary foolishness you say, Yvonne!" exclaimed Rhoda Vane to her maid irritably.

"But, Madame, eet ees quite true. The young man at the lodge who is a sweetheart of the parlor-maid's here . . . he have seen them down by the lake together."

Yvonne nodded knowingly.

"And the day before yesterday, also. He is in loff with the young lady."

"Nonsense, Yvonne. You French are too romantic."

"But eet ees so, Charles—he have seen Meester O'Brien keesing her."

"WHAT?" Rhoda sat up. Two red spots came in each cheek that the ice wasn't responsible for. "The secretary carrying on like that? Mrs. Judson shall be told about it."

"Oh no, madame. That would be unkind. She was very amiable to me last night—today, I do not wish that through any story of mine Mees Nollie goes in trouble."

Yvonne was distressed. She was sorry that her love of romance had led her into gossip that might bode ill for the young secretary.

There were thunder clouds on madame's brow. With quick Latin intuition Yvonne realized that madame was jealous.

MAID SORRY

How foolish she had been to speak! Why couldn't she have kept her mouth shut about the beautiful love-idyll down by the lake?

"I shall do as I think fit. Attend to my face, Yvonne, and stop arguing."

"Now, just a soupcon, high up on the cheeks. I want to look pale tonight, so use the green powder.

"And fluff my hair out more. Fix a curl or two in the neck. Not quite so Madonna-ish."

BRILLING MARRIED

Was that chit back? It was nearly seven. Mrs. Judson should be informed of her conduct.

"You know him? But of course you do. Madeleine's father has a place not far from here. I'll bet the honeymooners turn up and I have to invite them to dinner."

"Don't you like Madeleine?" inquired Rhoda.

"No, not particularly."

But don't speak about that now. She wouldn't trust this Rhoda.

"I don't care for Madeleine, either. She's a stupid old maid, as selfish as can be," declared the visitor.

Mrs. Judson laughed tranquilly.

"Haven't seen her all the afternoon. I expect she's grabbed herself a beau. She looks a shrewd little thing," said Rhoda with assumed nonchalance.

NEWLYWED CALLS

Mrs. Judson considered this. She took a quick look at Rhoda.

"She's heard something. She's jealous as the devil—and her pride is hurt. This may be amusing."

So ruminated Jinny, who wasn't at all attracted by Rhoda.

"I told her to go out," was all she said. "She doesn't look too strong. She seems quite happy, roaming by herself. The quiet air and sunshine are good for her."

Rhoda's lips tightened, but she made no comment.

The telephone in the hall rang. Mrs. Judson went to answer it.

"Ho, can you imagine—it's from the bride and groom! There's to be a kind of reception at the father-in-law's lodge up here tomorrow night. He's loaned it to them for the honeymoon."

"Indeed? They included me? Was it Madeleine who spoke to you?"

"Bored already?" Rhoda laughed shrilly.

Mrs. Judson had hung up. Rhoda went out to the foyer and lifted the receiver off its hook.

"Iroquois 182. What's the idea, Rhoda?"

"Oh, Jack knows Tony O'Brien. He might as well include him in the party, too," said Rhoda, nonchalantly.

Synopsis

Nollie Day, stenographer at an exclusive hotel, is befriended by wealthy Mrs. Judson, a widow. Nollie goes to a theater in place of Mrs. Judson, where she meets handsome Tony O'Brien. She reveals her own identity but Tony does not hear her. Next day, Tony telephones and learns Mrs. Judson has gone abroad. Nollie wants to clear her identity, but is unable to get in touch with Tony. Mrs. Judson returns and ask Nollie to become her secretary and visit her ranch. Nollie accompanies Mrs. Judson to a garden party and meets Rhoda Vane. Rhoda seems to dislike Nollie. Nollie and the widow leave for the ranch after inviting Rhoda. Nollie is surprised when she meets Tony near the ranch. Tony is pleased when she tells him she is not Mrs. Judson. Rhoda visits the ranch. She is rude to Nollie, but plainly tries to gain Tony's favor. Tony confesses that he loves Nollie. Rhoda has pleasant visions of marriage to Tony.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Why pursue the same subject so often?

Your hobby, yes, and you probably know more about it than those around you but you need not wear it threadbare.

Most people have heard you talk the same subject so often that they have an idea that yours is a one track mind.

Why ride any subject to death?

If you feel that you must express yourself and your enthusiasm upon this certain subject, seek out those who are as interested in it as you are.

Don't force your opinions on friends and acquaintances till they call you a pest, in their hearts, if not to your face.

Some are the too persistant story tellers.

Still others talk too much about the game in which they are interested.

CORRUPT POLITICIANS DEBASE, INVENTORS ELEVATE HUMANITY

The closing years of President Grant's disappointing administration, when the tide of corruption was high in public and business life, coincide with the invention of the telephone by Alexander Graham Bell and independently also by E. Gray, making possible transmission of speech and sound by wire. A year later also Edison started experiments with electric incandescence of carbonized paper, leading to the practical electric incandescent lamp (1879), which gave not only the blessing of a safe, convenient and economic illumination, but was the first step to the electronic tube of today without which radio, amplifyer, talking picture, electric eye and other marvels of electricity could not have been evolved. BATTLE OF SADOVA—THE END OF AUSTRIAN DOMINATION OVER GERMAN STATES

The Congress of Vienna (1814-1815) created a loose confederacy of the German states, foreign affairs to be decided in the diets at Frankfurt presided over by the Austrian emperor. Though tariff-walls were abolished, the lack of a central government crippled the power of the confederacy.

The Prussian Otto von Bismarck (1815-1898), the "Iron Chancellor," welded the German states into an empire. First he acquired Schleswig-Holstein (1864) with the help of Austria; then he denied Austria her share and in the ensuing war (1866) defeated her. The decisive battle was fought at Sadova. Above painting shows Prussian King William embracing his son, Crown Prince Frederick-William, after the battle.

Austria had to give up all interest in the German confederacy, leaving Prussia free hand (Treaty of Prague). Under the presidency of Prussia a closer confederacy of 21 German states was formed; the remaining four southern independent sovereignties became secret allies against France, with whom a conflict was foreseen.

IRON, THE MOST IMPORTANT METAL

Iron (Fe), silvery, soft metal, is found pure in meteorites; the interior of the earth probably consists of it. It is the fourth in abundance near the earth's surface (after O, Si, Al), giving brown color to almost every rock and soil. It is necessary for life, forming part of haemoglobin in blood and chlorophyll of plants.

Ores: Hematite (Fe_2O_3), limonite ($2Fe_2O_3.3H_2O$, same composition as rust), magnetite (Fe_3O_4), siderite ($FeCO_3$), pyrite (FeS_2). U. S. has rich deposits: Lake Superior, Alabama, California, Colorado, Minnesota; the latter with its Mesabi range (100 miles long, 50 miles wide) greatest source of hematite, oxidized from ferrous bicarbonate by the iron-bacteria: $4Fe(HCO_3)_2 + O_2 = 2Fe_2O_3 + 8CO_2\ 4H_2O$.

ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA (Eng. Literature)

Antony, a mixture of great qualities and weaknesses, sinks into luxurious enjoyment with Cleopatra, the Egyptian queen. The threatening conflict with Caesar Octavian is mended by friends and Antony's marriage to Octavia, sister of Caesar.

The noble resolutions of Antony are shipwrecked against artful Cleopatra arousing Octavian's wrath, whose ships and legions defeat Antony in flight to Cleopatra. Both commit suicide.

HEATING BY STOVE

A stove is a fireproof shell enclosing a place where fire is maintained and connected with the chimney by a pipe (above). The heat is given to the surrounding air by conduction through the shell and distributed by convection currents in the room (right) and also partly by radiation from the shell absorbed by the walls and furniture. It utilizes 30-70% of the heat energy of the fuel and is inexpensive to install. Disadvantages: Inconvenience, dirt caused by fuel handling in rooms, occupation of valuable space. (General Science)

THE WHITE OAK (QUERCUS ALBA) (General Science)

The genus oak (Quercus) belongs to the Beech family (Fagaceae), consisting of about 300 species. One important kind is the white oak. It has alternate leaves, usually seven-lobed; staminate flowers with yellow anthers in hairy aments; pistillates with hairy scales and red styles on short stalks. Fruit is a sessile acorn with edible nut in a scaly cup. Range: Maine — Texas, growing everywhere, on rich, moist soil best. Its wood is strong, heavy, hard, durable, most valuable of all oaks; it is used in construction, cooperage, for ships, furniture, railroad ties, wagon-machine parts, interior finish. The bark is light gray, rich in tannic acid. Nuts are used as food and inferior substitute for coffee.

Gold Is a Neat Mineral

Gold has always been an important ingredient in wealth.

It is valuable because it is found in few places and borrowed in fewer. It is returned fewest.

It was practically standardized in this land in 1834. The demonetization act of 1873 legalized it. Silver was remonetized in 1878 but the currency law of 1900 again made gold our sole standard.

That's all we know about gold except that we wished we had some. We know that in 1896 along came Bill Bryan and kicked up an awful rumpus. But we were quite young at the time and not to be trusted.

It is heavy, soft and malleable. It is not affected by air, water or entreaties. It will dissolve in nitro-hydrochloric acid. But you're foolish if you try it. It is found in any kind of stone formation except marble-front banks.

Gold added California to the United States of America but almost lost New York, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania.

In ancient Egypt it was valued at 13 times its weight in silver. Along about 1912 we raised the ratio to 30 times. Bill Bryan wanted to split the difference and was defeated by voters who never had their hands on either.

Gold was a medium of exchange between the Greeks, the Persians, the Romans and points east. The Cro-Magnon citizen realized its possibilities and the Heidelberg man was hep to it before he went to that famous university.

Only about one-fourth of all gold goes into money. The rest is pounded into back teeth and wedding rings. We figure that by 1999 the dentists will have used it all on patients who haven't any. That means the dentists won't get paid. But they're used to it.

The Etruscans prized gold highly for ornaments, jewelry and loving cups. If you steal enough of it they will call you honest John. Pizzaro blotted the Incas to get it and it has destroyed civilizations, conquered armies and raised more deviltry than Saturday night.

We do not claim to be an authority on the subject. We are speaking freely without samples. We haven't seen any since Jack Johnson smiled at Reno, Nev.

Advertising the City

Mayor-elect McNair Has a Commendable Idea for Bringing New Industries Here.

In his address before the Advertising Club, Mayor-elect William N. McNair spoke of establishing a Department of Advertising in the municipal government to inform the world of Pittsburgh's advantages with a view to attracting new industries.

Whether or not the proposed activity merits the rating of a department, with its head a member of the Mayor's cabinet, is debatable; but the idea of advertising the city is a good one.

We need new industries—diversified industries—to promote and stabilize prosperity, and there is much that we can offer manufacturers as inducements for establishing factories here. Mr. McNair emphasized certain tax exemptions as among our most attractive inducements. Our central location, cheap fuel and facilities for water transportation are others.

Sidewalks for Highways

Here Is a Plan to Promote Safety and Provide Useful Work for Unemployed Men.

County Commissioner C. C. McGovern has had sidewalks laid alongside the new highway from Stoops Ferry to Shousetown. It is an improvement that will be appreciated not only by pedestrians, but also by motorists who use that road.

It is to be hoped that the day is not far distant when there will be sidewalks alongside every important road. It is too much to expect people to walk in the mud when a hard surface is available, and yet it is dangerous for them, especially at night, to walk on the pavement used by motorists.

The laying of sidewalks beside highways would be useful work for the unemployed who are to be given jobs by the Civil Works Administration.

Outrageous Punishment

The Law Permitting a 20-Year Sentence for Cutting Down 300 Trees Should Be Modified.

The Department of Forests and Waters reports that John Shedlanski, a farmer of Berwick, Pa., charged by a neighbor with trespass and malicious mischief for cutting down 300 Christmas trees, was fined $7,500 by Alderman John C. Jones, of Nanticoke, in accordance with a state law which provides a fine of $25 for each tree or part thereof destroyed.

In default of payment the defendant was committed to the Luzerne County Jail by the alderman to serve a day for each dollar of the fine; that is, a total of more than 20 years.

This is, of course, outrageous punishment.

Not infrequently, under the provisions of similar laws, offenders against the fish and game regulations are sentenced by justices of the peace to prison terms longer than are ordinarily imposed by the Quarter Sessions Court for felonies.

These laws should be modified.

A Lesson in Optimism

The Human Oddities in the Ripley "Believe It Or Not" Show Are Cheerful Persons.

A gentleman who has been closely associated with the human oddities in the Ripley "Believe It Or Not Odditorium," which is to be presented in Pittsburgh next week under the auspices of the Sun-Telegraph for the benefit of charity, states that they are cheerful persons.

Far from being downcast over curious physical features which normal persons might regard as afflictions, they see advantages in them. The ossified boy points out, for example, that the ossified parts of his body are immune to pain.

There is a lesson in optimism in this for all of us.

Pittsburgh's Birthday

Celebration of the 175th Anniversary Should Stimulate Interest in the City's History.

"On Saturday, November 25, 1758, amidst a fierce snowstorm, the English took possession of the place, and Colonel Armstrong, in the presence of Forbes and Washington, hauled up the puissant banner of Great Britain, while cannons boomed and the exulting victors cheered. On the next day, General Forbes wrote to Governor Denny from 'Fort Duquesne, now Pittsburgh, the 26th day of November, 1758,' and this was the first use of that name."
—From "A Short History of Pittsburgh," by Samuel Harden Church.

Mayor John S. Herron has very appropriately issued a proclamation asking the people to celebrate, patriotically, the 175th anniversary of the founding of the city.

He recommends attendance at the Pittsburgh Anniversary Luncheon at the Chamber of Commerce at noon tomorrow under the auspices of the Chamber and the Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania, at which United States Senator David A. Reed and Dr. Solon J. Buck are to speak.

The Mayor also recommends that the flag be flown Saturday, and that we "review the history of the fall of Fort Duquesne and identify the noble characteristics of our pioneer forefathers in the traits of present-day Pittsburghers."

The study of Pittsburgh's early history will richly repay every Pittsburgher. It cannot fail to arouse civic pride.

Samuel Harden Church's work, from which we have quoted, is well written, entertaining, and can be read in an evening; but we have detected inaccuracy in it in the statement that Maj. Grant was killed in the battle at Grant's Hill on September 12, 1758. He died in 1806.

Neville B. Craig's "History of Pittsburgh" is good so far as it goes, but it carries the story only to about the middle of the last century.

C. Hale Sipe's recently published "Fort Ligonier and Its Times" is a treasure chest of interesting information about Pittsburgh in the early days.

Most of us, it is to be feared, know more about the early history of New England than we know of the early history of Western Pennsylvania; yet the latter is just as interesting and just as important.

'Who's Afraid of the Big Bad Debt?' -:- By Nelson Harding

The little pigs boldly sing,
It hasn't been able to catch them yet
As they dance around in a ring.

"Who's afraid of a big, bad debt
Which we never intend to pay?
There'll be payments due, but they won't be met
On the next installment day!"

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—Rarely has a deeply ingrained reverence for an American actor so flowed into spontaneous outburst as the cheers for George M. Cohan's new success. At 55, he proves again he is "the first actor." In a play by the first playwright, Eugene O'Neill. A Guild production, if you please!

There have always been diehards about Cohan. Not on Broadway, of course, where he is so beloved. But in crustier circles where anything English, even to the perverse philosophy of Noel Coward and Lonsdale, is revered. To such Cohan remains: "Clever, you know. But just a hoofer!"

In his latest offering Cohan gives the stage a new technique in restraint. His entrance is even muffled by another figure obscuring him. At every curtain drop the audience glances about bewildered to realize it is in a theater. Joe Jefferson in Rip Van Winkle did no better job of characterization.

Most critics agree Cohan far out-shone the play. I have heard Cohan will do one more play of his own. Then permanently retire. And what a loss that will be!

If E. E. Paramore, Jr., is correctly gazetted, Peter B. Kyne is definitely washed up with motion pictures as one of the arts. Asked to express an opinion of a film, Kyne barked: "I never go to pictures. Asking me to see a movie is like asking Paderewski to hear a child do five-finger exercises."

* * *

Beauty no longer seems the commercial asset it was. Dearth of musical shows and cabarets cramped the local market. But a bigger reason is movies no longer depend upon personal pulchritude. Katherine Hepburn, now in ascendancy, would not become "Miss America" at an Atlantic City pageant. Neither would Garbo. Katharine Cornell, best boxoffice bet of the stage, is in the same category. Eva La Gallienne's family gazed disappointedly in the cradle at "the ugly little thing."

No. 277 Park avenue is likely the last of the rambling mid-town apartment structures with huge inside court, throbbing fountains, graveled walks and terraced gardens. Among its many celebrities is Geraldine Farrar. So vast is the inside area some 20 doormen are on duty. The demand for space will likely never permit another of its type.

Arthur Samuels, of Harpers Bazaar, has been more successful than any other editor extracting short stories from Dorothy Parker. Of all modern writers she is most difficult in obtaining copy. A dozen editorial hands are extended for anything she turns out. But her total output consists of three slim and torturously winnowed volumes of verse and a book of short stories.

Otto Kahn's favorite gesture in niggling concerns the white silk handkerchief that adorns his evening clothes. He hides it from his valet after wearing so it will not go to the laundry. Few humans haven't a tiny touch of absurd stinginess. The ex-King of Spain, like Rupert Hughes, is a rubber-band-saver. Mayor Gaynor's coat lapels were always edged with stray pins picked up here and there. Frank Fay is a paper bag putter-awayer.

My prize parsimony is with tubes of tooth and shaving paste. I squeeze them to paper thinness—no one salvages so much service. Then some imp of deviltry makes me fold them, when deflated, into a lump to fire out a bath window at the crossing cop. Twice I nearly got him. Some day I will triumph and my next stand will probably be behind latticed bars calling, "Hey, Jack, gotta match?" to passers-by.

Why Do You Go to the Movies?

Why do you go to the movies?

Why do the movies rest you—amuse you?

"That's easy," you say. "I go to the movies because I want to see life. I get tired of living my own life. I want to see how other people live. The movies show me that. That's why they rest and amuse me."

Partly right. Mostly wrong, partner. You do go to the movies because you're tired of your own life. But you don't see how other people live in the movies. You only see how you WISH they lived—how you wish that YOU could live.

The movies show you life in stories. Life in plots. Plots that begin somewhere and end somewhere. Lives that have definite problems, definite answers.

And that's how you wish YOUR life might be. You, too, have problems. But they never begin anywhere or end anywhere. If only they would! If only you knew how to straighten your life out—to put a stop to your restlessness and confusion — decide what you want to do and do it.

And you think of all the confident, audacious characters you see in the movies. You think of Marie Dressler and Wallace Beery, Mae West, Walter Huston and George Raft. There are people who know what they want and go get it. They get into jambs like everybody else, but they get out of them. And everything ends happily.

"Some day," you say to yourself, "my life will be like that. Some day I'll get a plan and be able to put it through. I know I have the power, but somehow I've never had the breaks. Something's always holding me back. I've bills to pay and a million silly little chores to do. The day's done before I even know it has started—and nothing has been accomplished. But just wait! I'll show 'em yet! When I get things straightened out—"

So you go on, hoping and despairing, rebelling and drifting; going one step ahead, falling back three.

And in the meantime, you go to the movies—and see life as you think it should be.

BUT REAL LIFE IS NEVER LIKE THE MOVIES!

Real life doesn't come in plots. Real life doesn't begin somewhere, end somewhere — have definite problems, definite answers.

Real life is a PROCESS, not a PLOT. It's a process of growth—and growth never starts, never finishes. Growth just goes on and on, in and out of messes, in and out of successes. Real life is never satisfied or settled. It is always restless, always discontented, always rebellious, always curious, always lonely.

These men and women whom you admire on the screen are exactly like the rest of us—in real life. Mae West doesn't always stand-'em-up-and-knock-'em-down with a gorgeous gurgle. Here's guessing that many a time she goes off and has a good hard cry and wonders why life's picking on her!

Walter and George don't always have those steely eyes. They're probably as fussy and fretty as any other male before they've had their morning shave and coffee. And I'll bet my best earring that Wally can be the World's Champion Pouter if the Missis interrupts when he's telling his Best Story.

In Reel Life they're all Steady and Settled and Sure. But in Real Life, they're just muddled, messy mortals like the rest of us, my dear. For human life is always like that, whether we be rich or poor, famous or obscure.

AND LET'S BE GLAD IT IS!

A plot's a swell thing to see on a screen; it would be the helluva thing to live! Life may be an aimless adventure, but there's always another chance. We may not get anywhere, but we're always on the go. Can't make up our minds? Of course we can't—but who wants a "made up mind," anyway? Better a growing mind and a going soul than a million "happy endings!"

So go to the movies and enjoy 'em. But don't peeve because life isn't like that. You'd be sore as a pup if it were!

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Love—And Other Trifles

The fact that a man has a perfectly good wife at home never seems to make a modern girl doubt that his heart is free and his intentions are serious.

* * *

This is the time of year when a woman with plenty of money buys a lot of smart clothes, so that she can go down to Florida and loll around all day in a half-piece bathing suit.

* * *

The day always comes when a popular bachelor tires of women, conquests and flirtations, but a married Don Juan never knows when the love-game is over.

In affairs of love-affairs, a girl has that odd feeling that all the clocks in the world have stopped, and that she is just marking time and waiting for something to happen.

* * *

One reason why the telephone has taken the place of the love letter, is because the modern man figures that, if he never writes a love letter, he'll never have to write a heart-balm check.

* * *

Mother may have had to learn how to cook, sew and tinkle the piano; but she never had to learn anything so difficult as the technique of keeping a man on the string with one hand, and keeping him in his place with the other.

* * *

Variety in love is the last resource of a burnt-out heart, jaded emotions and an over-fed vanity.

Human Side of the News

With Most of the World Off the Gold Standard
The Metal Is in Strong Demand

By Edwin C. Hill

WITH gold at its highest price in the memory of living men, thousands are deserting the cities to take up the most frenzied gold hunt in 84 years, since the great rush of the Forty-niners to California. Old mines, long abandoned, are being combed and scraped for their glittering gleanings. Adventurers are forging into far places, seeking the hitherto undiscovered golden treasures which old Mother Earth hid away while she was shaking down to fire and earthquake.

In musty old libraries in Madrid, in Spain; in Lisbon, in Portugal; in the British Museum—wherever are stored the records of old mines and ancient treasures—men are pouring over time-yellowed manuscripts and books, dealing with the conquest of Mexico by Cortez, the conquest of Peru by Pizzaro, and carrying the traditions, even, of the lost mines of King Solomon and the lost treasures of the Queen of Sheba, buried somewhere in the heart of the Dark Continent.

* * *

Gold Remains Standard of Value

WITH every nation in the world off the gold standard, except two or three, gold has never been so desirable to governments or peoples, for the truth is, we are never off the gold standard except in the most technical sense. Gold remains today, as it has been for 10,000 years, the one and only virtually changeless standard of values. Mankind has been in the grip of the god of gold throughout the rolling ages, and today he bends the suppliant knee even more lowly than ever he bent it in the day of the Pharaohs, of the Persian kings or of Solomon the Great.

The passion to win gold, to hoard it, has been the underlying force of history throughout the ages. The power of gold, that, and the love of women, have built up the kingdoms of the earth and thrown them down in ruins. Lust for gold and the power it wields changed the face of the world when Alexander the Great made his spear-thrust through the heart of Asia. It changed the map of Europe when Rome crossed the Mediterranean to level the walls of golden Carthage, where even the slave women wore armlets of beaten gold.

It was gold that lured the imagination of the Genoese sailor, Columbus, and all the Spanish adventurers and conquistadores that followed in the wake of his little ships. Europe's gold, when Columbus first sailed westward, amounted to much less than some present-day family fortunes, such as the Rockefeller fortune, the Ford, the Mellon or the great hoard of the richest man in the world, the Nizam of Hyderabad in India.

A great deal of her gold of that day Europe had plundered from other lands. Croesus got his gold from mines in Smyrna, and so did Midas. Darius of Persia looted Asia Minor, Greece and Egypt, and swept back into Asia with long baggage trains groaning under the weight of golden treasure. Alexander carried it back again when he plundered Babylon.

From the days of imperial Rome to the time of Columbus, the craze for gold forced nations to war and pillage. Cortez and Pizarro robbed in the New World as Alexander and Scipio had robbed in the old. Throughout the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries Spanish treasure ships, great galleons flying the red and gold flag of Spain, sailed home from Peru and Panama loaded down with gold in bars, gold in ornaments, gold in dust and nuggets.

Piratical gentlemen, Francis Drake, Henry Morgan and other bold buccaneers whom wily Queen Elizabeth petted in private and damned in public, covered the sea bottom off the Spanish main with the bones of Spanish treasure ships.

Africa Developed By Search for Gold

THOSE days passed and then came the modern era of gold, with the great gold rushes to California, to Australia, to Alaska, to South Africa, and, right now, to the gold fields of Ontario. The rush of the forty-niners to the rich placers and the Mother Lode of the Golden State started the western migration which led to the building of the transcontinental railroads, the advance of the iron horse across plains and mountains, and which linked the West to the young United States.

It was gold which opened up Africa. The tomb of Tut-ank-ahmen, in Egypt, was piled high with golden objects. From Ireland, Scandinavia and France have come ancient gold collars, gold-handled swords, vessels, beakers, bangles, rings and earrings.

The Bible abounds in stories of gold and its uses. Exodus describes the spoiling of the Egyptians by Hebrew women, and tells how "they came, both men and women, and brought bracelets and earrings and tablets and rings and jewels of gold." . . .

In the Temple of Solomon gold was used with prodigious profusion. The lamps, tongs and hinges were pure gold. Its very walls were overlaid with gold. Solomon's throne was of solid gold. And when the Queen of Sheba went to visit him she took with her tons of gold, carried on the backs of elephants.

This very day, strangely enough, there is a revival of belief that there exist somewhere in South Africa, most probably in Rhodesia, the very mines of incalculable richness from which King Solomon derived his inexhaustible gold supply.

Capital Parks Must Stay Under Federal Control

By James T. Williams, Jr.

CLOSE to the heart of the American people is the conservation under federal control of all that makes the federal city the most beautiful national capital in the world.

Its public buildings and grounds and parks are a national asset. The people of every state take a vital interest in their governance and development because Washington belongs not to a local group but to the entire American people in their corporate capacity as a nation.

The suggestion of a newly appointed Commissioner of the District of Columbia that all the parks of the federal city be taken away from the federal government and turned over to the complete control of the local political authorities richly merits the national rebuke it will doubtless get.

* * *

Opposed By The Administration

THE stupidity of this proposal is made convincingly clear in the prompt announcement by the Secretary of the Interior that the Roosevelt administration will oppose such a transfer.

Speaking for the administration, the Director of National Parks, Buildings and Reservations, A. B. Cammerer, says:

"They are essentially an ornament to the national capital rather than local recreational areas.

"Federal funds were used in the purchase and improvement of a large portion of the park areas, and taxes paid by citizens from all parts of the nation contribute to their maintenance.

"Every American citizen, whether he be a resident of the District of Columbia or of a far removed part of the country, has an interest in the welfare of the parks of the national capital, because he takes pride in their beauty and in the excellence of the capital's architectural achievements."

The park system of the federal city, as Director Cammerer points out, was an important phase of the plans of the original city of Washington in accordance with the Act of July 16, 1790. In addition to the donated street areas, President Washington purchased 17 reservations, which included the Capitol grounds and the White House grounds or President's park.

* * *

Must Remain Under Federal Control

MANY other park areas have been acquired since through reclamation at federal expense and through donation.

When President Roosevelt recently transferred the administration of the parks of the federal city from the War Department, where for years they had been admirably ordered, to the Department of the Interior, he was careful to specify that they should be retained under absolute federal control.

He authorized the transfer only that he might make them a part of the world's greatest park organization which is a federal agency, administered for the benefit of all the people of the United States.

The fatuous proposal of the new political appointee to the District government that the parks should be added to the political pie counter of the local authorities is what Mr. Cammerer says it is "a step backward in both economy and efficiency."

At a time when the President administration is striving to encourage national planning all over the United States, it is unfortunate that one of the President's appointees to federal office should show himself as much out of sympathy with the spirit that quickens "the new deal," as the district commissioner who sponsors this silly scheme appears to be.

It only goes to show that when it comes to protecting what belongs to all the American people "eternal vigilance" must ever be the watchword.
